79.—If any officer of customs except in the discharge in good faith of his duty as such officer, discloses any particulars learned by him in his official capacity in respect of any goods, or shows any samples delivered to him in such capacity, or if any officer of Customs except as permitted by this Act, parts with the possession of any samples delivered to him in his official capacity.	195	he shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees.
80.—If any person, without the approval of the Customs-collector under section 202, acts as an agent for the transaction of business as therein mentioned,	202	such person shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five hundred rupees.

Nothing in the second column of the above schedule shall be deemed to have the force of law.

168. The confiscation of any goods under this Act includes any package in which they are found, and all the other contents thereof.

Every vessel, cart or other means of conveyance, and every horse or other animal used in the removal of any goods liable to confiscation under this Act shall in like manner be liable to confiscation.

The confiscation of any vessel under this Act includes her tackle, apparel and furniture.

CHAPTER XVII.

PROCEDURE RELATING TO OFFENCES, APPEALS, &c.

169. Any officer of Customs duly employed in the prevention of smuggling may search any person on board of any vessel in any Port in British India, or any person who has landed from any vessel:

Provided that such officer has reason to believe that such person has dutiable or prohibited goods secreted about his person.

170. When any officer of Customs is about to search any person under the provisions of section 169, such person may require the said officer to take him, before the nearest Magistrate or Customs-collector.

If such requisition be made, the officer of Customs may detain the person making it until he can bring him before the nearest Magistrate or Customs-collector.

The Magistrate or Customs-collector before whom any person is so brought shall, if he see no reasonable ground for search, forthwith discharge such person; but if otherwise, shall direct that the search be made.

A female shall not be searched by any but a female.

171. Any duly empowered officer of Customs or other person duly employed for the prevention of smuggling, may stop and search for smuggled goods any vessel, cart or other means of conveyance; provided that he has reason to believe that smuggled goods are contained therein.

172. Any Magistrate may, on application by a Customs-collector, stating his belief that dutiable or prohibited goods are secreted in any place within the local limits of the jurisdiction of such Magistrate, issue a warrant to search for such goods.

Such warrant shall be executed in the same way, and shall have the same effect, as a search-warrant issued under the law relating to Criminal Procedure.

173. Any person against whom a reasonable suspicion exists that he has been guilty of an offence under this Act, may be arrested in any place, either upon land or water, by any officer of Customs or other person duly employed for the prevention of smuggling.

174. Every person arrested on the ground that he has been guilty of an offence under this Act, shall forthwith be taken before the nearest Magistrate or Customs-collector.

175. When any such person is taken before a Magistrate, such Magistrate may, if he thinks fit, either commit him to gaol or order him to be kept in the custody of the Police for such time as is necessary to enable such Magistrate to communicate with the proper officers of Customs:

Provided that any person so arrested, committed, or kept shall be released on giving security to the satisfaction of the Magistrate to appear at such time and place as such Magistrate appoints in this behalf.

176. If any person liable to be arrested under this Act, is not arrested at the time of committing the offence for which he is so liable, or after arrest, makes his escape, he may at any time afterwards be arrested and taken before a Magistrate, to be dealt with as if he had been arrested at the time of committing such offence.

177. When any person employed on the crew of any of the ships of Her Majesty's Navy, when arrested to be secured on board until warrant procured, is arrested under this Act, the arresting officer shall forthwith give notice thereof to the commanding officer of the ship, who shall thereupon place such person in security on board of such ship, until the arresting officer has obtained a warrant from a Magistrate for bringing up such person to be dealt with according to law.

The Magistrate shall grant such warrant upon complaint made to him by the arresting officer, stating the offence for which the person is detained.

178. Any thing liable to confiscation under this Act may be seized in any place, either upon land or water, by any officer of Customs or other person duly employed for the prevention of smuggling.

179. All things seized on the ground that they are liable to confiscation under this Act shall, as soon as conveniently may be, be delivered into the care of any Customs officer authorized to receive the same.

If there be no such officer at hand, all such things shall be carried to and deposited at the Custom-house nearest to the place of seizure.

If there be no Custom-house within a convenient distance, such things shall be deposited at the nearest place appointed by the Chief Customs-Authority for the deposit of things so seized.

180. When any things liable to confiscation under this Act are seized by any Police-officer on suspicion that they have been stolen, he may carry them to any Police-station or Court at which a complaint connected with the stealing or receiving of such things has been made, or an enquiry connected with such stealing or receiving is in progress, and there detain such things until the dismissal of such complaint or the conclusion of such enquiry or of any trial thence resulting.

In every such case the Police-officer seizing the things shall send written notice of their seizure and detention to the nearest Custom-house; and immediately after the dismissal of the complaint or the conclusion of the enquiry or trial, he shall cause such things to be conveyed to, and deposited at, the nearest Custom-house, to be there proceeded against according to law.

181. When any thing is or seized, or any person is arrested, under this Act, the officer or other person making such seizure or arrest shall, on demand of the person in charge of the thing so seized, or of the person so arrested, give him a statement in writing of the reason for such seizure or arrest.

182. In every case except the cases mentioned in section 167, Nos. 26, 72 and 74 to 76 both inclusive, in which, under this Act, anything is liable to confiscation or to increased rates of duty; or any person is liable to a penalty, such confiscation, increased rate of duty or penalty may be adjudged—

(a) without limit, by a Deputy Commissioner or Deputy Collector of Customs, or a Customs-collector;

(b) up to confiscation of goods not exceeding two hundred and fifty rupees in value, and imposition of penalty or increased duty not exceeding one-hundred rupees by an Assistant Commissioner or Assistant Collector of Customs;

(c) up to confiscation of goods not exceeding fifty rupees in value, and imposition of penalty or increased duty not exceeding ten rupees, by such other subordinate officers of Customs as the Local Government may, from time to time, empower in that behalf in virtue of their office:

Provided that the Local Government may, in the case of any officer, performing the duties of a Customs-collector, limit his powers to those indicated in clause (b) or in clause (c) of this section, and may confer on any officer by name, or in virtue of his office, the powers indicated in clauses (a), (b) or (c) of this section.

183. Whenever confiscation is authorized by this Act, the officer adjudging it shall give the owner of the goods an option to pay in lieu of confiscation such fine as the officer thinks fit.

184. When anything is confiscated under section 182, such thing shall thereupon vest in Her Majesty.

The officer adjudging confiscation shall take and hold possession of the thing confiscated, and every officer of Police, on the requisition of such officer, shall assist him in taking and holding such possession.

185. If any vessel actually departs without a port-clearance, or after failing to bring-to when required at any station appointed under section 17, the penalty to which the Master of such vessel is liable may be adjudged by the Chief Customs Officer of any Customs-port to which such vessel proceeds, or in which she is, and in the case of Aden, by such officer as the Governor of Bombay in Council appoints in this behalf.

A certificate of such departure or failure to bring-to when required, purporting to be signed by the Chief Customs Officer of the Port from which the vessel is stated to have so departed, shall be prima facie proof of the fact so certified.

186. The award of any confiscation, penalty or increased rate of duty under this Act by an officer of Customs shall not prevent the infliction of any punishment to which the person affected thereby is liable under any other law.

187. All offences against this Act, other than those cognizable under section 182 by officers of Customs may be tried summarily by a Magistrate.

188. Any person deeming himself aggrieved by any decision or order passed by an officer of customs under this Act may, within three months from the date of such decision or order, appeal therefrom to the Chief Customs-Authority, or, in such cases as the Local Government directs, to any officer of Customs not inferior in rank to a Customs Collector and empowered in that behalf by name or in virtue of his office by the Local Government.

Such authority or officer may thereupon make such further enquiry and pass such order as he thinks fit, confirming, altering or annulling the decision or order appealed against:

Provided that no such order in appeal shall have the effect of subjecting any person to any greater confiscation, penalty or rate of duty than has been adjudged against him in the original decision or order.

Every order passed in appeal under this section shall, subject to the power of revision conferred by section 191, be final.

189. Where the decision or order appealed against relates to any duty or penalty leviable in respect of any goods, the owner of such goods, if desirous of appealing against such decision or order, shall, pending the appeal, deposit in the hands of the Customs-collector at the Port where the dispute arises the amount demanded by the officer passing such decision or order.

When delivery of such goods to the owner thereof is withheld merely by reason of such amount not being paid, the Customs-collector shall upon such deposit being made cause such goods to be delivered to such owner.

If upon any such appeal it is decided that the whole or any portion of such amount was not leviable in respect of such goods, the Customs-collector shall return such amount or portion (as the case may be) to the owner of such goods on demand by such owner.

190. If, upon consideration of the circumstances under which any penalty, increased rate of duty or confiscation has been adjudged under this Act by an officer of Customs, the Chief Customs-Authority is of opinion that such penalty, increased rate or confiscation ought to be remitted in whole or in part, or commuted, such Authority may remit the same or any portion thereof, or may, with the consent of the owner of any goods ordered to be confiscated, commute the order of confiscation to a penalty not exceeding the value of such goods.

191. The Local Government may on the application of any person aggrieved by any decision or order passed under this Act by any officer of Customs or Chief Customs-Authority, and from which no appeal lies, reverse or modify such decision or order.

192. When any fine, penalty or increased rate of duty is leviable under this Act, the goods in respect of which such fine, penalty or rate is leviable shall not be removed by the owner until such fine, penalty or rate is paid.

If any person has become liable to any such fine, penalty or rate in respect of any goods, the Customs-collector may detain any other goods belonging to such person passing through the custom-house until such fine, penalty or rate is paid.

193. When a penalty or increased rate of duty is adjudged against any person under this Act by any officer of Customs, such officer, if such penalty or increased rate be not paid, may levy the same by sale of any goods of the said person which may be in his charge, or in the charge of any other officer of Customs.

When an officer of Customs who has adjudged a penalty or increased rate of duty against any person under this Act is unable to realize the unpaid amount thereof from such goods, such officer may notify in writing to any Magistrate within the local limits of whose jurisdiction such person or any goods belonging to him may be, the name and residence of the said person and the amount of penalty or increased rate of duty uncovered; and such Magistrate shall thereupon proceed to enforce payment of the said amount in like manner as if such penalty or increased rate had been a fine inflicted by himself.

CHAPTER XVIII.

MISCELLANEOUS.

194. Any officer of Customs may open any package, and examine any goods brought by sea to, or shipped or brought for shipment at, any Customs-port.

195. The Customs-collector may, on the entry or clearance of any goods, or at any time while such goods are being passed through the Custom-house, take samples of such goods, for examination or for ascertaining the value thereof on which duties are payable, or for any other necessary purpose.

Every such sample shall, if practicable, be at the option of the owner either restored to him, or sold and the proceeds accounted for to him.

196. The unshipping, carrying, shipping and landing of all goods, and the bringing of them to the proper place for examination or weighing, and the putting of them into and out of the scales, and the opening, unpacking, bulking, sorting, lotting, marking and numbering of goods, where such operations are necessary or permitted, and the removing of goods to, and the placing of them in, the proper place of deposit, shall be performed by or at the expense of the owner of such goods.

197. No owner of goods shall be entitled to claim from any officer of Customs compensation for any loss or damage occurring to such goods at any time while they remain or are lawfully detained in any Custom-house, or on any Custom-house wharf, or under charge of any officer of Customs, unless it be proved that such loss or damage was occasioned by the neglect or wilful act of such officer of Customs.

198. No proceeding other than a suit shall be commenced against any person for anything purporting to be done in pursuance of this Act without giving to such person a month's previous notice in writing of the intended proceeding, and of the cause thereof; or after the expiration of three months from the limitation of such cause.

199. The Chief Customs-Authority may from time to time fix the period after the expiration of which goods left on any Custom-house wharf, or other authorized landing place, or part of the Custom-house premises, shall be subject to payment of fees, and the amount of such fees.

200. A duplicate of any certificate, manifest, bill or other Custom-house document may, on payment of a fee not exceeding ten rupees, be furnished, at the discretion of the Customs-collector, to any person applying for the same, if the Customs-collector is satisfied that no fraud has been committed or is intended by the applicant.

201. Except in the cases provided for by sections 36, 55, 63 and 94, the Customs-collector may in his discretion, upon payment of one rupee, authorize any document, after it has been entered and recorded in the Custom-house, to be amended.

202. No person authorized to act as an agent for the transaction of any business relating to the entrance or clearance of any vessel, or the import or export of goods or baggage, shall so act in any Custom-house, unless such authorization is approved by the Customs-collector.

Such officer may require any person so authorized to give a bond with sufficient security, in any sum not exceeding five thousand rupees, for his faithful behaviour as regards the Custom-house regulations and officers.

Such officer may, in case of misbehaviour of the person so authorized, suspend or withdraw such approval, but an appeal against every such suspension or withdrawal shall lie to the Chief Customs-Authority, whose decision thereon shall be final.

Every appeal under this section shall be made within one month of the suspension or withdrawal.

203. When any person applies to any officer of Customs for permission to transact any specified business with him on behalf of any other person, such officer may require the applicant to produce a written authority from the person on whose behalf such business is to be transacted, and in default of the production of such authority may refuse such permission.

The clerk, servant, or agent, of any person or mercantile firm, may transact business generally at the Custom-house on behalf of such person or firm: Provided that the Customs-collector may refuse to recognize such clerk, servant or agent unless such person or a member of such firm identifies such clerk, servant or agent to the Customs-collector as empowered to transact such business, and deposits with the Customs-collector an authority in writing duly signed, authorizing such clerk, servant or agent to transact such business on behalf of such person or firm.

204. All rules made under this Act shall be notified in the official Gazette, and shall thereupon have the force of law.

All such rules for the time being in force shall be collected, arranged and published at intervals not exceeding two years, and shall be sold to the public at a reasonable price.

205. Any notification made by any authority under powers conferred by this Act, may be cancelled in like manner by the same authority.

206. If in any case relating to the removal of goods from a warehouse without payment of duty, the person offending be an officer of Customs not acting in execution of his duty, and be prosecuted to conviction by the owner of such goods, no duty shall be payable in respect of such goods. For any damage so occasioned by such officer, the Customs-collector shall, with the sanction of the Chief Customs-Authority, make due compensation to such owner.

207. Nothing in this Act shall affect any law for the time being in force relating to the Commissioners for making improvements in the Port of Calcutta or the Trustees of the Port of Bombay respectively.

Rainfall, Weather, and State and Prospects of the Crops.

Statement showing Rainfall, Weather, and State and Prospects of the Crops in the different Districts of Bengal, as reported to Government during the week ending the 9th March 1878.

No.	District, and date of return.	Rainfall at Sudder Station in inches.	Character of the weather, state and prospects of the crops, and state of health at date.
BENGAL.
Western Districts.
SUNDAY DAYS.	1 Bardwan, Mar. 9 '78	Nil	Sugarcane is being cut and pressed; the outturn is good. Wheat and barley are doing well. Cholera still lingers in Culna sub-division.
	2 Bankoora, .. 9 ..	Nil	Weather—pleasant, but warm for the last two days. Sugarcane, cotton, gram, wheat, and barley have all given a good outturn. The growing crops, viz. boro rice, tobacco, and indigo promise well.
	3 Boorboom, .. 9 ..	Nil	Weather—seasonable; not too warm. Nothing new to report on the state and prospects of the crops.
	4 Midnapore, .. 9 ..	0.62	Weather—somewhat cooler than it was, except on the 9th; it is now cloudy and hot. Those crops that still remain on the ground are in good condition.
	5 Hooghly, .. 9 ..	0.16	Weather—cool in the first part of the week. Ploughing is retarded for want of rain. A few cases of small-pox and cholera have been reported from the Chinsurah Municipality. Cattle disease is prevalent in these Pandooah.
	Howrah, .. 11 ..	0.01	Weather—getting hot. The little boro dhan on the ground is doing well.
Central Districts.
TUESDAY DAYS.	6 24-Pargunnahs, Mar. 9 '78	0.02	Weather—variable, but not unseasonable. There is nothing of importance on the ground at present. Cholera is prevailing in parts of the district. Small-pox is reported from Diamond Harbour, and cattle disease from Bathura.
	7 Nuddea, .. 9 ..	0.02	Weather—beginning to grow warm. Fogs occasionally in the night. Very little of the cold-weather crop now remains on the ground. The fogs have done some damage to mango blossoms. The late rain has enabled the cultivators to plough extensively.
	8 Jessore, .. 9 ..	0.04	Weather—warm. Mornings are generally foggy. There is every prospect of more rain. The recent rain has done much good to the crops on the ground, and all is now ready for spring sowings. Prospects are satisfactory. More rain is wanted in the south.
	9 Moorshedabad, .. 9 ..	Nil	Weather—seasonable. Prospects of the crops are favorable. Cholera prevails in Dacca, Mirzapore, Burwa, Rampore Haut, and Bhurtpore police stations.

No.	District, and date of return.	Rainfall at Sadler Station in inches.	Character of the weather, state and prospects of the crops, and state of health at date.
Central Districts—(Contd.)
RAJSHAHY AND COOCH BEHAR DIVN.	10 Dinagpore, Mar. 8 '78	Nil	Weather—getting warmer gradually. Prospects of the rubber crops are good. Rice is being sold at a price varying from 15 to 25 seers the rupee.
	11 Rajshahy, „ 9 „	Nil	There has been no rain during the week. The cutting of the early rubber crops has commenced. The transplanting of boro rice continues. The lands are being ploughed for sesamum and rice sowings. The sowing of jute has commenced.
	12 Rangpore, „ 8 „	Nil	Weather—warm and dry. State and prospects of the crops continue favourable. Cholera has nearly disappeared. Small-pox is still prevailing in some parts of the Bhowanigunge thana. Malarious fever is strikingly absent.
	13 Bogra, „ 9 „	Nil	Weather—growing warm gradually. Nothing to report about the crops. The prospects of the mango crop are excellent. The price of rice has risen from 24 to 20 seers the rupee and is tending upwards still. There were a few cases of cholera here and there. In the Badulgachi division there is a great deal of fever.
	14 Pubna, „ 9 „	0.15	Weather—warm during the whole of the week. The harvesting of mutter , khesari , mosoor and mosina has commenced; a fair outturn is expected. The rubber crops also promise a good outturn; but rain is wanted. The gathering of haldi is over.
	15 Darjeeling, „ 8 „	0.07	Squally weather, with a sprinkling of rain. The minor crops are doing well. The land is being prepared for the rice sowings.
	16 Jalpigoree, „ 9 „	Nil	Fine clear weather; very cool for the time of year. The cold-weather crops are generally doing well. Sursoo crop is very good.
DACA DIVN.	Cooch Behar, „ 7 „	Nil	In the early part of the week the weather was cloudy and there was a sharp wind blowing from the east. It has cleared now, and is becoming gradually warm. The prospects of chenna , kaon and other crops appear to be good. The cutting of tobacco is going on in all parts of the district. Public health is reported to be generally good.
	Eastern Districts.
	17 Dacca, Mar. 9 '78	0.18 Moon- shee- gunge 0.63 for week ending 8th.	The eastern part of the district has had very fair rain. The rain has kept the temperature down. State and prospects of the crops are favourable. The rain in the eastern parts has been sufficient. There probably was rain in the west also on the 8th instant, but reports are not in.
	18 Furreedpore, „ 9 „	2.35 Goa- lundo. 0.21	Heavy rain on the 8th instant, since which the weather has been clear but warm. This rain which was probably general must have been of great service in enabling the ryots to prepare the ground for the next crop.
	19 Backergunge, „ 7 „	0.18	All is well, save that the price of rice continues very high.
	20 Mymensingh, „ 8 „	Nil	Weather—change for cold since 27th ultimo, indicating rain to have fallen in the neighbourhood. Ploughing is in progress. No crops to report on.
	21 Tipperah, „ 8 „	Nil sub-divn 1.74	Weather—fair. North wind for a day or two. Boro rice and the cold-weather crops are in good condition. Moosari is being reaped and the other cold-weather crops are ready. Nearly all the sugarcane has been cut with a good outturn. The average price of rice is Rs. 2.14 per maund.
CHITTAGONG DIVN.	22 Chittagong, „ 7 „	0.98	Rain on the 4th instant. Weather since fine and cool. The rain has done some good to the cold-weather crops. Ploughing in some places for paua rice is going on.
	23 Noakholly, „ 7 „	1.73	Weather—cool. A sharp storm accompanied by rain and hail passed over the station on the 4th instant after noon. The rain has been good for the cold-weather crops and for ploughing for the early rice. Public health is good.
	24 Chittagong Hill Tracts, „ 5 „	0.71	A heavy fall of rain with hail-storm on the night of the 1st instant, and a slight fall on the 4th. Weather cool and pleasant in the morning. Jute-cutting still continues. The prospects of tobacco are good.
BEHAR.	Hill Tipperah, „ 6 „	1.09	There were good showers on the 28th February and 3th instant, which have somewhat reduced the temperature. Ploughing has begun for the early rice crop.
	25 Patna, Mar. 9 '78	Nil	Weather—still cold in the mornings and evenings; seasonably warm at midday. The rubber crops are being harvested; and the outturn is fairly favourable where caterpillars did not damage them. Health is good.
	26 Gya, „ 9 „	Nil	Weather—warm and unclouded. Maximum thermometer in the shade 85°. No change to report in the state and prospects of the crops. Folios are about stationary.
PANA DIVN.	27 Shahabad, „ 9 „	Nil	Weather—getting hot and clear. The rubber crops are being partially cut. Much injury seems to have been caused by insects in various parts of the district. Where this has not happened the crops are good. The planting of sugarcane has commenced.

No.	District, and date of return.	Rainfall at Budder Station in inches.	Character of the weather, state and prospects of the crops, and state of health at date.
PATNA DIV.—Contd.	28 Darbhanga, Mar. 9 '78	Nil	Weather seasonable. The rubber crop is being harvested. It promises to be on the whole an average crop.
	29 Mozafferpore, " 9 "	Nil	Season getting warm. The harvesting of the rubber crops has commenced here and there in all the three sub-divisions of the district, and a fair outturn is expected; save in the pulses which have suffered somewhat from frost, blight, or insects. A few cases of small-pox are reported from Soorsundia Sastanurhee sub-division, as well as from the Budder sub-division.
	30 Saran, " 9 "	Nil	Weather—seasonable. West wind prevailing. The prospects of the cold-weather crops continue good. Kharif fast approaching maturity. Wheat, barley, peas, mustard, gram, and masoor are still being harvested. People are busy in sowing the spring crops. Indigo seed is being put in the ground; the early sowings have germinated. Poppy-heads are being tapped. Mango is still doing well. New peas and other pulses are coming into the market. Prices are stationary. Public health is good.
	31 Chumpanun, " 9 "	Nil	Weather—nice and cool at night; hot during the day. The prospects of the rubber crops are fair throughout the district. Towards the south and east of the district (Tataria and Madhooaban) these crops are very promising. The average outturn would be, as reported in the previous week, 10 annas. Food-grain market is steady. Indigo sowings have commenced. Opium prospects are not favourable.
BHAGALPORE DIVISION.	32 Monghyr, " 9 "	Nil	West wind prevailing. State and prospects of the crops are excellent.
	33 Bhagalpore, " 9 "	Nil	Nights and mornings are cool. Days are warm and bright. Prospects of the rubber crops are very favourable. No further rise in prices this week. Health is good.
	34 Purneah, " 9 "	Nil	Weather—fair and mild. Westerly winds have been prevalent. The outturn of the crops harvested is good. The rubber crops generally are of excellent promise. The dhadoi sowing has commenced; light rain for this crop is required.
	35 Maldah, " 9 "	Nil	Weather—fair. State and prospects of the crops are satisfactory. Cholera has broken out about Manickchuck where a native doctor has been sent; also with less severity in thana Nawabgunge. In all 23 deaths from cholera were reported during the week.
	36 Sonthal Pergahs, " 9 "	Nil	Weather—still cool. No change in the state and prospects of the crops since last week's report. There is some small-pox and cholera about, but not so as to cause alarm.
ORISSA.
ORISSA DIV.	37 Cuttack, Mar. 9 '78	Nil	Weather—fine and hot. The dalus crop is progressing well, and is in the ear in some places. Public health is generally good.
	38 Pooree, " 7 "	0.07	Weather—warm for the season. Sarad rice, kutthi and mandia crops are almost harvested. Dalus rice is suffering from want of rain. Common rice is selling generally at a rupee for 11½ to 15½ seers. Export of rice to the Madras Presidency continues. The state of the poor people in the tract between the Chilka and the sea has improved, as they are now getting employment in salt manufacture; but in that part of the country rice is selling at a rupee for 9 seers and 14 chittacks. Public health is good.
	39 Balasore, " 8 "	Nil	Weather—fine and dry. The condition of the crops is satisfactory. A few deaths from cholera and small-pox have occurred.
CHOTA NAGPORE.
	South-West Frontier Agency.
	40 Manasroogh, Mar. 8 '78	Nil	The temperature is still below the usual average. No change to report about the crops. There is very little now on the ground. Export still continues and prices are rising. General health is good.
	41 Lohardugga, " 9 "	Nil	Weather—seasonable. The mohas promises well. Exportation continues and prices are still rising. A few cases of small-pox and cholera have been reported from the Palamow-sub-division.
	42 Singbhoon, " 8 "	Nil	Weather—seasonable. Nothing new to report about the crops. The district is healthy.
	43 Manbhoon, " 9 "	Nil	Weather—seasonable. Mornings are cool. Days are getting hot. The mohas crop is the one in which the district is interested chiefly at present. It has blossomed and prospects are fair. What wheat, grain, and kharif there are in the Gobindpore sub-division are reported good.

NOTE.

Barometric Pressure.—The pressures in column 2 of the above table for all stations below 500 feet are reduced from those given in column 3 of the table on the previous page, by adding the weight of a column of air of the temperatures given in column 18. For stations above 500 feet elevation the reduction is made by Captain Allan Cunningham's table, "Prof. papers on Indian Engineering, No. CXIII." The temperatures at the sea-level are taken from column 3 of the above table.

Temperature.—The temperatures in column 3 are reduced from those in column 18 on the preceding page, by adding 1° Fahrenheit for every 450 feet.

Wind Resultant.—The resultant wind direction and its comparative predominance are calculated from the whole number of wind observations recorded during the month. The relative predominance in the direction of the resultant is given as a percentage of the whole number of observations. The direction is computed in the usual way by Lambert's formula.

Cloud.—This column gives the average proportion of clouded sky, a cloudless sky being indicated by 0, and one completely overcast by 10.

The above, being all comparable, afford the data for constructing a meteorological chart for the month which will show the isobaric and isothermal lines and the resultant wind directions, which last may be represented by arrows of varying length, proportioned to the prevalence of the wind. To these may be added the rainfall from the previous tables.

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from observations made at 6h., 10h., 16h and 22h.; the maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard (Newman's No. 86) formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The direction and movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

HENRY F. BLANFORD,

Meteorological Reporter to the Government of India.

Reports of Fluctuation of Traffic on the Eastern Bengal Railway for the four weeks ending 23rd February 1878.

EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY COMPANY, TRAFFIC SUPERINTENDENT'S OFFICE.

Report on the Traffic for the four weeks ending the 23rd February 1878.

Dated Calcutta, the 4th March 1878.

From—W. INNES, Esq., Acting Traffic Superintendent,

To—The Agent, Eastern Bengal Railway, Sealdah.

The weight of goods carried by the Eastern Bengal Railway during the above period amounted to 7,82,173 maunds. This, as compared with the corresponding period of 1877, shows an increase of 86,708 maunds, which is accounted for mainly by the increased traffic in jute, miscellaneous goods, piece-goods, foreign railway materials, turmeric, and salt, over balancing a decrease of nearly 1,98,000 maunds in the rice and grain traffic, 28,000 maunds in sugar, nearly 31,000 in seeds, and over 6,000 in tobacco.

Increases.

Drums of jute	Mds.	1,49,853
Bales of do.	"	84,088
This is owing to better prices offering in the jute market.
Miscellaneous goods	Mds.	73,705
This traffic is from its scarcely definite nature uncertain, and it is not easy to determine with exactness the various influences regulating it; but no doubt the opening of the Northern Bengal State Railway may be held to have had a stimulating effect.
Piece-goods	Mds.	9,876
This traffic again shows a very satisfactory increase, and may be expected to keep pace with the rising welfare of the people.
Railway material, foreign	Mds.	9,438
This is of course due to the Northern Bengal State Railway, and may be expected to continue.
Turmeric	Mds.	6,230
This staple continues to show a very satisfactory increase, the demand being regulated by the seasons and its consumption.
Salt	Mds.	5,485
This traffic also continues steadily to show a satisfactory increase.
Hides, bundles of	Mds.	2,513
This shows a fair increase.

Decreases.

Grain, including rice	Mds.	1,97,960
This is chiefly owing to the diminished demand for supply to the famine stricken districts.
Sugar	Mds.	28,029
This is unsatisfactory, but may be expected to improve as the season advances. There is, however, no doubt but that the decreased demand from the large districts effected by famine has had a depressing influence on this traffic.
Seeds	Mds.	20,801
This is also unsatisfactory, this being the season for seed traffic; however, the remarks on the grain decrease may perhaps hold good here.
Tobacco, bundles of	Mds.	6,295
The fluctuations in this traffic are capricious and can scarcely be anticipated, the influences effecting it being in a measure uncertain.
Gunny, bales of	Mds.	2,808
This traffic is of course mostly dependent on the fluctuations in the demand for grain, seed, sugar, &c. for which bags are required.
I attach the usual statement of increases and decreases.

The Calcutta Gazette.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 20, 1878.

PART III.

Act of the Bengal Council.

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[Third Publication.]

THE following Act, passed by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in Council, received the assent of His Highness the Maharaja on the 14th February 1878; and having been published by the Governor-General on the 14th idem, is hereby published for general information:—

Act No. I of

An Act for the Licensing of Trades, and Industries within the territories subject to the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal.

WHEREAS, in order to provide means for defraying the public expenditure from time to time incurred and to be incurred for the relief and prevention of famine in British India, it is necessary to effect a permanent increase of the revenue; and it is therefore expedient that persons carrying on trades, dealings, and industries in the territories administered by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal should take out licenses and pay for the same; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

PART I.

Preliminary.

1. This Act may be called "The Bengal License Act, 1878," and it shall come into force from the date on which it may be published in the Calcutta Gazette with the assent of the Governor-General.

Parts I, II, and V of this Act apply to all the territories subject to the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal including the Town of Calcutta; Part III applies to all such territories except the Town of Calcutta; and Part IV applies only to the Town of Calcutta.

2. In this Act, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context—

"Collector."

"Collector" means the Chief Officer in charge of the revenue administration of a district.

"The Commissioners," except in Part IV, mean the Commissioners defined in Bengal Act V of 1876, and in Part IV, the Commissioners defined in Bengal Act IV of 1870.

"Local Government" means the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal for the time being, or the person acting in that capacity.

"Section."

"Section" means a section of this Act.

3. Nothing in this Act shall be deemed to affect the tax on professions, trades, and callings imposed for municipal purposes by Bengal Act IV of 1876.

4. Nothing in this Act shall be deemed to apply to persons earning their livelihood solely by agriculture, or to any cultivator of land as such in respect of the sale of the produce of his land, who he shall not keep a shop or stall for the sale of such produce, or to any receiver of rent in kind in respect of the sale of produce received as such rent.

PART II.

General Provisions applicable in all Districts.

5. Every person who, on or after the first day of April 1878, falls under any of the heads of the Schedules hereto annexed, and carries on (whether on behalf of himself or any other person) his trade, dealing, or industry in any district situated in the said territories, shall take out a license under this Act in such district, and shall pay for the same the annual fee specified in the same Schedules as payable by persons of the class to which he belongs. Provided that no person whose annual earnings from his trade, dealing, or industry carried on within such district are less than one hundred rupees shall be required to take out a license under this Act.

For the purposes of this Act the Town of Calcutta shall be deemed to be a separate district.

6. Such license shall be granted by the Collector of such district, or by such officer as he may appoint in this behalf; and in Calcutta, by the Chairman of the Municipal Commissioners.

7. Every such license shall specify—

- (a) the date of the grant thereof;
- (b) the name, father's name, residence, caste, if any, and the trade, dealing, or industry of the licensee;
- (c) the fee paid for the license;
- (d) the place or places within such district at which the licensee intends to carry on his trade, dealing, or industry for the ensuing year;
- (e) the term for which such license shall remain in force; and shall be received in evidence as prima facie proof of all matters contained therein.

8. Every such license shall have effect in such district only, and shall continue in force from the day of the date thereof until the first day of April next after the day of the granting thereof.

9. Every person to whom any such license has been granted, and who desires to continue to carry on his trade, dealing, or industry in such district after the expiration thereof, shall take out a fresh license for that purpose for the following year, to expire on the day appointed in the last preceding section, and shall renew the same so long as he desires to carry on such trade, dealing, or industry.

PART III.

Applicable to all districts except Calcutta.

10. As soon as may be after the commencement of this Act and the first day of January in every subsequent year, the Collector shall prepare a list of the persons in the district aforesaid to be licensed under this Act. Such list shall state—

- (a) the trade, dealing, or industry of each of the persons therein named;
- (b) the class and grade under which he is charged; and
- (c) the fee to be paid for his license.

Such list shall be in such language as the local Government may direct; but a copy thereof in the language of the district shall be filed in the Office of the Collector, and shall be open to public inspection at all reasonable times without any payment.

The local Government shall have power to declare what shall, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be the language of the district.

11. The Collector may, by a notice in writing, require the occupier of any house, manufactory, or shop to forward to him a statement in writing signed by the occupier of the names of all persons residing in such house or within such manufactory or shop, and of their respective trades, dealings, industries, or occupations.

12. The Collector shall from time to time determine under which of the classes or grades mentioned in Schedule A hereto annexed every person required to take out a license under this Act shall be charged, and shall prepare or amend the said list accordingly.

13. A person or firm carrying on several trades, dealings, or industries, in the same district, and coming under more than one of the designations in the said Schedule, shall be chargeable only under one of the said designations at the discretion of the Collector. And in the case of a firm, payment by any one of the partners shall, for the purposes of this Act, be considered payment by the firm.

14. The Collector may, subject to such rules as the local Government may lay down, remit the whole or any part of the fee payable under this Act by any person who may carry on his trade, dealing, or industry for a portion of the year only.

15. The list, or such part or parts thereof as the Collector thinks fit, shall be published in the principal bazars, and at all police-stations of all towns, and at all sub-divisional offices, police-stations, and outposts in the district, and at some conspicuous place in all villages concerned, together with a notification setting forth the Schedule hereto annexed applicable to the district and directing that if any person falling under any of the classes specified in the said Schedule, whether he is mentioned in such list or not, carries his trade or dealing in the said district, payment of the fee specified in the list shall be made by him, or, when he is not mentioned in such list, of the fee mentioned in the said schedule as payable by persons of the class and grade to which he belongs, must be made by him within sixty days of the date of the publication of the notification, and within sixty days next after the first day of April of each succeeding year.

16. When a statement in writing has been furnished to the Collector under section eleven, from which it appears that any person in the employ of any other person, company, or corporation is chargeable with fees under this Act, the Collector may require the employer of such person to deduct the amount of his fee from any salary or wages due to such person, and to pay it to the Collector on his behalf.

17. Any person mentioned in the list referred to in section ten and objecting to the class or grade in which he is charged, may, within thirty days after its publication, or within such further time as the Collector may in each case think fit, apply by petition to the Collector in order to establish his right to have his name transferred to another class or grade, or altogether removed from the list.

18. The Collector shall fix a day for the hearing of the petition; and on the day so fixed, or on such subsequent day as he may from time to time direct, shall hear the same, and pass such order thereon as he thinks fit.

Provided that if, in the judgment of the Collector, the petitioner is able to shew that the fee which has been charged exceeds two per cent. upon his annual earnings in his trade, dealing, or industry within the district, such excess shall, for the purpose of section seventeen, be deemed a valid ground of objection, and the Collector shall thereupon order the petitioner's name to be transferred to another class or grade, or to be altogether removed from the list. The Collector may also, on this ground, at any time reduce the amount of fee payable by any person under class V of Schedule A hereto annexed to the fee payable under class VI.

19. There shall be no appeal from an order of a Collector under section eighteen; but where the order is passed by any officer subordinate to a Collector, an appeal shall lie to the Collector, or to some officer specially empowered by the local Government in this behalf, whose decision shall be final. Every petition of appeal under this section shall be accompanied by a copy of the order complained of, and be presented within fifteen days of the date of such order. In computing the said period of fifteen days, the day on which the order complained of was made, and the time requisite for obtaining a copy of the same, shall be deducted.

20. The Collector may, for the purpose of enabling him to determine under which of the said classes or grades the petitioner should be charged, summon and enforce the attendance of witnesses and compel them to give evidence, and compel the production of documents by the same means and, as far as possible, in the same manner as is provided in the case of a civil court by the Code of Civil Procedure.

Provided that the Collector shall not, in the course of any proceedings under this section, call for any evidence except at the instance of the petitioner, or in order to ascertain the correctness of facts alleged by him.

21. If after expiry of the period mentioned in the notification published under section fifteen for payment of the amount specified therein, any person carries on his trade, dealing, or industry without having taken out a license as required by this Act, he shall be liable, by order of the Collector, to pay a fine not exceeding thrice the amount payable by him in respect of such license, exclusive of the amount so payable; and on receipt of such payment the Collector shall grant him a license.

22. All sums due under section twenty-one, and all fees payable under this Recovery of fees and penalties.

Act, shall, where the amount exceeds fifty rupees, be recoverable either as if they were arrears of land revenue, or by distress and sale of the moveable property of the person liable, at the discretion of the Collector. In all other cases they shall be recoverable by distress and sale of the moveable property of the person liable.

The provisions of sections 113, 114, 115, and 119 of Bengal Act V of 1876 shall apply, as far as possible, to warrants of distress and sale issued by the Collector under this section; and no tools or implements of trade or agriculture shall be distrained or sold under any such warrant.

23. No sums due under this Act shall be recoverable by any process of law after the expiry of three months from the last day of the year in respect of which they are payable.

Limitation.

24. Every person holding a license under this Act shall produce and show such license when required so to do by an officer generally or specially empowered in writing by the Collector to make such requisition.

Licenses to be produced on demand.

But, save so far as is provided in section twenty-nine, no person shall be proceeded against for neglect or refusal to produce such license except at the instance of the Collector.

Prosecution to be at instance of Collector.

25. Courts of Wards, and receivers, and managers appointed by any court in British India shall be chargeable under this Act in respect of any trade, dealing, or industry of which the income is officially in their possession or under their control.

Courts of Wards, receivers, and managers chargeable.

26. When any trustee, guardian, curator, committee, or agent is charged under this Act in such capacity, or when any Court of Wards, or receiver, or manager appointed by any court is charged under this Act, every court and person so charged may, from time to time, out of the money coming to its or his possession as such trustee, guardian, curator, committee or agent, or as such Court of Wards, receiver, or manager, retain so much as is sufficient to pay the fee charged.

Power to trustee, &c., to retain money for payment of fee.

Every such person or court is hereby indemnified for every retention and payment made in pursuance of this Act.

27. The Collector may require the Commissioners, and the punchait of any union constituted under Power to require returns from municipalities.

Bengal Act V of 1876, or any village punchait appointed under Bengal Act VI of 1870, to furnish, within a period to be specified under the orders of the local Government, returns showing the names and numbers of persons chargeable under this Act resident within the limits of their municipality, union, or village, together with the class under which they respectively fall and the fees payable by them respectively.

If the Commissioners or the punchait fail within the period prescribed to make such returns, or if they make such returns and the Collector has reason to doubt their accuracy, he may at any time revise the return or cause a return showing the names, numbers, and classes aforesaid to be prepared in such manner as may be prescribed by the local Government.

Such return, when finally accepted or settled by the Collector, shall be deemed to be the list referred to in section ten.

On the presentation of a petition of objection under section seventeen by any person entered in such list, the Collector may either dispose of it himself, or may refer it to any officer specially empowered by Government under section nineteen, or to a bench of not less than three Commissioners, whose decision shall be final.

Petition of objection.

28. When the return mentioned in the last preceding section has been furnished or prepared for any municipality, station, or union, the local Notice to municipalities.

Government may call upon the Commissioners, or may direct the Magistrate in the case of a union, to pay to the Collector, within a period to be named by the local Government, a sum calculated on such return in accordance with the provisions of this Act, after such deduction for necessary expenses as the local Government may fix.

29. The Commissioners and Magistrate as aforesaid may take proceedings under sections twenty-one and twenty-four for the recovery of any penalties and fines; and shall exercise the powers conferred on a Collector by section twenty-four.

All such penalties and fines shall, when so recovered, be credited to the Municipal, Station, or Union Fund, as the case may be.

30. The Commissioners and the Magistrate, as aforesaid, shall have the same powers of recovering the fees chargeable under this Act within the limits of their municipality, station, or union that they have for the realization of municipal taxes under Bengal Act V of 1876. Where the amount due exceeds fifty rupees, and it cannot be recovered in the manner above provided, application may be made by the Commissioners or Magistrate aforesaid to the Collector, and the Collector shall thereupon proceed to recover it as an arrear of land revenue. The said Commissioners or Magistrate may also appropriate any part of the revenues of their municipality, station, or union for the payment of any sum leviable from it under section twenty-eight; and if the sum so leviable is not paid at due date, the local Government may order it, or any part of it, to be deducted from any funds standing to the credit of the municipality, station, or union in any Government treasury.

31. No person who pays fees under this Act shall, so long as he continues to pay the same, be liable to pay any instalment of road cess or public works cess on his house under Part IV of Bengal Act X of 1871, or section 7 of Bengal Act II of 1877, falling due after the first day of April 1878.

32. All or any of the powers and duties conferred and imposed by this Act on a Collector may, subject to the orders of the Collector of the district, be exercised and performed by any Assistant or Deputy Collector, or by such other officer as the local Government shall from time to time appoint in this behalf.

PART IV.

Special Provisions for the Town of Calcutta.

33. From every person who shall within the town of Calcutta exercise any of the trades, dealings, industries, or callings included in the classes specified in Schedule B hereto annexed, the Commissioners shall levy the fees shown in the said Schedule, and shall pay to the local Government annually a sum to be fixed by such Government, and calculated on the proceeds of such fees. For the purposes of this Part, any person working or carrying on business in Calcutta shall be deemed to be a resident of Calcutta; and the Town of Calcutta shall be deemed to include all places within the local limits of the ordinary original jurisdiction of the High Court of Judicature of Port William in Bengal, including Port William itself, the river Hooghly within Port limits, the Esplanade, and Coolie Bazar now called Hastings.

34. The provisions of sections ten, eleven, twelve, thirteen, fourteen, fifteen, sixteen, seventeen, twenty, twenty-one, twenty-three, twenty-four, twenty-five and twenty-six, shall be in force in the Town of Calcutta, and all the powers of a Collector under the said sections shall be exercised by the Chairman of the Commissioners, or by some person or persons authorized by him in that behalf.

35. On the presentation of a petition of objection under section seventeen, the Chairman may either himself dispose of it, or may refer it for disposal to a bench of not less than three Commissioners. The Chairman or any such bench may reduce the amount of fee payable by any person under the said Schedule B to the fee payable under any lower class or grade of that schedule, on its being shown to his or their satisfaction that the fee charged exceeds two per cent. upon the annual earnings of such petitioner in his trade, dealing, or industry carried on within the limits of the said Town of Calcutta; and the Chairman shall amend the list published under section fifteen in accordance with the orders passed upon such petition.

There shall be no appeal from any order passed under this section.

36. The Commissioners shall have the same powers for the recovery of all sums due under this Part that they have for the realization of municipal rates under Bengal Act IV of 1874.

PART V.

Miscellaneous.

37. From the nett amount of all fees and penalties paid or recovered under this Act other than those credited to Municipal Station, or Union Funds under section twenty-nine, after deducting the expense of collection, so much as the Governor-General in Council from time to time directs shall be applied, in such manner as the Governor-General in Council thinks fit, for the purpose of increasing the revenues available for defraying expenditure incurred or to be incurred for the relief and prevention of famine in the territories administered by the local Government, or, if the Governor-General in Council so directs, in any other part of British India.

The residue (if any) of such nett amount shall be carried to the credit of the local Government.

38. Every person shall be legally bound to furnish information to any officer or person exercising any of the powers of a Collector under this Act when required by him to do so.

39. The local Government may from time to time (a) exempt from the operation of this Act any portion of the territories subject to such Government, or any persons or class of persons in such territories, and may (b) make rules consistent with this Act—

- (1) for defining more precisely the classes of persons liable under this Act;
- (2) for regulating the time and manner of collecting the fees charged under this Act;
- (3) for reducing the fees chargeable to members of the same family when living and working together;
- (4) for providing in any case or class of cases for serving notices on persons charged under this Act; and
- (5) generally for the guidance of officers in all matters connected with the enforcement of this Act,

PART IV.

Bill of the Bengal Council.

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Bill was read in the Council of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 14th March 1878, and was referred to a Select Committee who are to report thereon in three weeks:—

A Bill for the Regulation of the Rural Police in the Districts of Hazaribagh and Lohardugga.

PART I.

PRELIMINARY.

WHEREAS it is expedient to make provision for the appointment, dismissal, and maintenance of village policemen and other rural police in the districts of Hazaribagh and Lohardugga; It is enacted as follows:—

1. This Act may be called the Hazaribagh and Lohardugga Rural Police Act, and it shall come into force from the date on which it may be published in the Calcutta Gazette with the assent of the Governor-General.

2. Section 21, Regulation XX of 1817, shall be repealed so far as it relates to the districts of Hazaribagh and Lohardugga.

3. In this Act, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context—

“Deputy Commissioner” means the chief officer charged with the executive administration of a district in criminal matters.

“Headman” means the person entrusted with collecting the village rents, by whatever designation he may be called.

“Road patrol” includes ghatwals, digwars, and all other persons, by whatever name they may be called, who are engaged in the performance of the duties assigned by this Act to road patrols.

“Under-tenure holder” means the holder of an under-tenure of any kind whatsoever.

“Village.” “Village” includes a group of villages.

“Village policeman.” “Village policeman” includes chowkidars, gorais, and kotwars.

“Zemindar” means the person whose name is registered in the general register of lands paying revenue directly to Government as the proprietor of an estate so paying revenue, or the person whose name is registered in the general register of revenue-free lands as proprietor of a revenue-free tenure.

PART II.

VILLAGE POLICE.

4. The Deputy Commissioner shall determine the number of village policemen to be appointed for each village within his district: provided that there shall be at least two village policemen appointed for every village in which there are one hundred and fifty houses, and one additional village policeman for every complete number of one hundred houses beyond such number of one hundred and fifty.

5. Where there are fewer than seventy-five houses in a village, the Deputy Commissioner may join such village to the nearest villages, and appoint one village policeman for two or more villages: provided that where two or more villages are joined together, one village policeman shall not have charge of more than one hundred and twenty-five houses.

6. The Deputy Commissioner shall from time to time determine the monthly salaries of the village policemen: provided that such salaries shall not be less than one rupee eight annas, nor more than three rupees per mensem for each village policeman.

7. The amount required for the salaries of the village policemen shall be raised by an assessment on each village; and all owners or occupiers of houses in any village, and every zemindar or under-tenur holder who has a bhandar or cutchery for the collection of rent within the village, shall be liable to assessment for the purposes of this Act.

8. The amount payable by each village shall be fixed by the Deputy Commissioner, and thereupon the headman of such village shall prepare a list showing the amount payable monthly by each person liable to assessment in such village.

Such list shall be filed in the police-station within the limits of which each village is situated, and, after being sanctioned by the Deputy Commissioner, shall remain in force as long as the amount assessed on the village remains unaltered: provided that if the headman neglect to prepare the list within three months from the fixing by the Deputy Commissioner of the amount payable by the village, the Deputy Commissioner may cause such list to be prepared by such means as shall seem to him proper.

9. The amount at which each person is assessed under the last preceding section shall be fixed according to the circumstances and the property to be protected of such person: provided that the amount to be assessed on any one person shall not exceed one rupee per mensem in the case of a zemindar, under-tenure holder, or trader, nor eight annas in the case of an ordinary ryot; provided also that all persons who, in the opinion of the Deputy Commissioner, are too poor to pay half an anna per mensem, shall be exempted from assessment.

10. The Deputy Commissioner may from time to time alter the amount assessed on any village.

Notice of such alteration shall be given to the headman of the village before the month of Magh in the year preceding the year in which the alteration is to take effect.

When any such alteration is made, the headman shall prepare and submit revised lists of the sums payable by each person.

11. Any person dissatisfied with the amount at which he has been assessed by the headman of his village may apply to the Deputy Commissioner, either orally or in writing, for a revision of the assessment, and the Deputy Commissioner may confirm or amend the assessment.

12. Every assessment shall be payable by equal monthly or quarterly instalments, as may appear most convenient to the Deputy Commissioner, and the instalments on account of each month or quarter shall be due on the first day of such month or quarter.

13. The headman of each village shall collect the assessment payable by each of the persons in such village, and shall grant receipts for the same, and shall pay thereout the salaries, month by month, of the village policemen.

14. Whenever the salary due for any month is not paid in full to any village policeman on or before the fifteenth day of the next succeeding month, such village policeman may apply to the Deputy Commissioner, who shall call upon the holder of the village, whether he be a zemindar or an under-tenure holder, to show cause within fifteen days why he should not pay the amount due to such village policeman.

15. If the said holder of the village fail to show sufficient cause as aforesaid, the Deputy Commissioner may call upon him to pay the arrear of salary due to such village policeman within fifteen days, and, in default, may attach his holding, and retain possession of the same until the amount due has been recovered out of the income derivable therefrom.

16. When any zemindar or under-tenure holder has paid any arrears of salary due to any village policeman under the last preceding section, such zemindar or under-tenure holder may apply to the Deputy Commissioner for the attachment and sale of the movable property of any person in the village who has failed to pay the amount assessed on him.

17. The Deputy Commissioner shall thereupon issue a writing in the form in Schedule A hereto annexed signed by him authorizing the village policeman, or such other person as may be therein named, to levy, by the distraint and sale of a sufficient portion of the movable property of such defaulters, the amount of their respective arrears, together with sums equal to a proportionate share of the cost of the distraint.

18. The person so authorized shall seize and keep in his own custody such portion of the movable property of such defaulters as he shall deem sufficient, and shall make an inventory of all movable property so seized, and shall at the same time give notice by beat of drum of the time and place where such movable property shall be sold.

The time of sale shall not be less than five nor more than ten days from the time of the proclamation thereof.

19. If any defaulter does not, before the time of sale, pay the amount specified in the notice, the moveable property distrained, or such portion of it as may be necessary, shall be sold by public outcry at the place and time specified, and the proceeds shall be applied in discharge of the sums entered in the notice, and the surplus, if any, shall be returned to the owner of the distrained property.

20. Whenever any person whose name has been included in any list of defaulters disputes his liability to pay the amount mentioned in such list, or any portion thereof, he may apply to the Deputy Commissioner either orally or in writing, stating the grounds of his objection, and the Deputy Commissioner shall examine his objection and pass such order thereon as to him shall seem proper.

Salaries to be raised by assessment and persons liable to assessment.

Application by village policeman for payment of his salary.

Procedure to compel payment.

Application for repayment of sums paid by zemindar or under-tenure holder.

Power to distraint for rates.

Manner of executing distress.

Sale in execution of warrant.

Objection to levy how to be made.

Alteration of assessment.

Power to review assessment.

Rate payable monthly in advance.

Collection of assessment.

21. No arrears of any assessment payable under this Act shall be levied by distress after the expiration of one year from the day on which the same shall have become due.

Distress not to be levied after a year.

22. No distress levied under this Act shall be deemed unlawful, nor shall any party making the same be deemed a trespasser, on account of any defect or want of form in any list, assessment, notice, summons, power, writing, inventory, or other proceeding relating thereto, nor shall such party be deemed a trespasser from the commencement on account of any irregularity afterwards committed by him; but all persons aggrieved by such irregularities may recover full satisfaction for any special damage sustained by them in any court of competent jurisdiction, subject to the provisions of section 86 of this Act.

Irregularities not to avoid distress.

Duties of village policeman.

23. Every village policeman appointed under this Act shall perform the following duties:—

1st.—He shall give immediate information to the officer in charge of the police-station within the limits of which the village of which he is village policeman is situated of every unnatural, suspicious, or sudden death which may occur, and of every offence specified in Schedule B hereto annexed which may be committed within such village, and he shall further keep the police informed of all disputes which are likely to lead to any riot or serious affray.

2nd.—He shall arrest all proclaimed offenders and all persons whom he may find in the act of committing any offence specified in Schedule B hereto annexed.

3rd.—He shall observe and, from time to time, report to the officer in charge of the police-station within the limits of which such village may be situated the movements of all bad characters in such village.

4th.—He shall report to the officer in charge of such police-station the arrival of suspicious characters in the neighbourhood.

5th.—He shall present himself at such station twice in each week if such station be within two miles of such village, and if it be more remote, once in each week or once in each fortnight, as the Deputy Commissioner may direct.

6th.—He shall supply any local information which the Deputy Commissioner or any officer of police may require.

24. Whenever the village policeman arrests any person, he shall forthwith take the person so arrested to the police-station within the limits of which the village of which he is village policeman is situated: provided that if the arrest is made at night, such person shall be so taken as soon as convenient on the following morning.

Procedure on arrest by village policeman.

PART III.

ROAD POLICE.

25. As soon as may be after the commencement of this Act, the Deputy Commissioner shall prepare a list showing what zemindars or under-tenure holders within his district hold their tenures subject to a condition, either expressed or implied, of protecting lines of roads or passes, and shall fix the number of road patrols to be kept up for such roads or passes, and the salary to be paid monthly to each road patrol: provided that such salary shall in no case be less than two rupees or more than five rupees per mensem.

List of zemindars and under-tenure holders liable for maintenance of road police to be prepared.

26. A copy of the entry in such list affecting him shall be given to each such zemindar or under-tenure holder.

Copy of entry to be given to each zemindar or under-tenure holder.

If any zemindar or under-tenure holder is dissatisfied with such entry, he may appeal within thirty days of the receipt of the copy of the entry to the Commissioner, who shall pass such order as to him seems proper.

27. All zemindars and under-tenure holders specified in the said list shall pay the amount entered therein against their names to the District Superintendent of Police monthly, who shall pay the same to the road patrols to whom it may be due.

Payments to whom to be made.

28. If the amount due from any zemindar or under-tenure holder for any month is unpaid after the fifteenth day of the next succeeding month, the said District Superintendent shall report the matter to the Deputy Commissioner, who shall thereupon issue a notice calling on the defaulting zemindar or under-tenure holder to pay the same, together with the costs of serving the notice, within fifteen days from the service of the notice.

Procedure on default of payment.

29. If the amount due is not paid within the time specified, or if the zemindar or under-tenure holder refuses to pay such amount, the Deputy Commissioner may attach the holding of such zemindar or under-tenure holder, and retain possession of the same until the amount due has been recovered out of the income derivable therefrom.

Attachment of tenure.

30. If any under-tenure holder refuses as aforesaid, the Deputy Commissioner may attach his holding and make it over to the zemindar or other superior landlord under whom such under-tenure holder holds, on the condition that such zemindar or other superior landlord agree to pay the amount of the assessment.

Cancellation of tenure.

31. Every road patrol appointed under this Act shall perform the following duties:—

Duties of road patrols.

1st.—He shall patrol the roads within his beat under instructions from the District Superintendent of Police, and shall protect all travellers passing along his beat.

2nd.—He shall arrest all proclaimed offenders, and all persons whom he may find in the act of committing any offence specified in Schedule B hereto annexed.

3rd.—He shall report to the officer in charge of the police-station within which his beat is situated the movements of all bad or suspicious characters along his beat, as well as all unusual circumstances that come to his notice.

4th.—He shall supply any local information which the Deputy Commissioner or any officer of police may require.

PART IV.

MISCELLANEOUS.

32. When any land has been granted to any road patrol in lieu of, or in addition to, his salary for the protection of any road or pass, such land shall be considered as ordinary ryotwari land; and the zemindar or under-tenure holder, who is responsible for the protection of such road or pass, shall be entitled to receive rent for such land at the same rate as is paid for similar land in the vicinity.

An order under the hand of the Deputy Commissioner in the form in Schedule C hereto annexed shall be furnished to such zemindar or under-tenure holder.

33. All village policemen and road patrols appointed under this Act shall be under the immediate orders of the District Superintendent of Police, and shall be appointed by him, subject to the approval of the Deputy Commissioner.

34. Subject to the approval of the Deputy Commissioner, the District Superintendent of Police may dismiss any village policeman or road patrol for any misconduct or neglect of duty.

35. Every village policeman or road patrol, who is guilty of any wilful misconduct in his office or neglect of his duty, such misconduct or neglect not being an offence within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code, and not being of so grave a character as in the opinion of the District Superintendent of Police to require his dismissal from his office, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding the amount of one month's salary.

36. No suit shall be brought against the Deputy Commissioner, nor any of his officers, nor against any person acting under his direction, for anything done, or purporting to be done, by them under this Act, until the expiration of one month next after notice in writing shall have been delivered, where the suit is brought against the Deputy Commissioner, at the office of the Deputy Commissioner, or where the suit is brought against his officer or any person as aforesaid, at the place of abode of such officer or person, stating the cause of action, and the name and abode of the intended plaintiff; and every such suit shall be commenced within three months next after the accrual of the cause of action, and not afterwards.

37. The Deputy Commissioner may, if he thinks fit, delegate all or any of the powers conferred on him by this Act to any officer in executive charge in criminal matters of any sub-division of his district, and such sub-divisional officer shall thereupon have control over all village policemen and road patrols stationed within the limits of such sub-division, subject to the supervision of the Deputy Commissioner.

38. The Commissioner of the division shall have a general controlling power over all proceedings of a Deputy Commissioner under this Act.

39. Nothing contained in this Act shall diminish or in any way affect any liability, duty, or obligation of any zemindar or other landholder under any law for the time being in force to report crimes or offences occurring within his estate or tenure.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE unsatisfactory state of the patrol police in the districts of Hazaribagh and Lohardugga has long attracted the attention of the Government, and finally led to an experiment which was tried some time back in Hazaribagh. The police were transferred from the irresponsible direction of the zemindars and placed under the immediate control of the District Superintendent of Police. At the same time the zemindars and under-tenants were compelled to fulfil their engagements, and supply funds for the payment of the men so transferred. This reform has realised all the anticipations of its promoters, and robberies and dacoities, which were not unfrequent, have now ceased on the roads patrolled under the new organization. The present Bill simply legalises and extends that organization, which has been already found to work so well.

It has also been a matter for consideration whether the Village Chowkidari Act (Bengal Act VI of 1870) should not be introduced into those districts. But officers of great experience, intimately acquainted with the customs of that part of the country, are opposed to the introduction of the Act in its entirety. They fear that the provisions regarding the appointment of panchaits, and others of minor importance, are unsuited to the people, and would not work well. With these exceptions, and such slight modifications as the circumstances of the two districts appear to require, the present Bill follows that Act.

72. Forest-officers deemed public servants.
73. Indemnity for acts done in good faith.
74. Forest-officers not to trade.

CHAPTER XIII.

SUBSIDIARY RULES.

75. Additional powers to make rules.
76. Penalties for breach of rules.
77. Rules when to have force of law.

CHAPTER XIV.

MISCELLANEOUS.

78. Persons bound to assist Forest-officer and Police-officers.
79. Management of forests the joint property of Government and other persons.
80. Failure to perform service for which a share in produce of Government forest is enjoyed.
81. Recovery of money due to Government.
82. Lien on forest-produce for such money. Power to sell such produce.
83. Land required under this Act to be deemed to be needed for a public purpose under Land Acquisition Act.

SCHEDULE.

An Act to amend the law relating to Forests, the transit of forest-produce, and the duty leviable on timber.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the law relating to Forests, the transit of forest-produce and the duty leviable on timber; It hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

1. This Act may be called "The Indian Forest Act, 1878."

It shall come into force at once in the territories respectively administered by the Governor of Bombay in Council, the Lieutenant-Governors of the Lower Provinces, the North-Western Provinces, and the Panjáb, (except the District of Hazára), and the Chief Commissioners of Oudh, the Central Provinces and Assam.*

And any other Local Government may from time to time, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, extend, by notification in the local official Gazette, this Act to all or any of the territories for the time being under its administration.

On and from the date on which this Act comes into force in any of the said territories, the enactments mentioned in the schedule hereto annexed shall be repealed in such territories. But all rules made under or validated by any of the said enactments and in force at the date of such repeal shall, so far as they are consistent with this Act, be deemed to have been made and published hereunder.

2. In this Act, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context,—

"Forest-officer" means any person whom the Governor General in Council, or the Local Government, or any officer empowered by the Governor General in Council or the Local Government in this behalf, may from time to time appoint by name, or as holding an office, to carry out all or any of the purposes of this Act, or to do anything required by this Act or any rule made under this Act to be done by a Forest-officer:

"Tree." "Tree" includes bamboos, stumps and brushwood:

"Timber" includes trees and bamboos when they have fallen or have been felled, and all wood, whether cut up, or fashioned or hollowed-out for cart-wheels, mortars, canoes or other purposes or not:

"Forest-produce" includes the following when found in, or brought from, a forest, that is to say,— minerals (including limestone and laterite), surface-soil, trees, timber, grass, peat, canes, creepers, reeds, leaves, moss, flowers, fruits, roots, juice, catechu, bark, honey, wax, lac, caoutchouc, gum, wood-oil, grass-oil, resin, varnish, silk-worms and cocoons, shells, skins, tusks, bones and horns:

"Forest-offence" means an offence punishable under this Act, or under any rule made under this Act:

"Cattle" includes elephants, camels, buffaloes, horses, mares, geldings, ponies, colts, fillies, mules, asses, pigs, rams, ewes, sheep, lambs, goats and kids:

"River" includes streams, canals, creeks and other channels, natural or artificial.

CHAPTER II.

OF RESERVED FORESTS.

3. The Local Government may from time to time constitute any forest-land or waste-land which is the property of Government, or over which the Government has proprietary rights, or to the whole or any part of the forest-produce of which the Government is entitled, a Reserved Forest in the manner hereinafter provided.

4. Whenever it is proposed to constitute any land a Reserved Forest, the Local Government may publish a notification in the local official Gazette—

(a) declaring that it is proposed to constitute such land a reserved forest;

(b) specifying the limits of such forest; and

(c) appointing an officer (hereinafter called "the Forest Settlement Officer") to inquire into and determine the existence, nature and extent of any rights alleged to exist in favour of any person in or over any land comprised within such limits, or in or over any forest-produce, and to deal with the same as provided in this chapter.

Explanation 1.—For the purpose of clause (b) of this section, it shall be sufficient to describe the limits of the forest by roads, rivers, ridges or other well-known or readily intelligible boundaries.

The officer appointed under clause (c) of this section shall ordinarily be a person not holding any forest-office except that of Forest Settlement Officer.

Nothing in this section shall prevent the Local Government from appointing any number of officers not exceeding three, not more than one of whom shall be a person holding any forest-office except as aforesaid, to perform the duties of a Forest Settlement Officer under this Act.

5. During the interval between the publication of such notification and the date fixed by the notification under section nineteen, no right shall be acquired in or over the land comprised in such notification, except by succession or under a grant or contract in writing made or entered into by or on behalf of Government or some person in whom such right was vested when the former notification was issued; and no fresh clearings for cultivation or for any other purpose shall be made in such land.

6. When a notification has been issued under section four, the Forest Settlement Officer shall publish in the language of the country, in every town and village in the neighbourhood of the land comprised therein, a proclamation—

(a) specifying the limits of the proposed forest;

(e) causes any damage by negligence in felling any tree or cutting or dragging any timber ;

(f) fells, girdles, lops, taps or burns any tree, or strips-off the bark or leaves from, or otherwise damages, the same ;

(g) quarries stone, burns lime or charcoal, or collects, subjects to any manufacturing process or removes, any forest-produce ;

(h) clears or breaks up any land for cultivation, or any other purpose ; or,

(i) in contravention of any rules which the Local Government may from time to time prescribe, kills or catches elephants, hunts, shoots, fishes, poisons water, or sets traps or snares ;

shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine not exceeding five hundred rupees, or with both, in addition to such compensation for damage done to the forest as the convicting Court may direct to be paid.

Nothing in this section shall be deemed to prohibit (a) any act done by permission in writing of the Forest-officer, or under any rule made by the Local Government ; or (b) the exercise of any right continued under section fourteen, clause (c), or created by grant or contract in writing made by or on behalf of Government under section twenty-two.

Whenever fire is caused wilfully or by gross negligence in a Reserved Forest, the Local Government may (notwithstanding that any penalty has been inflicted under this section) direct that in such forest or any portion thereof the exercise of all rights of pasture or to forest-produce shall be suspended for such period as it thinks fit.

26. The Local Government may, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, by notification in the local official Gazette, direct that, from a date fixed by such notification, any forest or any portion thereof reserved under this Act shall cease to be a Reserved Forest.

From the date so fixed, such forest or portion shall cease to be reserved ; but the rights (if any) which have been extinguished therein shall not revive in consequence of such cessation.

CHAPTER III.

OF VILLAGE-FORESTS.

27. The Local Government may from time to time assign to any village-community the rights of Government to or over any land which has been constituted a Reserved Forest, and may cancel such assignment. All forests so assigned shall be called Village-forests.

The Local Government may from time to time make rules for regulating the management of Village-forests, prescribing the conditions under which the community to which any such assignment is made may be provided with timber or other forest-produce, or pasture, and their duties for the protection and improvement of such forest.

All provisions of this Act relating to Reserved Forests shall (so far as they are consistent with the rules so made) apply to Village-forests.

CHAPTER IV.

OF PROTECTED FORESTS.

28. The Local Government may from time to time, by notification in the local official Gazette, declare the provisions of this chapter applicable to any forest-land or waste-land which is not included in a Reserved Forest, but which is the property of Government, or over which the Government has proprietary rights, or to the whole or any part of the forest-produce of which the Government is entitled.

The forest-land and waste-lands comprised in any such notification shall be called a "Protected Forest."

No such notification shall be made unless the nature and extent of the rights of Government and of private persons in or over the forest-land or waste-land comprised therein have been enquired into and recorded at a survey or settlement, or in such other manner as the Local Government thinks sufficient.

Every such record shall be presumed to be correct until the contrary is proved.

Provided that, if in the case of any forest-land or waste-land, the Local Government thinks that such enquiry and record are necessary, but that they will occupy such length of time as that the rights of Government will in the meantime be endangered, the Local Government may (pending such enquiry and record) declare such land to be a protected forest, but so as not to abridge or affect any existing rights of individuals or communities.

29. The Local Government may from time to time, by notification in the local official Gazette,—

(a) declare any class of trees in a protected forest, or any trees in any such forest, to be reserved from a date fixed by such notification ;

(b) declare that a portion of such forest be closed for such term not exceeding twenty years as the Local Government thinks fit, and that the rights of private persons (if any) over such portion shall be suspended during such term : provided that the remainder of such forest be sufficient, and in a locality reasonably convenient, for the due exercise of the rights suspended in the portion so closed ;

(c) prohibit, from a date fixed as aforesaid, the quarrying of stone, or the burning of lime or charcoal, or the collection or subjection to any manufacturing process, or removal, of any forest-produce, in any such forest, and the breaking up or clearing for cultivation, for building, for herding cattle or for any other purpose, any land in any such forest : and

(d) alter or cancel such declaration or prohibition.

30. The Collector or Deputy Commissioner of the district shall cause a translation into the language of the district, of every notification issued under section twenty-nine, to be affixed in a conspicuous place in every town and village in the neighbourhood of the forest comprised in the notification.

31. The Local Government may from time to time make rules to regulate the following matters :—

Power to make rules for protected forests.

(a) the cutting, sawing, conversion and removal of trees and timber, and the collection, manufacture and removal of forest-produce, from protected forests ;

(b) the granting of licenses to the inhabitants of towns and villages in the vicinity of protected forests to take trees, timber or other forest-produce for their own use, and the production and return of such licenses by such persons ;

(c) the granting of licenses to persons felling or removing trees or timber or other forest-produce from such forests for the purposes of trade, and the production and return of such licenses by such persons ;

(d) the payments (if any) to be made by the persons mentioned in clauses (b) and (c) of this section, for permission to cut such trees, or to collect and remove such timber or other forest-produce ;

(e) the other payments, if any, to be made by them in respect of such trees, timber and produce, and the places where such payments shall be made ;

(f) the examination of forest-produce passing out of such forests ;

(g) the clearing and breaking up of land for cultivation or other purposes in such forests ;

(h) the protection from fire of timber lying in such forests and of trees reserved under section twenty-nine ;

(i) the cutting of grass and pasturing of cattle in such forests ;

(j) killing or catching elephants, hunting, shooting, fishing, poisoning water, and setting traps or snares in such forests ;

(k) the protection and management of any portion of a forest closed under section twenty-nine ;

(l) the exercise of rights referred to in section twenty-eight.

Punishment for acts in contravention of notification under section 29.

32. Any person who commits any of the following offences :—

(a) fells, girdles, lops, taps or burns any tree reserved under section twenty-nine, or strips off the bark or leaves from, or otherwise damages, any such tree ;

(b) contrary to any prohibition under section twenty-nine, quarries any stone, or burns any lime or charcoal, or collects, subjects to any manufacturing process, or removes, any forest-produce ;

(c) contrary to any prohibition under section twenty-nine, breaks up or clears for cultivation or any other purpose any land in any protected forest ;

(d) sets fire to such forest, or kindles a fire without taking all reasonable precautions to prevent its spreading to any trees reserved under section twenty-nine, whether standing, fallen or felled, or to any closed portion of such forest ;

(e) leaves burning any fire kindled by him in the vicinity of any such trees or closed portion ;

(f) fells any tree or drags any timber so as to damage any tree reserved as aforesaid ;

(g) permits cattle to damage any such tree ;

(h) infringes any rule made under section thirty-one,

shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, or with both.

33. Nothing in this chapter shall be deemed to prohibit any act done with the permission in writing of the Forest-officer, or in accordance with rules made under section thirty-one, or (except as regards any portion of a forest closed under section twenty-nine) in the exercise of any right recorded under section twenty-eight.

CHAPTER V.

FORESTS UNDER CONSERVANCY ADMINISTRATION WHEN THIS ACT COMES INTO FORCE.

34. Within twelve months from the date on which this Act comes into force in the territories administered by any Local Government, such Government shall, after consideration of the rights of the Government and private persons in all forest-lands or waste-lands then under its executive control for purposes of Forest Conservancy, determine which of such lands (if any) can, according to justice, equity and good conscience, be classed as Reserved Forests or Protected Forests under this Act, and declare, by notification in the local official Gazette, any lands so classed to be Reserved or Protected Forests, as the case may be :

Provided that such declaration shall not affect any rights of the Government or private persons to or over any land or forest-produce in any such forest, which have, previous to the date of such declaration, been enquired into, settled and recorded in a manner which the Local Government thinks sufficient :

Provided also that if any such rights have not on such date been so enquired into, settled and recorded, the Local Government shall direct that the same shall be enquired into, settled and recorded in the manner provided by this Act for Reserved or Protected Forests, as the case may be ; and until such enquiry, settlement and record have been completed, no such declaration shall abridge or affect such rights.

CHAPTER VI.

OF THE CONTROL OVER FORESTS AND LANDS NOT BEING THE PROPERTY OF GOVERNMENTS.

35. The Local Government may from time to time, by notification in the local official Gazette, regulate or prohibit in any forest or waste-land—

(a) the breaking up or clearing of land for cultivation ;

(b) the pasturing of cattle ;

(c) the firing or clearing of the vegetation ;

when such regulation or prohibition appears necessary for any of the following purposes :—

First.—For protection against storms, winds, rolling stones, floods and avalanches ;

Second.—For the preservation of the soil on the ridges and slopes, and in the valleys, of hilly tracts, the prevention of landslips and of the formation of ravines and torrents, and the protection of land against erosion, or the deposit thereon of sand, stones or gravel ;

Third.—For the maintenance of a water-supply in springs, rivers and tanks ;

Fourth.—For the protection of roads, bridges, railways and other lines of communication ;

Fifth.—For the preservation of the public health ;

and may alter or cancel such notification.

The Local Government may, for any such purpose, construct at its own expense, in or upon any forest or waste-land, such work as it thinks fit :

Provided that no such notification shall be made or work begun until after the issue of a notice to the owner of such forest or land, calling on him to shew cause, within a reasonable period to be specified in such notice, why such notification should not be made or work constructed, and until his objections (if any) and any evidence he may produce in support of the same have been heard by an officer duly appointed in that behalf, and have been considered by the Local Government.

36. In case of neglect of, or wilful disobedience to, any regulation or prohibition under section thirty-five, or if the purposes of any work to be constructed under that section so require, the Local Government may, after notice in writing to the owner of such forest or land, and after considering his objections (if any), place the same under the control of a Forest officer, and may declare that all or any of the provisions of this Act relating to Reserved Forests shall apply to such forest or land.

The nett profits (if any) arising from the management of such forest or land shall be paid to the said proprietor.

37. In any case under this chapter in which the Local Government considers that, in lieu of placing the forest or land under the control of a Forest officer, the same should be acquired for public purposes, the Local Government may proceed to acquire it in the manner prescribed by the Land Acquisition Act, 1870.

The owner of any forest or land comprised in any notification under section thirty-five may, at any time not less than three or more than twelve years from the date thereof, require that such forest or land shall be acquired for public purposes, and the Local Government shall acquire such forest or land accordingly.

38. The owner of any land or, if there be more than one owner thereof, the request of owners owners of shares therein amounting in the aggregate to at least two-thirds thereof may, with a view to the formation or conservation of forests thereon, represent in writing to the Collector or Deputy Commissioner their desire—

(a) that such land be managed on their behalf by the Forest officer as a Reserved or a Protected Forest on such terms as may be mutually agreed upon ; or

(b) that all or any of the provisions of this Act be applied to such land.

In either case, the Local Government may, by notification in the local official Gazette, apply to such land such provisions of this Act as it thinks suitable to the circumstances thereof and as may be desired by the applicants.

Any such notification may be altered or cancelled by a like notification.

CHAPTER VII.

OF THE DUTY ON TIMBER.

39. The Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, may levy a duty in such manner, at such places, and at such rates, as it may from time to time prescribe by notification in the local official Gazette on all timber—

(a) which is produced in British India, and in respect of which the Government has any right ;

(b) which is brought from any place beyond the frontier of British India.

In every case in which such duty is directed to be levied ad valorem, the Local Government may, with the like sanction, from time to time fix, by like notification, the value on which such duty shall be assessed.

All duties on timber, which, at the time when this Act comes into force in any territory, are levied therein under the authority of the Local Government, shall be deemed to be and to have been duly levied under the provisions of this Act.

40. Nothing in this chapter shall be deemed to limit the amount (if any) chargeable as purchase-money or royalty on any timber or other forest-produce, although the same is levied on such timber or produce while in transit, in the same manner as duty is levied.

CHAPTER VIII.

OF THE CONTROL OF TIMBER AND OTHER FOREST-PRODUCE IN TRANSIT.

41. The control of all rivers and their banks as regards the floating of timber, as well as the control of all timber and other forest-produce in transit by land or water, is vested in the Local Government, and it may from time to time make rules to regulate the transit of all timber and other forest-produce.

Such rules may (among other matters)—

(a) prescribe the routes by which alone timber and other forest-produce may be imported, exported or moved, into, from, or within, British India ;

(b) prohibit the import and export or moving of such timber or other produce without a pass from an officer duly authorized to issue the same, or otherwise than in accordance with the conditions of such pass ;

(c) provide for the issue, production and return of such passes and for the payment of fees therefor ;

(d) provide for the stoppage, reporting, examination and marking of timber or other forest-produce in transit, in respect of which there is reason to believe that any money is payable to Government on account of the price thereof, or on account of any duty, fee, royalty or charge due thereon, or to which it is desirable for the purposes of this Act to affix a mark ;

(e) provide for the establishment and regulation of depôts to which such timber or other produce shall be taken by those in charge of it for examination, or for the payment of such money, or in order that such marks may be affixed to it; and the conditions under which such timber or other produce shall be brought to, stored at, and removed from, such depôt;

(f) prohibit the closing up or obstructing of the channel or banks of any river used for the transit of timber or other forest-produce, and the throwing of grass, brushwood, branches and leaves into any such river, or any act which may cause such river to be closed or obstructed;

(g) provide for the prevention and removal of any obstruction of the channel or banks of any such river, and for recovering the cost of such prevention or removal from the person whose acts or negligence necessitated the same;

(h) prohibit absolutely or subject to conditions, within specified local limits, the establishment of saw-pits, the converting, cutting, burning, concealing or marking of timber, the altering or effacing of any marks on the same, and the possession or carrying of marking-hammers or other implements used for marking timber;

(i) regulate the use of property-marks for timber, and the registration of such marks; prescribe the time for which such registration shall hold good; limit the number of such marks that may be registered by any one person, and provide for the levy of fees for such registration.

42. The Local Government may by such rules prescribe as penalties for the infringement thereof imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, or both.

Double penalties may be inflicted in cases where the offence is committed after sunset and before sunrise, or after preparation for resistance to lawful authority, or if the offender has been previously convicted of a like offence.

43. The Government shall not be responsible for any loss or damage which may occur in respect of any timber or other forest-produce while at a depôt established under a rule made under section forty-one, or while detained elsewhere for the purposes of this Act; and no Forest-officer shall be responsible for any such loss or damage unless he causes such loss or damage negligently, maliciously or fraudulently.

44. In case of any accident or emergency involving danger to any property at any such depôt, every person employed at such depôt, whether by the Government or by any private person, shall render assistance to any Forest-officer or Police-officer demanding his aid in averting such danger and securing such property from damage or loss.

CHAPTER IX.

OF THE COLLECTION OF DRIFT AND STRANDED TIMBER.

45. All timber found adrift, beached, stranded, or sunk;

all wood or timber bearing marks which have not been registered under section forty-one, or on which the marks have been obliterated, altered or defaced by fire or otherwise, and, in such areas as the Local Government directs, all unmarked wood and timber, shall be deemed to be the property of Government unless and until any person establishes his right and title thereto, as provided in this chapter.

Such timber may be collected by any Forest-officer or other person entitled to collect the same by virtue of any rule made under section fifty-one, and may be brought to such depôts as the Forest-officer may from time to time notify as depôts for the reception of drift-timber.

The Local Government may, by notification in the local official Gazette, exempt any class of timber from the provisions of this section, and withdraw such exemption.

46. Public notice shall from time to time be given by the Forest-officer, of timber collected under section forty-five. Such notice shall contain a description of the timber, and shall require any person claiming the same to present to such officer, within a period not less than two months from the date of such notice, a written statement of such claim.

47. When any such statement is presented as aforesaid, the Forest-officer may, after making such enquiry as he thinks fit, either reject the claim after recording his reasons for so doing, or deliver the timber to the claimant.

If such timber is claimed by more than one person, the Forest-officer may either deliver the same to any of such persons whom he deems entitled thereto, or may refer the claimants to the Civil Courts, and retain the timber pending the receipt of an order from any such Court for its disposal.

Any person whose claim has been rejected under this section may, within two months from the date of such rejection, institute a suit to recover possession of the timber claimed by him; but no person shall recover any compensation or costs against the Government, or against any Forest-officer, on account of such rejection, or the detention or removal of any timber, or the delivery thereof to any other person under this section.

No such timber shall be subject to process of any Civil, Criminal, or Revenue Court until it has been delivered, or a suit has been brought, as provided in this section.

48. If no such statement is presented as aforesaid, or if the claimant omits to prefer his claim in the manner and within the period prescribed by the notice issued under section forty-six, or, on such claim having been so preferred by him and having been rejected, omits to institute a suit to recover possession of such timber within the further period limited by section forty-seven, the ownership of such timber shall vest in the Government, or when such timber has been delivered to another person under section forty-seven, in such other person, free from all encumbrances.

49. The Government shall not be responsible for any loss or damage which may occur in respect of any timber collected under section forty-five, and no Forest-officer shall be responsible for any such loss or damage, unless he causes such loss or damage negligently, maliciously or fraudulently.

50. No person shall be entitled to recover possession of any timber collected or delivered as aforesaid until he has paid to the Forest-officer or other person entitled to receive it such sum on account thereof as may be due under any rule made in pursuance of section fifty-one.

Payments to be made by claimant before timber is delivered to him.

51. The Local Government may from time to time make rules to regulate the following matters (namely) :—
Power to make rules and prescribe penalties.

(a) the salving, collection and disposal of all timber mentioned in section forty-five;

(b) the use and registration of boats used in salving and collecting timber;

(c) the amounts to be paid for salving, collecting, moving, storing and disposing of such timber;

(d) the use and registration of hammers and other instruments to be used for marking such timber.

The Local Government may from time to time prescribe, as penalties for the infringement of any rules made under this section, imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, or both.

CHAPTER X.

PENALTIES AND PROCEDURE.

52. When there is reason to believe that a forest-offence has been committed in respect of any forest-produce, such produce, together with all tools, boats, carts and cattle used in committing any such offence, may be seized by any Forest-officer or Police-officer.
Seizure of property liable to confiscation.

Every officer seizing any property under this section shall place on such property a mark indicating that the same has been so seized, and shall, as soon as may be, make a report of such seizure to the Magistrate having jurisdiction to try the offence on account of which the seizure has been made:
Application for confiscation.

Provided that when the forest-produce with respect to which such offence is believed to have been committed is the property of Government and the offender is unknown, it shall be sufficient if the officer makes, as soon as may be, a report of the circumstances to his official superior.

53. Upon the receipt of any such report the Magistrate shall, with all convenient dispatch, take such measures as may be necessary for the arrest and trial of the offender and the disposal of the property according to law.
Procedure thereupon.

54. All timber or forest-produce which is not the property of Government and in respect of which a forest-offence has been committed, and all tools, boats, carts and cattle used in committing any forest-offence, shall be liable to confiscation.
Forest-produce, tools, &c., when liable to confiscation.

Such confiscation may be in addition to any other punishment prescribed for such offence.

55. When the trial of any forest-offence is concluded, any forest-produce in respect of which such offence has been committed shall, if it is the property of Government or has been confiscated, be taken charge of by a Forest-officer, and in any other case may be disposed of in such manner as the Court may direct.
Disposal, on conclusion of trial for forest-offence, of produce in respect of which it was committed.

56. When the offender is not known, or cannot be found, the Magistrate may, if he finds that an offence has been committed, order the property in respect of which the offence has been committed to be confiscated and taken charge of by the Forest-officer, or to be made over to the person whom he deems to be entitled to the same:
Procedure when offender not known, or cannot be found.

Provided that no such order shall be made until the expiration of one month from the date of seizing such property, or without hearing the person (if any) claiming any right thereto, and the evidence (if any) which he may produce in support of his claim.

57. The Magistrate may, notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, direct the sale of any property seized under section fifty-two and subject to speedy and natural decay, and may deal with the proceeds as he would have dealt with such property if it had not been sold.
Procedure as to perishable property seized under section 52.

58. The officer who made the seizure under section fifty-two or any of his official superiors, or any person claiming to be interested in the property so seized, may, within one month from the date of any order passed under section fifty-four, fifty-five or fifty-six, appeal therefrom to the Court to which orders made by such Magistrate are ordinarily appealable, and the order passed on such appeal shall be final.
Appeal from orders under sections 54, 55 and 56.

59. When an order for the confiscation of any property has been passed under section fifty-four or fifty-six, as the case may be, and the period limited by section fifty-eight for an appeal from such order has elapsed and no such appeal has been preferred, or when, on such an appeal being preferred, the Appellate Court confirms such order in respect of the whole or a portion of such property, such property or such portion thereof, as the case may be, shall vest in the Government free from all incumbrances.
Property when to vest in Government.

60. Nothing hereinbefore contained shall be deemed to prevent any officer empowered in this behalf by the Local Government from directing at any time the immediate release of any property seized under section fifty-two.
Saving of power to release property seized.

61. Any Forest-officer or Police-officer who vexatiously and unnecessarily seizes any property on pretence of seizing property liable to confiscation under this Act, shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, or with both.
Punishment for wrongful seizure.

62. Whoever, with intent to cause damage or injury to the public or to any person, or to cause wrongful gain as defined in the Indian Penal Code,—

Penalty for counterfeiting or defacing marks on trees and timber and for altering boundary-marks.

(a) knowingly counterfeits upon any timber or standing tree a mark used by Forest-officers to indicate that such timber or tree is the property of the Government or of some person, or that it may lawfully be cut or removed by some person; or

(b) alters, defaces or obliterates any such mark placed on a tree or on timber by or under the authority of a Forest-officer; or shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to two years, or with fine, or with both.

63. Any Forest-officer or Police-officer may, without orders from a Magistrate and without a warrant, arrest any person against whom a reasonable suspicion exists of his having been concerned in any forest-offence punishable with imprisonment for one month or upwards.

Every officer making an arrest under this section shall without unnecessary delay take or send the person arrested before the Magistrate having jurisdiction in the case.

Nothing in this section shall be deemed to authorize such arrest for any act which is an offence under chapter IV of this Act, unless such act has been prohibited under section twenty-nine, clause (c).

64. Every Forest-officer and Police-officer shall prevent, and may interfere for the purpose of preventing, the commission of any forest-offences.

Power to prevent commission of offences.

65. The Magistrate of the District, and any Magistrate of the first class specially empowered in this behalf by the Local Government, may try summarily, under the Code of Criminal Procedure, any forest-offence punishable only with imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months, or fine not exceeding five hundred rupees, or both.

Power to try offences summarily.

66. Nothing in this Act shall be deemed to prevent any person from being prosecuted under any other law for any act or omission which constitutes an offence against this Act or the rules made under it, or from being liable under such other law to any higher punishment or penalty than that provided by the rules made under this Act: Provided that no person shall be punished twice for the same offence.

Operation of other laws not barred.

67. The Local Government may from time to time, by notification in the local official Gazette, empower any Forest-officer by name, or as holding an office, to accept from any person against whom a reasonable suspicion exists that he has committed any forest-offence other than an offence under section sixty-one or section sixty-two a sum of money by way of compensation for any damage which may have been committed, and to release any property which has been seized as liable to confiscation on payment of the value thereof as estimated by such officer.

On the payment of such sum of money or such value or both as the case may be to such officer, the accused person, if in custody, shall be discharged the property seized shall be released, and no further proceedings shall be taken under this Act against such person or property; but nothing herein contained shall exempt such person from prosecution on the same facts under any other law for the time being in force.

68. When in any proceedings taken under this Act, or in consequence of anything done under this Act, a question arises as to whether any forest-produce is the property of the Government, such produce shall be presumed to be the property of the Government until the contrary is proved.

Presumption that forest-produce belongs to Government.

CHAPTER XI.

CATTLE-TRESPASS.

69. Cattle trespassing in a Reserved Forest, or in any portion of a Protected Forest which has been lawfully closed to grazing, shall be deemed to be cattle doing damage to a public plantation within the meaning of the eleventh section of the Cattle-trespass Act, 1871, and may be seized and impounded as such by any Forest-officer or Police-officer.

70. The Local Government may from time to time, by notification in the local official Gazette, direct that, in lieu of the fines fixed by the twelfth section of the Act last aforesaid, there shall be levied for each head of cattle impounded under section sixty-nine of this Act, such fines as it thinks fit, but not exceeding the following, that is to say:—

For each elephant	...	ten rupees.
For each buffalo or camel	...	two "
For each horse, mare, gelding, pony, colt, filly, mule, bull, bullock, cow or heifer	...	one rupee.

CHAPTER XII.

OF FOREST-OFFICERS.

71. The Local Government may invest any Forest-officer by name, or as holding an office, with the following powers, that is to say:—

Local Government may invest Forest-officers with certain powers.

(a) power to enter upon any land and to survey, demarcate, and make a map of the same;

(b) the powers of a Civil Court to compel the attendance of witnesses and the production of documents;

(c) power to issue a search-warrant under the Code of Criminal Procedure;

(d) power to hold an enquiry into forest-offences, and, in the course of such enquiry, to receive and record evidence.

Any evidence recorded under clause (d) of this section shall be admissible in any subsequent trial before a Magistrate, provided that it has been taken in the presence of the accused person.

72. All Forest-officers shall be deemed to be public servants within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code.

73. No suit shall lie against any public servant for anything done by him in good faith under this Act.

74. Except with the permission in writing of the Local Government, no Forest-officer shall, as principal or agent, trade in timber or other forest-produce, or be or become interested in any lease of any forest or in any contract for working any forest, whether in British or Foreign territory.

CHAPTER XIII.

SUBSIDIARY RULES.

75. The Local Government may from time to time make rules—

(a) to prescribe and limit the powers and duties of any Forest-officer under this Act;

(b) to regulate the rewards to be paid to officers and informers out of the proceeds of fines and confiscations under this Act;

(c) for the preservation, reproduction and disposal of trees and timber belonging to Government, but grown on lands belonging to or in the occupation of private persons; and

(d) generally to carry out the provisions of this Act.

76. Any person breaking any rule under this Act, for the breach of which no special penalty is provided, shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to one month, or fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, or both.

77. All rules made by the Local Government under this Act shall be published in the local official Gazette, and shall thereupon, so far as they are consistent with this Act, have the force of law:

Provided that no rule made under section twenty-seven, thirty-one or forty-one shall be so published without the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council.

CHAPTER XIV.

MISCELLANEOUS.

78. Every person who exercises any right in a Reserved or Protected Forest, or who is permitted to take any forest-produce from, or to cut and remove timber or to pasture cattle in, such forest, and every person who is employed by any such person in such forest, and every person in any village contiguous to such forest who is employed by the Government, or who receives emoluments from the Government for services to be performed to the community, shall be bound to furnish without unnecessary delay to the nearest Forest-officer or Police-officer any information he may possess respecting the commission of, or intention to commit, any forest-offence, and shall assist any Forest-officer or Police-officer demanding his aid

(a) in extinguishing any fire occurring in such forest;

(b) in preventing any fire which may occur in the vicinity of such forest from spreading to such forest;

(c) in preventing the commission in such forest of any forest-offence; and

(d) when there is reason to believe that any such offence has been committed in such forest, in discovering and arresting the offender.

79. If the Government and any person be jointly interested in any forest or waste-land, or in the whole or any part of the produce thereof, the Local Government may from time to time either

(a) undertake the management of such forest, waste-land or produce, accounting to such person for his interest in the same; or

(b) issue such regulations for the management of the forest, waste-land or produce by the person so jointly interested as it deems necessary for the management thereof and the interests of all parties therein.

When the Local Government undertakes, under clause (a) of this section, the management of any forest, waste-land or produce, it may from time to time, by notification in the local official Gazette, declare that any of the provisions contained in chapters II and IV of this Act shall apply to such forest, waste land or produce, and thereupon such provisions shall apply accordingly.

80. If any person be entitled to a share in the produce of any forest which is the property of Government or over which the Government has proprietary rights, or to any part of the forest-produce of which the Government is entitled, upon the condition of duly performing any service connected with such forest, such share shall be liable to confiscation in the event of the fact being established to the satisfaction of the Local Government that such service is no longer so performed: Provided that no such share shall be confiscated until the person entitled thereto, and the evidence (if any) which he may produce in proof of the due performance of such service, have been heard by an officer duly appointed in that behalf by the Local Government.

81. All money payable to the Government under this Act, or under any rule made under this Act, or on account of the price of any forest-produce, or of expenses incurred in the execution of this Act in respect of such produce, may, if not paid when due, be recovered under the law for the time being in force as if it were an arrear of land-revenue.

82. When any such money is payable for or in respect of any forest-produce, the amount thereof shall be deemed to be a first charge on such produce, and such produce may be taken possession of by a Forest-officer until such amount has been paid.

If such amount is not paid when due, the Forest-officer may sell such produce by public auction, and the proceeds of the sale shall be applied first in discharging such amount.

The surplus (if any), if not claimed within two months from the date of the sale by the person entitled thereto, shall be forfeited to Her Majesty.

83. Whenever it appears to the Local Government that any land is required for any of the purposes of this Act, such land shall be deemed to be needed for a public purpose within the meaning of the Land Acquisition Act, 1870, section four.

An Act to consolidate and amend the law relating to the levy of Sea Customs-duties.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the law relating to the levy of Sea Customs-duties; It is enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

1. This Act may be called "The Sea Customs Act, 1878."

It extends to the whole of British India, and shall come into force on the first day of April 1878.

2. The Acts mentioned in the first schedule hereto annexed are repealed to the extent specified therein.

All references to any of the said Acts, in Acts passed subsequently thereto, shall be read as if made to the corresponding provisions of this Act.

All appointments, rules, declarations, exemptions, and delegations made, powers conferred, forms and conditions prescribed, values, fees, rates, and periods fixed, and notifications, instructions, directions, prohibitions, passes and licenses issued, under any Act hereby repealed shall, if the same are in force at the time this Act comes into force, be deemed to have been respectively made, conferred, prescribed, fixed and issued under this Act, in so far as they are consistent herewith.

3. In this Act, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context—

(a) "Chief Customs-Authority" denotes the person authorized to exercise, subject to the Local Government, the chief control in matters relating to Sea-customs in any place in which this Act operates:

(b) "Chief Customs-Officer" denotes the Chief Executive Officer of Sea-customs for any Port to which this Act applies:

(c) "Customs-collector" includes every officer of Customs for the time being in separate charge of a Custom-house, or duly authorized to perform all, or any special, duties of an officer so in charge:

(d) "Customs-port" means any place except Aden declared under section 11 to be a Port for the shipment and landing of goods:

(e) "Foreign Port" means Aden and any place beyond the limits of British India:

(f) "Vessel" includes anything made for the conveyance by water of human beings or property:

(g) "Coasting vessel" denotes any vessel proceeding from one Customs-port to another Customs-port, whether touching at any intermediate Foreign Port or not; or proceeding from or to a Customs-port, or from a place declared to be a port under section 12:

(h) "Master" when used in relation to any vessel means any person, except a Pilot or Harbour Master, having command or charge of such vessel:

(i) "Warehousing port" means any Customs-port declared under section 14 to be a warehousing port:

(j) "Warehouse" denotes any place appointed or licensed under section 15 or section 16.

4. When any person is expressly or impliedly authorized by the owner of any goods to be his agent in respect of such goods for all or any of the purposes of this Act, and such authorization is approved by the Customs-collector, such person shall, for such purposes, be deemed to be the owner of such goods.

5. Anything which a Master is required or empowered to do under this Act may, with the express or implied consent of such Master and the approval of the Customs-collector, be done by a ship's agent.

CHAPTER II.

APPOINTMENT AND POWERS OF OFFICERS, &c.

6. The Local Government of every place in which duties of Sea-customs are leviable, may appoint such persons as it thinks fit to be officers of Customs, and to exercise the powers conferred, and to perform the duties imposed, by this Act on such officers.

Every person so appointed may be suspended or dismissed by the Local Government which appointed him.

7. The Local Government may delegate to any officer of Customs any of the powers vested in it by the first clause of section 6.

Every person appointed in exercise of such delegated power may be suspended or dismissed by the officer who appointed him.

8. At any place for which there is no Custom-house, the Collector of the District and the officers subordinate to him shall, unless the Local Government otherwise directs, perform all duties imposed by this Act on a Customs-collector and other officers of Customs.

9. The Chief Customs-Authority may from time to time, with the sanction of the Local Government, make rules consistent with this Act

(a) prescribing and limiting the powers and duties of officers of Customs,

(b) regulating the delegation of their duties by such officers; and

(c) generally to carry out the provisions of this Act.

10. No Chief Customs-Authority or Chief Customs-Officer, and no other officer of Customs whom such Chief Authority or Chief Officer deems it necessary to exempt on grounds of public duty, shall be compelled to serve on any jury or inquest, or as an assessor.

CHAPTER III.

APPOINTMENT OF PORTS, WHARVES, CUSTOM-HOUSES, WAREHOUSES AND BOARDING AND LANDING-STATIONS.

11. The Local Government may from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette,

(a) declare the places within the territories administered by it which alone shall be Ports for the shipment and landing of goods;

(b) declare the limits of such Ports;

(c) appoint proper places therein to be Wharves for the landing and shipping of goods, or of particular classes of goods;

(d) declare the limits of any such Wharf;

(e) alter the name of any such Port or Wharf; and

(f) declare what shall, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be a Custom-house, and the limits thereof.

12. The Local Government may also from time to time in like manner declare places to be Ports for the carrying on of coasting trade with Customs-ports, or with any specified Customs-port, and for no other purpose.

13. The Governor General in Council may from time to time direct, by notification in the Gazette of India, that all goods or any specified class of goods imported from or exported to any Foreign Port to or from a Customs-port shall, with such limitations and on such conditions (if any, as he thinks fit, be treated for any of the purposes of this Act as goods imported from or exported to a Customs-port as the case may be.

14. The Local Government may from time to time declare, by notification in the official Gazette, that any Customs-port shall be a Warehousing Port for the purposes of this Act.

15. At any Warehousing Port, the Chief Customs-Authority may from time to time appoint public warehouses wherein dutiable goods may be deposited without payment of duty on the first importation thereof, and may cancel such appointment.

16. At any Warehousing Port, the Chief Customs-Officer may from time to time license private warehouses wherein dutiable goods may be deposited as aforesaid.

Every application for a license for a private warehouse shall be in writing, and shall be drawn up in such form as is from time to time prescribed by the Chief Customs-Authority, and shall be signed by the applicant.

Every license granted under this section may be cancelled on conviction of the licensee of any offence under this Act relating to warehouses, unless it is otherwise provided in the license, or on the expiration of one month's notice in writing given to the licensee by the Chief Customs-Officer.

17. The Chief Customs-Authority may from time to time appoint, in or near any Customs-port, stations or limits at or within which vessels arriving at, or departing from, such Port shall bring to for the boarding or landing of officers of Customs, and may, unless separate provision therefor has been made under the Indian Ports Act, 1875, direct at what particular place in any such Port vessels, not brought into Port by pilots, shall anchor or moor.

CHAPTER IV.

PROHIBITIONS AND RESTRICTIONS OF IMPORTATION AND EXPORTATION.

18. No goods specified in the following clauses shall be brought, whether by land or sea, into British India:—

(a) any book printed in infringement of any law in force in British India on the subject of copyright, when the proprietor of such copyright, or his agent, has given to the Chief Customs-Authority a notice in writing that such copyright subsists, and a statement of the date on which it will expire:

(b) counterfeit coin: or coin which purports to be Queen's coin of India, or to be coin made under the Native Coinage Act, 1876, but which is not of the established standard in weight or fineness:

(c) any obscene book, pamphlet, paper, drawing painting, representation, figure or article:

(d) articles bearing any names, brands or marks being, or purporting to be, the names, brands or marks of manufacturers resident in the United Kingdom or British India, and not made by such manufacturers.

19. The Governor General in Council may from time to time, by notification in the Gazette of India, prohibit or restrict the bringing or taking by sea or by land goods of any specified description into or out of British India or any specified part of British India.

CHAPTER V.

LEVY OF, AND EXEMPTION FROM, CUSTOMS-DUTIES.

20. Except as herein after provided, Customs-duties shall be levied at such rates as may be prescribed by or under any law for the time being in force, on—

(a) goods imported or exported by sea into or from any Customs-port from or to any Foreign Port;

(b) opium, salt or salted fish imported by sea from any Customs-port into any other Customs-port;

(c) goods brought from any Foreign Port to any Customs-port, and without payment of duty, there transhipped for, or thence carried to, and imported at any other Customs-port; and

(d) goods brought in bond from one Customs-port to another:

Provided that no such duties shall be levied on goods belonging to the Government.

21. Except as otherwise expressly provided by any law for the time being in force, goods whereof any article liable to duty under this Act forms a part or ingredient shall be chargeable with the full duty which would be payable on such goods if they were entirely composed of such article, or if composed of more than one article liable to duty then with the full duty which would be payable on such goods if they were entirely composed of the article charged with the highest rate of duty.

22. The Governor General in Council may from time to time, by notification in the Gazette of India, fix, for the purpose of levying duties, tariff-values of any goods exported or imported by sea on which Customs-duties are by law imposed, and alter any such values fixed by any Tariff Act for the time being in force.

23. The Governor General in Council may from time to time, by notification in the Gazette of India, exempt any goods imported into, or exported from, British India, or into or from any specified Port therein, from the whole or any part of the Customs-duties leviable on such goods.

The Local Government may, by special order in each case, exempt from the payment of duty, under circumstances of an exceptional nature, to be stated in such order, any goods on which Customs-duties are leviable.

24. The Customs-collector may, subject to any general rules relating to the landing and shipping of passengers' baggage and the passing of the same through the Custom-house, which may be made under section 75, pass free of duty any baggage in actual use, and for this purpose may determine, subject to any such rules, whether any goods shall be treated as baggage in actual use, or as goods subject to duty.

25. If goods produced or manufactured in British India be imported into any Customs-port from any Foreign Port, such goods shall be liable to all the duties, conditions and restrictions (if any) to which goods of the like kind and value not so produced or manufactured are liable on the first importation thereof:

Provided that, if such importation takes place within three years after the exportation of such goods, and it is proved to the satisfaction of the Customs-collector that the property in such goods has continued in the person by whom, or on whose account, they were exported, the goods may be admitted without payment of duty.

26. Any goods produced or manufactured in British India which have been exported therefrom, and on the exportation of which any drawback of excise has been received shall, on being imported into any Customs-port, be subjected, unless the Chief Customs-Authority in any particular case otherwise directs by special order, to payment of excise duty, at the rate to which goods of the like kind and quality are liable at such port.

27. All goods derelict, jetsam, flotsam and wreck, brought or coming into any place in British India shall be subject to the same duties, if any, to which goods of the like kind are for the time being subject on importation at any Customs-port and shall in other respects be dealt with as if they were imported from a foreign port, unless it be shown to the satisfaction of the Customs-collector that such goods are the produce or manufacture of any place, from which they are entitled to be admitted duty-free.

28. Provisions and stores produced or manufactured in British India, required for use on board of any vessel proceeding to any Foreign Port, may be shipped free of duty, whether of customs or excise, in such quantities as the Customs-collector determines with reference to the tonnage of the vessel, the numbers of the crew and passengers, and the length of the voyage on which the vessel is about to depart:

Provided that no rum shall be so shipped on any vessel going on a voyage of less than thirty days' probable duration.

29. On the importation into, or exportation from, any Customs-port of any goods, whether liable to duty or not, the owner of such goods shall, in his bill of entry or shipping-bill, as the case may be, state the real value, quantity, and description of such goods to the best of his knowledge and belief, and shall subscribe a declaration of the truth of such statement at the foot of such bill.

In case of doubt, the Customs-collector may require any such owner to declare real value, &c., of goods in bill of entry or shipping-bill. or any other person in possession of any invoice, broker's note, policy of insurance or other document, whereby the real value, quantity, or description of any such goods can be ascertained, to produce the same, and to furnish any information relating to such value, quantity, or description which it is in his power to furnish. And thereupon such person shall produce such document and furnish such information:

Provided that, if the owner makes and subscribes a declaration before the Customs-collector to the effect that he is unable, from want of full information, to state the real value or contents of any case, package or parcel of goods, then the Customs-collector shall permit him, previous to the entry thereof, (1) to open such case, package or parcel, and examine the contents in presence of an officer of Customs, or (2) to deposit such case, package or parcel in a public warehouse appointed under section 15 without warehousing the same, pending the production of such information.

30. For the purposes of this Act the real value shall be deemed to be—

(a) the wholesale cash-price, less trade-discount, for which goods of the like kind and quality are sold; or are capable of being sold, at the time and place of importation or exportation as the case may be, without any abatement or deduction whatever, except (in the case of goods imported) of the amount of the duties payable on the importation thereof: or,

(b) where such price is not ascertainable, the cost at which goods of the like kind and quality could be delivered at such place without any abatement or deduction except as aforesaid.

31. Goods chargeable with duty upon the examination of ad-value thereof, but for which a specific value is not fixed by law for the purpose of levying duties thereon, shall, without unnecessary delay, be examined by an officer of Customs. If it appears that the real value of such goods is correctly stated in the bill-of-entry or shipping-bill, the goods shall be assessed in accordance therewith.

32. If it appears that such goods are properly chargeable with a higher rate or amount of duty than that to which they would be subject according to the value thereof as stated in the bill-of-entry or shipping-bill, such officer may detain such goods.

In every such case the detaining officer shall forthwith give notice in writing to the owner of the goods of their detention, and of the value thereof as estimated by him; and the Customs-collector shall, within two clear working days after such detention, or within such reasonable period as may with the consent of the parties be arranged, determine either to deliver such goods on payment of duty charged according to the entry of such owner, or to retain the same for the use of Government.

If the goods be retained for the use of Government, the Customs-collector shall cause the full amount stated in the bill as their real value to be paid to the owner in full satisfaction for such goods, in the same manner as if they had been transferred by ordinary sale, and shall, after due notice in the local official Gazette, or some local newspaper and without unnecessary delay, cause them to be put up to public auction in wholesale lots for cash on delivery.

If the Customs-collector deems the highest offer made at such sale to be inadequate, he may either adjourn the sale to some other day, to be notified as aforesaid, or buy in the goods, and without unnecessary delay dispose of them for the benefit of Government.

If the proceeds arising from such sale exceed the sum paid to the owner, together with (in the case of goods imported) the duty to which the goods are liable and all charges incurred by Government in connection with them, a portion not exceeding one-half of the overplus shall, at the discretion of the Chief Officer of Customs, be payable to the officer who detected the under-valuation of the goods.

Nothing in this section shall prevent the Chief Officer of Customs, when he has reason to believe that any such under-valuation was solely the result of accident or error, from permitting the owner of the goods, on his application for that purpose, to amend such entry, on payment of such increased rate of duties on the excess of the amended over the original valuation, or on such other terms as the Chief Officer of Customs may determine.

33. If, on the first examination of any such goods under section 31, the owner thereof states in writing that such goods are, in consequence of damage sustained before delivery of the bill of entry, of value less than that stated in such bill, the Customs collector, on being satisfied of the fact, may allow abatement of duty accordingly.

The reduced duty to be levied on such goods may be ascertained by either of the following methods, at the option of the owner—

(a) the real value of such goods may be fixed on appraisement by an officer of Customs and the duty may be assessed on the value so fixed; or

(b) the goods may, after due notice in the local official Gazette or some local newspaper, be sold by public auction at such time (within thirty days from the date of delivery of the bill of entry), and at such place, as the Customs-collector appoints; and the duty may be assessed on the gross amount realized by such sale, without any abatement or deduction, except (in the case of goods imported) of so much as represents the duties payable on the importation thereof.

34. When any goods, the value of which has been fixed by law for the purpose of levying duties thereon, have, before delivery of the bill-of-entry, deteriorated to the extent of more than one-tenth of their value, the duty on such goods shall if the owner thereof so desires be assessed ad valorem.

The real value of such goods shall be ascertained as provided in section 33, and the duty shall be assessed thereon.

35. No abatement of duty on account of damage shall be allowed on wines, spirit or beer, or on any other articles on which duties are levied on quantity and not on value.

36. Except as provided in section 34, no amendment of a bill of entry or shipping-bill relating to goods assessed for duty on the declared value, quantity, or description thereof shall be allowed after such goods have been removed from the Custom-house.

37. The rate of duty and the tariff valuation (if any) applicable to any goods imported shall be the rate and valuation in force on the date on which the bill of entry thereof is delivered to the Customs-collector under section 86:

Provided that when such rate or valuation has been raised after the grant of port-clearance at the port of shipment, the rate and valuation applicable to such goods shall be the rate and valuation in force on the date of such grant.

Provided also that if such goods are warehoused and re-assessed under section 115 of this Act, the rate and valuation applicable thereto shall be the rate and valuation in force at the time when application is made to clear such goods for home consumption.

Explanation.—A bill of entry shall for the purposes of this section be deemed to be delivered when it is first presented to the proper officers of Customs.

38. The rate of duty and tariff valuation (if any) applicable to any goods exported shall be the rate and valuation in force when a shipping-bill of such goods is delivered under section 137.

39. When Customs-duties or charges have been short-levied through inadvertence, error, collusion or misconception on the part of the officers of Customs, or through mis-statement as to real value, quantity, or description on the part of the owner, or when any such duty, or charge after having been levied, has been owing to any such cause erroneously refunded, the person chargeable with the duty or charge so short-levied, or to whom such refund has erroneously been made, shall pay the deficiency or repay the amount paid to him in excess, on demand being made within three months from the date of the first assessment or making of the refund;

and the Customs-collector may refuse to pass any goods belonging to such person until the said deficiency or excess be paid or repaid.

40. No Customs-duties or charges which have been paid, and of which repayment, wholly or in part, is claimed in consequence of the same having been paid through inadvertence, error or misconstruction, shall be returned, unless such claim is made within three months from the date of such payment.

No refund of charges erroneously levied or paid, unless claimed within three months.

41. The Customs-collector may, if he thinks fit, instead of requiring payment for and keeping account current of Customs-duties and charges due from any mercantile firm or public body, at the time such duties and charges are payable under this Act, keep with such firm or body an account current of such duties and charges. Such account shall be settled at intervals not exceeding one month, and such firm or body shall make a deposit or furnish security sufficient in the opinion of the Customs-collector to cover the amount which may at any time be due from them in respect of such duties and charges.

CHAPTER VI.DRAWBACK.*42. When any goods, capable of being easily of the Customs-collector at such Customs-port, and that the re-export be made within two years from the date of importation, as shown by the records of the Custom-house, or within such extended term as the Chief Customs-Authority, on sufficient cause being shown, in any case determines.

43. When any goods having been charged with Drawback on goods re-exported to Customs-port and thence to Foreign Port.

import-duty at one Customs-port and thence exported to another, are re-exported by sea as aforesaid, drawback shall be allowed on such goods as if they had been so re-exported from the former port.

Provided that, in every such case, the goods be identified to the satisfaction of the officer in charge of the Custom-house at the Port of final exportation, and that such final exportation be made within three years from the date on which they were first imported into British India.

44. A drawback of the whole of the Customs-duties shall be allowed on wine and spirit intended for the consumption of any officer of Her Majesty's Navy, on board of any of Her Majesty's ships in actual service, unless such wine and spirit have been warehoused without payment of duty on the first entry thereof.

Drawback of duties on wine and spirit allowed for officers of Navy.

The quantity of wine and spirit on which drawback may be so allowed in any one year for the use of such officers shall not exceed the quantities hereinafter allowed for each such officer respectively; that is to say—

	Gals.
For every Admiral	1,260
Vice-Admiral	1,050
Rear-Admiral	840
Captain of 1st and 2nd rate	630
Captain of 3rd, 4th and 5th rate	420
Captain of an inferior rate	210
Lieutenant or other Commanding Officer, Marine-officer, Master, Purser or Surgeon	105

45. Every person clearing and claiming draw-

Persons entering such wine or spirit for drawback to declare name and rank of officer claiming same.

back for wine or spirit, as provided in section 44, shall state in the shipping bill the name of the officer for whose use such wine or spirit is intended, and of the ship in which he serves, as well as the place and date of the last supply for which drawback was allowed.

All such wine and spirit shall be delivered into the charge of the proper officers of Customs at the Port of shipment, to be shipped under their care; and when the officer commanding the ship has certified the receipt of such wine and spirit into his charge, and any such officer of Customs has certified the shipment, the drawback shall be paid to the person entitled to receive the same.

46. The Customs-collector may permit the transfer of wine or spirit from one Naval officer to another Naval officer on board of the same, or of any other such vessel, as part of his authorized quantity;

Transfer of wine or spirit from one Naval officer to another.

or may permit the transshipment of any such wine or spirit from one vessel to another for the use of the same Naval officer;

or the re-landing and warehousing of any such wine or spirit for future re-shipment.

The Customs-collector may also receive back the duties for any such wine or spirit, and allow the same to be cleared for home-consumption.

47. Provisions and stores for the use of Her

Provisions and stores for Her Majesty's Navy.

Majesty's Navy or of any officer thereof which are subject to duty may, in like manner, be transferred, transhipped or reloaded and warehoused, free of duty;

and where duties have been paid on any such provisions or stores required for shipment, drawback of such duties, whether of customs or excise, shall be allowed on receipt of an application in writing from the officer commanding the ship for which they are intended, or from some other officer duly authorized to make such application.

48. The provisions of sections 44, 45, 46 and 47

as to officers of Her Majesty's Navy apply also to officers of Her Majesty's Indian Marine and Marine-survey on board of any of the ships of such Marine or Survey proceeding to any port out of India, and the rules prescribed by section 47 as to provisions and stores for the use of Her Majesty's Navy apply also to provisions and stores for the use of such Marine or Survey.

49. The Governor General in Council may from time to time, by notification Power to declare what goods are identifiable, in the Gazette of India,

(a) declare what goods shall, for the purpose of this chapter, be deemed to be capable of being easily identified; and

(b) prohibit the payment of drawback upon the re-exportation of goods to any specified Foreign Port in India, and may prohibit drawback in case of specified Foreign Port.

50. Notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, no drawback shall be allowed—

(a) upon goods not included in the export-manifest, or

(b) where the goods to be exported are of less value than the amount of drawback claimed, or

(c) where the claim is for drawback amounting, in respect of any single shipment, to less than five rupees, and the Customs-collector thinks fit to reject it, or

(d) on salt, salted fish, or opium.

51. No drawback shall be allowed unless the claim to receive such drawback be made and established at the time of re-export.

No such payment of drawback shall be made until the vessel carrying the goods has put out to sea, or unless payment be demanded within six months from the date of entry for shipment.

52. Every person, or his duly authorized agent, claiming drawback on any goods duly exported, shall make and subscribe a declaration that such goods have been actually exported, and have not been re-landed and are not intended to be re-landed at any Customs-port; and that such person was at the time of entry outwards and shipment, and continues to be, entitled to drawback thereon.

CHAPTER VII.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE OF VESSELS.

Arrival and entry of vessel inwards.

53. The Local Government may, by notification Power to fix places beyond which inward-bound vessels are not to proceed until manifest delivered, in the local official Gazette, fix a place in any river or Port, beyond which no vessel arriving shall pass until a manifest has been delivered to the Pilot, officer of Customs or other person duly authorized to receive the same.

If, in any river or Port wherein a place has been fixed by the Local Government under this section, the Master of any vessel arriving remains outside or below the place so fixed, such Master shall, nevertheless, within twenty-four hours after the vessel anchors, deliver a manifest to the Pilot, officer of Customs or other person authorized to receive the same.

54. If any vessel arrives at any Customs-port in which a place has not been so fixed, the Master of such vessel shall, within twenty-four hours after such vessel has anchored within the limits of the Port, deliver a manifest to the Pilot, officer of Customs or other person authorized to receive the same.

55. Every manifest shall be signed by the Master, shall specify all goods imported in such vessel, showing separately all goods (if any) intended to be landed, transhipped or taken on to another Port, and all ships' stores intended for consumption in Port or on the homeward voyage, and shall contain such further particulars, and be made out in such form, as the Chief Customs-Authority may from time to time direct.

The Customs-collector shall permit the Master to amend any obvious error in the manifest, or to supply any omission which in the opinion of such Collector results from accident or inadvertence, by furnishing an amended or supplementary manifest, and may, if he thinks fit, levy thereon such fee as the Chief Customs-Authority from time to time directs.

Except as herein provided no import manifest shall be amended.

56. The person receiving a manifest under section 53 or 54 shall counter-sign the same and enter thereon such particulars as the Chief Customs-Authority from time to time directs in this behalf.

57. No vessel arriving in any Customs-port shall be allowed to break bulk until a manifest has been delivered as herein-before provided; nor until a copy of such manifest, together with an application for entry of such vessel inwards, has been presented by the Master to the Customs-collector, and an order has been given thereon for such entry.

58. The Master shall, if required so to do by the Customs-collector at the time of presenting such application, deliver to the Customs-collector the bill of lading or a copy thereof for every part of the cargo laden on board, and any port-clearance, cockett or other paper granted in respect of such vessel at the place from which she is stated to have come, and shall answer all such questions relating to the vessel, cargo, crew and voyage as are put to him by such officer.

The Customs-collector may, if any requisition or question made or put by him under this section is not complied with or answered, refuse to grant such application.

59. Notwithstanding anything contained in section 57, the Customs-collector may grant, prior to receipt of the manifest, and to the entry inwards of the vessel, a special pass permitting bulk to be broken.

The granting of such pass shall be subject to such rules as may from time to time be made by the Chief Customs-Authority.

60. Notwithstanding anything contained in Manifest, &c., may be section 53, 54, 57 or 58, delivered by ship's agent. the Customs-collector may accept from the ship's agent in lieu of the Master delivery of the manifest or of any other document required by those sections to be delivered by the Master.

Entry outwards, port-clearance and departure of vessels.

61. No vessel shall take on board any part of her export-cargo, until a written application for entry of such vessel outwards subscribed by the Master of such vessel, has been made to the Customs-collector or before an order has been given thereon by such officer for such entry.

Every application made under this section shall specify the name, tonnage, and national character of the vessel, the name of the Master, and the name of every place for which cargo is to be shipped.

62. No vessel, whether laden or in ballast, shall depart from any Customs-port until a port-clearance has been granted by the Customs-collector or other officer duly authorized to grant the same.

And no Pilot shall take charge of any vessel proceeding to sea, unless the Master of such vessel produces a port-clearance.

63. Every application for port-clearance shall be made by the Master at least twenty-four hours before the intended departure of the vessel.

The Master shall, at the time of applying for port-clearance—

(a) deliver to the Customs-collector a manifest in duplicate in such form as may from time to time be prescribed by the Chief Customs-Authority, signed by such Master, specifying all goods to be exported in the vessel, and showing separately all goods and stores entered in the import-manifest, and not landed or consumed on board or transhipped :

(b) deliver to the Customs-collector such shipping bills or other documents as such Customs-collector acting under the general instructions of such Chief Customs-Authority, requires ; and

(c) answer to the proper officer of Customs such questions touching the departure and destination of the vessel as are demanded of him.

The provisions of section 55 relating to the amendment of import-manifests shall mutatis mutandis apply also to export manifests delivered under this section.

64. The Customs-collector may refuse port-clearance to any vessel until

(a) the provisions of section 63 are complied with ;
(b) all Port-dues and other charges and penalties due by such vessel, or by the owner or Master thereof, and all duties payable in respect of any goods shipped therein have been duly paid or their payment secured by such guarantee, or by a deposit at such rate as such Customs-collector directs ;

(c) the ship's agent (if any) delivers to the Customs-collector a declaration in writing to the effect that he will be liable for any penalty imposed under section 167, No. 17, and furnishes security for the discharge of the same ;

(d) the ship's agent (if any) delivers to the Customs-collector a declaration in writing to the effect that such agent is answerable for the discharge of all claims for damage or short delivery which may be established by the owner of any goods comprised in the import-cargo in respect of such goods.

A ship's agent delivering a declaration under clause (c) of this section shall be liable to all penalties which might be imposed on the Master under section 167, No. 17, and a ship's agent delivering a declaration under clause (d) of this section shall be bound to discharge all claims referred to in such declaration.

65. When the Customs-collector is satisfied that the provisions of section 63 and if necessary of clauses (b) and (c) and (d) of section 64 have been complied with, he shall grant a port-clearance to the Master, and shall return at the same time to such Master one copy of the manifest duly countersigned by the proper officer of Customs.

66. Notwithstanding anything contained in sections 64 and 65, the Customs-collector may (subject to such rules as the Chief Customs-Authority may from time to time prescribe) grant a port-clearance to the Master when the ship's agent furnishes such security as the Customs-collector deems sufficient for duly delivering, within five days from the date of such grant, the manifest and other documents specified in section 63.

CHAPTER VIII.

GENERAL PROVISIONS AFFECTING VESSELS IN PORT.

67. The Customs-collector at any Customs-port may at any time depute his discretion one or more officers of Customs to board any vessel in or arriving at such Port.

Every officer of Customs so sent shall remain on board of such vessel by day and by night unless or until the Customs-collector otherwise orders.

68. Whenever an officer of Customs is so deputed on board of any vessel, the Master of such vessel shall be bound to receive on board such officer, and one servant of such officer, and to provide such officer and servant with suitable accommodation of shelter and accommodation, and likewise with a due allowance of fresh water, and with the means of cooking on board.

69. Every officer of Customs so deputed shall have free access to every part of the vessel, and may fasten down any hatchway or entrance to the hold, and mark any goods before landing, and lock up, seal, mark, or otherwise secure any goods on board of such vessel.

If any box, place or closed receptacle in any such vessel be locked, and the key be withheld, such officer shall report the same to the Customs-collector, who may thereupon issue to the officer on board, or to any other officer under his authority, a written order to search.

On production of such order, the officer bearing the same may require that any such box, place or closed receptacle be opened in his presence; and, if it be not opened upon his requisition, he may break open the same.

70. Unless with the written permission of the Customs-collector or in accordance with a general permission granted under section 74, no goods, other than passengers' baggage, or ballast urgently required to be shipped for the vessel's safety, shall be shipped or waterborne to be shipped or discharged from any vessel in any Customs-port, except in the presence of an officer of Customs.

71. When an officer of Customs is deputed under section 67 to remain on board a vessel, the tonnage of which does not exceed six hundred tons, a period of thirty working days, reckoned from the date on which he boards such vessel, or such additional period as the Customs-collector directs, shall be allowed for the discharge of import-cargo and the shipment of export-cargo on board of such vessel.

One additional day shall, in like manner, be allowed for every fifty tons in excess of six hundred.

No charge shall be made for the services of a single officer of Customs for such allowed number of working days, or for the services of several such officers (if available) for respective periods not exceeding in the aggregate such allowed number of working days.

If the period occupied in the discharge and shipment of cargo be in excess of thirty working days, together with the additional period (if any) allowed under this section, the vessel shall be charged with the expense of the officer of Customs at a rate not exceeding five rupees per diem (Sundays and holidays excepted) for such excess period.

In calculating any period allowed, or any charge made, under this section, the period (if any) during which a vessel after the completion of the discharge of import-cargo, and before commencing the shipment of export-cargo, is laid up by the withdrawal of the officer of Customs upon application from the Master, shall be deducted.

72. Except with the written permission of the Customs-collector, no goods, other than passengers' baggage, shall in any Customs-port be discharged from any vessel, or be shipped or water-borne to be shipped—

(a) on any Sunday or on any holiday or day in which the discharge or shipping of cargo, as the case may be, is prohibited by the Chief Customs-Authority;

(b) on any day, except between such hours as such authority from time to time appoints by notification in the official Gazette.

73. No goods shall in any Customs-port be landed at any place other than a wharf or other place duly appointed for that purpose, and unless with the written permission of the Customs-collector or when a general permission has been granted under section 74, no goods shall in any Customs-port be shipped or water-borne to be shipped from any place other than a wharf or other place duly appointed for that purpose.

74. Notwithstanding anything contained in section 70 or 73, the Chief Customs-Authority may, by notification in the local official Gazette, give general permission for goods to be shipped or water-borne to be shipped in any Customs-port from all or any places not duly appointed as wharves, and without the presence or authority of an officer of Customs.

75. The Chief Customs-Authority may from time to time make rules for the landing and shipping of passengers' baggage and the passing of the same through the Customs-house; and for the landing, shipping and clearing of parcels forwarded by Her Majesty's or other mails, or by other regular packets and passenger vessels.

When any baggage or parcels is or are made over to an officer of customs for the purpose of being landed a fee of such amount as the Local Government from time to time directs shall be chargeable thereon, as compensation for the expense and trouble incurred in landing and depositing the same in the Custom-house.

76. When any goods are water-borne for the purpose of being landed from any vessel and warehoused or cleared for home-consumption, or of being shipped for exportation on board of any vessel, there shall be sent, with each boat-load or other separate despatch, a boat-note specifying the number of packages so sent and the marks and numbers or other description thereof.

Each boat-note for goods to be landed shall be signed by an officer of the vessel, and likewise by the officer of Customs on board, if any such officer be on board, and shall be delivered on arrival to any officer of Customs authorized to receive the same.

Each boat-note for goods to be shipped shall be signed by the proper officer of Customs, and, if an officer of Customs is on board of the vessel on which such goods are to be shipped, shall be delivered to such officer. If no such officer be on board, every such boat-note shall be delivered to the Master of the vessel, or to an officer of the vessel appointed by him to receive it.

The officer of Customs who receives any boat-note of goods landed, and the officer of Customs, Master, or other officer, as the case may be, who receives any boat-note of goods shipped, shall sign the same and note thereon such particulars as the Chief Customs-Authority may from time to time, direct.

The Local Government may from time to time by notification in the local official Gazette, suspend the operation of this section in any Customs-port or part thereof.

77. All goods water-borne for the purpose of being landed or shipped shall be landed or shipped without any unnecessary delay.

Goods water-borne to be forthwith landed or shipped.

78. Except in cases of imminent danger no goods discharged into or loaded in any boat for the purpose of being landed or shipped shall be transhipped into any other boat without the permission of an officer of Customs.

Such goods not to be transhipped without permission.

79. The Local Government may declare with regard to any Customs-port, by notification in the local official Gazette, that after a date therein specified, no boat not duly licensed and registered shall be allowed to ply as a cargo-boat for the landing and shipping of merchandize within the limits of such Port.

Power to prohibit plying of unlicensed cargo-boats.

In any Port with regard to which such notification has been issued, the Chief Officer of Customs or other officer whom the Local Government appoints in this behalf, may, subject to such rules and on payment of such fees as the Local Government from time to time prescribes by notification in the local official Gazette, issue licences for, and register, cargo boats. Such officer may also, subject to rules so prescribed, cancel any license so issued.

Issue of licences and registration of cargo-boats.

80. The Customs-collector may, whenever he thinks fit, require that goods stowed in bulk, and brought by sea or intended for exportation, shall be weighed or measured on board-ship before landing or after shipment, and may levy duty according to the result of such weighing or measurement.

Power to require goods to be weighed or measured on board before landing or after shipment.

CHAPTER IX.

OF DISCHARGE OF CARGO AND ENTRY INWARDS OF GOODS.

81. When an order for entry inwards of any vessel which has arrived in any Customs-port, or a special pass permitting such vessel to break bulk, has been given, the discharge of the cargo of such vessel may be proceeded with.

Discharge of cargo may commence on receipt of due permission.

82. Except as otherwise provided in this Act, no goods shall be allowed to leave any such vessel, unless they are entered in the original manifest of such vessel, or in an amended or supplementary manifest received under section 55.

Goods not to leave ship unless entered in manifest.

83. If the owner of any goods (except such as have been shown in the import-manifest as not to be landed) does not land such goods within such period as is specified in the bill of landing of such goods, or if no period is so specified within such number of working days, not exceeding fifteen, after the entry

Procedure in respect of goods not landed within time allowed.

of the vessel importing the same, as the Local Government from time to time appoints by notification in the official Gazette, or if the cargo of any vessel, with the exception of only a small quantity of goods, has been discharged previously to the expiration of the period so specified or appointed, as the case may be,— the Master of such vessel or, on his application, the proper officer of Customs, may then carry such goods to the Custom-house, there to remain for entry.

The Customs-collector shall thereupon take charge of and grant receipts for such goods;

and if notice in writing has been given by the Master that the goods are to remain subject to a lien for freight, primage, general average, or other charges of a stated amount, the Customs-collector shall hold such goods until he receives notice in writing that the said charges are paid.

84. At any time after the arrival of any vessel, the Customs-collector may, with the consent of the Master of such vessel, cause any small package or parcel of goods to be carried to the Custom-house, there to remain for entry, in charge of the officers of Customs, during the remainder of the working days allowed under this Act for the landing of such package or parcel.

Power to land small parcels.

If any package or parcel so carried to the Custom-house remains unclaimed on the expiration of the number of working days so allowed for its landing, or at the time of the clearance outwards of the vessel from which it was landed, the Master may give such notice as is provided in section 83, and the officer in charge of the Custom-house shall thereupon hold such package or parcel as provided in that section.

Notice regarding unclaimed packages.

85. Notwithstanding anything contained in sections 83 and 81 the Customs-collector in any Customs-port to which the Local Government, by notification in the local official Gazette, declares this section to be applicable, may permit the Master of any vessel immediately on receipt of an order under section 57 or special pass under section 59, to discharge the cargo of such vessel or any portion thereof into the custody of the ship's agents if willing to receive the same, for the purpose of landing the same forthwith—

(a) at the Custom-house or any specified landing-place or wharf; or

(b) at any landing-place or wharf belonging to any Port Commissioners, Port Trust or other public body or company;

Any ship's agent so receiving such cargo or portion shall be bound to discharge all claims for damage or short delivery which may be established in respect of the same by the owner thereof, and shall be entitled to recover from such owner his charges for service rendered, but not for commission or the like, where any agent for the landing of such cargo or portion has been previously appointed by the owner and such appointment is unrevoked.

The Customs-collector shall take charge of all goods discharged under clause (a) of this section, and otherwise proceed in relation thereto as provided in sections 83 and 88.

A public body or company at whose landing place or wharf any goods are discharged under clause (b) of this section, shall not permit the same to be removed without an order in writing from the Customs-collector.

86. The owner of any goods imported shall on the landing thereof from the importing ship make entry of such goods for home consumption or warehousing by delivering to the Customs-collector a bill of entry thereof in duplicate, in such form and containing such particulars, in addition to the particulars specified in section 29, as may, from time to time, be prescribed by the Chief Customs-Authority.

The particulars of such entry shall correspond with the particulars given of the same goods in the manifest of the ship.

87. On the delivery of such bill the duty (if any) leviable on such goods shall be assessed, and the owner of such goods may then proceed to clear the same for home-consumption, or warehouse them, subject to the provisions hereinafter contained.

88. If any goods are not entered and cleared for home-consumption, or warehoused, within four months from the date of entry of the vessel, such goods may, after due notice to the owner, if his address can be ascertained, and in the Local official Gazette, be sold by public auction, and the proceeds thereof shall be applied, first, to the payment of freight, primage and general average, if the goods are held by the Customs-collector subject to such charges under notice given under section 83, 84 or 85; next, to the payment of the duties which would be leviable on such goods if they were then cleared for home-consumption, and next to the payment of the other charges (if any) payable to the Customs-collector in respect of the same.

The surplus, if any, shall be paid to the owner of the goods, on his application for the same; provided that such application be made within one year from the sale of the goods, or that sufficient cause be shown for not making it within such period.

If any goods of which the Customs-collector has taken charge under section 83, 84 or 85 be of a perishable nature, the Customs-collector may at any time direct the sale thereof, and shall apply the proceeds in like manner:

Provided that, where any goods liable to be sold under this section are arms, ammunition or military stores, they may be sold or otherwise disposed of at such place (whether within or without British India), and in such manner, as the Local Government may from time to time direct:

Provided also, that nothing in this section shall authorize the removal for home-consumption of any dutiable goods without payment of duties of customs thereon.

CHAPTER X.

OF CLEARANCE OF GOODS FOR HOME-CONSUMPTION.

89. When the owner of any goods entered for home-consumption, and (if such goods be liable to duty) assessed under section 87, has paid the import-duty (if any) assessed on such goods and any charges payable under this Act in respect of the same, the Customs-officer may make an order clearing the same; and such order shall be sufficient authority for the removal of such goods by the owner.

CHAPTER XI.

WAREHOUSING.

Of the admission of goods into a warehouse.

90. When any dutiable goods have been entered for warehousing and assessed under section 87, the owner of such goods may apply for leave to deposit the same in any warehouse appointed or licensed under this Act.

91. Every such application shall be in writing signed by the applicant, and shall be in such form as is from time to time prescribed by the Chief Customs-Authority.

92. When any such application has been made in respect of any goods, the owner of the goods to which it relates shall execute a bond, binding himself, in a penalty of twice the amount of duty assessed under section 87 on such goods,

(a) to observe all rules prescribed by this Act in respect of such goods;

(b) to pay, on demand, all duties, rent and charges claimable on account of such goods under this Act, together with interest on the same from the date of demand, at such rate not exceeding six per cent. per annum as is for the time being fixed by the Chief Customs-Authority; and

(c) to discharge all penalties incurred for violation of the provisions of this Act in respect of such goods.

Every such bond shall be in the Form marked A hereto annexed, or, when such form is inapplicable or insufficient, in such other form as is from time to time prescribed by the Chief Customs-Authority, and shall relate to the cargo or portion of the cargo of one vessel only.

93. When the provisions of sections 91 and 92 have been complied with in respect of any goods, such goods shall be forwarded in charge of an officer of customs to the warehouse in which they are to be deposited.

A pass shall be sent with the goods specifying the name of the importing vessel and of the bonder, the marks, numbers and contents of each package, and the warehouse or place in the warehouse wherein they are to be deposited.

94. On receipt of the goods, the pass shall be examined by the warehouse-keeper, and shall be returned to the Customs-collector.

No package, butt, cask or hogshead shall be admitted into any warehouse unless it bear the marks and numbers specified in, and otherwise correspond with, the pass for its admission.

If the goods be found to correspond with the pass, the warehouse-keeper shall certify to that effect on the pass, and the warehousing of such goods shall be deemed to have been completed.

If the goods do not so correspond, the fact shall be reported by the warehouse-keeper for the orders of the Customs-collector, and the goods shall either be returned to the Custom-house in charge of an officer of Customs or kept in deposit pending such orders, as the warehouse-keeper deems most convenient.

If the quantity or value of any goods has been erroneously stated in the bill of entry, the error may be rectified at any time before the warehousing of the goods is completed, and not subsequently.

95. Except as provided in section 100, all goods shall be warehoused in the packages, butts, casks or hogsheads in which they have been imported.

96. Whenever any goods are lodged in a public warehouse or a licensed private warehouse, the warehouse-keeper, or, in the case of the Bengal Bonded Warehouse Association, the Secretary of the said Association, shall deliver a warrant signed by him as such to the person lodging the goods.

Such warrant shall be in the Form B hereto annexed, and shall be transferable by endorsement; and the endorsee shall be entitled to receive the goods specified in such warrant on the same terms as those on which the person who originally lodged the goods would have been entitled to receive the same.

The Local Government may by notification in the local official Gazette exempt salt and salted fish from the operation of this section and may in like manner cancel such exemption.

Rules relating to goods in a warehouse.

97. The Customs-collector or any officer deputed by him for the purpose, shall have access to any private warehouse licensed under this Act.

98. The Customs-collector may at any time by order in writing direct that any goods or packages lodged in any warehouse shall be opened, weighed or otherwise examined; and after any goods have been so opened or examined, may cause the same to be sealed or marked in such manner as he thinks fit.

When any goods have been so sealed and marked after examination, they shall not be again opened without the permission of the Customs-collector; and when any such goods have been opened with such permission, the packages shall, if he thinks fit, be again sealed or marked as before.

99. Any owner of goods lodged in a warehouse shall, at any time within the hours of business, have access to his goods in presence of an officer of Customs, and an officer of Customs shall, upon application for the purpose being made in writing to the Customs-collector, be deputed to accompany such owner.

*When an officer of Customs is specially employed to accompany such owner, a sum sufficient to meet the expense thereby incurred shall, if the Customs-collector so require, be paid by such owner to the Customs-collector, and such sum shall, if the Customs-collector so direct, be paid in advance.

100. With the sanction of the Customs-collector, and after such notice given, and under such rules and conditions as the Chief Customs-Authority from time to time prescribes, any owner of goods may, either before or after warehousing the same,—

(a) sort, separate, pack and repack the goods and make such alterations therein as may be necessary for the preservation, sale, shipment or disposal thereof (such goods to be repacked in the packages in which they were imported, or in such other packages as the Customs-collector permits);

(b) fill up any casks of wine, spirit or beer from any casks of the same secured in the same warehouse;

(c) mix any wines or spirit of the same sort secured in the same warehouse, erasing from the cask all import-brands, unless the whole of the wine or spirit so mixed be of the same brand;

(d) bottle off wine or spirit from any casks;

(e) take such samples of goods as may be allowed by the Customs-collector with or without entry for home consumption, and with or without payment of duty, except such as may eventually become payable on a deficiency of the original quantity.

After any such goods have been so separated and repacked in proper or approved packages, the Customs-collector may, at the request of the owner of such goods, cause or permit any refuse, damaged, or surplus goods remaining after such separation or repacking (or, at the like request, any goods which may not be worth the duty) to be destroyed, and may remit the duty payable thereon.

101. If goods be lodged in a public warehouse, the owner shall pay monthly, on receiving a bill or written demand for the same from the Customs-collector or other officer deputed by him in that behalf, rent and warehouse-dues at such rates as the Chief Customs-Authority or such officer of customs as such Authority from time to time appoints in this behalf may fix.

A table of the rates of rent and warehouse, dues so fixed shall be placed in a conspicuous part of such warehouse.

If any bill for rent or warehouse-dues presented under this section is not discharged within ten days from the date of presentation, the Customs-collector may, in the discharge of such demand (any transfer or assignment of the goods notwithstanding) cause to be sold by public auction, after due notice in the local official Gazette, such sufficient portion of the goods as he may select.

Out of the proceeds of such sale the Customs-collector shall first satisfy the demand for the discharge of which the sale was ordered, and shall then pay over the surplus (if any) to the owner of the goods.

Provided that the application for such surplus be made within one year from the date of the sale of the goods, or that sufficient cause be shown for not making it within such period.

102. No warehoused goods shall be taken out of Goods not to be taken out of warehouse, except as provided by this Act.

103. Any goods warehoused may be left in the Period for which goods may remain warehoused under bond.

warehouse in which they are deposited or in any warehouse to which they may in manner hereinafter provided be removed till the expiry of three years after the date of the bond executed in relation to such goods under section 92. The owner of any goods remaining in a warehouse on the expiry of such period shall clear the same for home-consumption or shipment in manner hereinafter provided:

Provided that when the license for any private of such goods under section 92, and with the permission of the Chief Customs-Officer, and on such conditions and after giving such security (if any) as such officer directs, remove goods from one warehouse to another warehouse in the same Port.

When any owner desires so to remove any goods, he shall apply for permission to do so in such form as the Chief Customs-Authority from time to time prescribes.

105. Any owner of goods warehoused at any before such removal enter into a bond, with one sufficient surety, in a sum equal at least to the duty chargeable on such goods, for the due arrival and re-warehousing thereof at the Port of destination within such time as the Chief Customs-Authority directs.

Such bond may be taken by the proper officer, either at the Port of removal or at the Port of destination, as best suits the convenience of the owner.

If such bond is taken at the Port of destination, a certificate thereof, signed by the proper officer of such Port, shall, at the time of the removal of such goods, be produced to the proper officer at the Port of removal; and such bond shall not be discharged unless such goods are produced to the proper officer, and duly re-warehoused at the Port of destination within the time allowed for such removal, or are otherwise accounted for to the satisfaction of such officer; nor until the full duty due upon any deficiency of such goods, not so accounted for, has been paid.

107. The Chief Customs-Authority may permit

Remover may enter into a general bond.

any person desirous of removing warehoused goods to enter into a general bond, with such sureties, in such amount, and under such conditions, as the Chief Customs-Authority approves, for the removal, from time to time, of any goods from one warehouse to another, either in the same or in a different Port, and for the due arrival and re-warehousing of such goods at the Port of destination within such time as such Authority directs.

108. Upon the arrival of warehoused goods at in respect of any goods shall, unless the Chief Officer of Customs in any case deems a fresh bond to be necessary, continue in force, notwithstanding the subsequent removal of such goods to another warehouse or warehousing port.

Clearance for home-consumption or shipment.

110. Any owner of goods warehoused may, at any time within three years from the date of the bond executed under section 92 in respect of such goods, clear such goods for home-consumption by paying (1) the duty assessed on such goods under section 87, or where the duty on such goods is altered under the provisions hereinafter contained, such altered duty; and (2) all rent, penalties, interest and other charges payable to the Customs-collector in respect of such goods.

111. Any owner of goods warehoused may, at any time within three years from the date of the bond executed under section 92, in respect of such goods clear such goods for shipment to a Foreign Port on payment of all rent, penalties, interest and other charges payable as aforesaid and without payment of import duty on the same :

Provided that the Governor General in Council may prohibit the shipment for exportation to any specified foreign port of warehoused goods in respect of which payment of drawback or transshipment has been prohibited under section 49 or 134 respectively.

112. Provisions and stores warehoused at the time of importation may within the said period of three years be shipped without payment of duty for use on board of any vessel proceeding to a Foreign Port.

Clearance of same for shipment as provisions, &c., on vessels proceeding to Foreign Ports.

113. Application to clear goods from any warehouse for home-consumption or for shipment shall be made in such form as the Chief Customs-Authority from time to time prescribes.

Form of application for clearance of goods.

Such application shall ordinarily be made to the Customs-collector at least twenty-four hours before it is intended so to clear such goods.

Application when to be made.

114. If any goods upon which duties are leviable ad valorem or on a tariff valuation receive damage through unavoidable accident after they have been entered for warehousing and assessed under section 87, and before they are cleared for home-consumption, they shall, if the owner so desires, be re-assessed for duty according to their actual value, and a new bond for the same may, at the option of the owner, be executed for the unexpired term of warehousing.

Re-assessment of warehoused goods when damaged.

115. If after any goods entered for warehousing have been assessed under section 87, any alteration is made in the duty leviable upon such goods or in the tariff valuation (if any) applicable thereto, such goods shall be re-assessed in accordance with the second proviso to section 87.

Re-assessment on alteration of duty or tariff valuation.

116. If it appear at the time of clearing any wine, spirit, beer or salt from any warehouse for home consumption that there exists a deficiency not otherwise accounted for to the satisfaction of the Customs-collector, an allowance on account of ullage and wastage shall be made in adjusting the duties thereon, as follows (namely),

Allowance in case of wine, spirit, beer or salt.

(a) upon wine, spirit and beer in cask to an extent not exceeding the rates specified below, or such other rates as may from time to time be prescribed in this behalf by the Local Government and notified in the official Gazette :

For any time not exceeding 6 months	12	5	24 per cent.
Exceeding 6 months and not exceeding 12 months	15	5	"
Exceeding 12 months and not exceeding 18 months	18	5	"
Exceeding 18 months and not exceeding 24 months	21	5	"
Exceeding 24 months and not exceeding 30 months	24	5	"

(b) in the case of salt warehoused in a public ware house, only the amount actually cleared shall be charged with Customs-duties ;

(c) in the case of salt warehoused in a private ware house, wastage shall be allowed at such rate as may be prescribed from time to time by the Local Government and notified in the local official Gazette.

117. When any wine, spirit, beer or salt lodged in a warehouse is found to be deficient at the time of the delivery therefrom, and such deficiency is proved to be due solely to ullage or wastage, the Chief Customs-Authority may direct, in respect of any such article, that allowance be made in any special case for a rate of ullage or wastage exceeding that contemplated in section 116.

Of the forfeiture and discharge of the bond.

118. If any warehoused goods are removed from the warehouse in contravention of section 102 ; or if any such goods have not been removed from the warehouse at the expiration of the time during which such goods are permitted by section 103 to remain in such warehouse ; or if any goods in respect of which a bond has been executed under section 92 and which have not been or lost or destroyed.

When goods are improperly removed from warehouses or allowed to remain beyond time fixed.

cleared for home consumption, or shipment or removed under this Act, are lost or destroyed otherwise than as provided in section 100 or as mentioned in section 122, or are not accounted for to the satisfaction of the Customs-collector, or if any such goods have been taken under section 100 as samples without payment of duty, the Customs-collector may thereupon demand, and the owner of such goods shall forthwith pay, the full amount of duty chargeable on account of such goods, together with all rent, penalties, interest and other charges payable to the Customs-collector on account of the same.

Collector may demand duty, &c.

119. If any owner fails to pay any sum so demanded, the Customs-collector may forthwith either proceed upon the bond executed under section 92, or cause such portion as he thinks fit of the goods (if any) in the warehouse on account of which the amount is due, to be detained with a view to the recovery of the demand ; and if the demand be not discharged within ten days from the date of such detention (due notice thereof being given to the owner), the goods so detained may be sold by public auction duly advertised in the local official Gazette.

Procedure on failure to pay duty, &c.

The net proceeds of any sale so made of goods so detained shall be written off upon the bond in discharge thereof to the amount received, and if any surplus be obtained from such sale, beyond the amount of the demand, such surplus shall be paid to the owner of the goods : Provided that application for the same be made within one year from the sale, or that sufficient cause be shown for not making the application within such period.

* No transfer or assignment of the goods shall prevent the Customs-collector from proceeding against such goods in the manner above provided, for any amount due thereon.

120. When any warehoused goods are taken out of any warehouse, the Customs-collector shall cause the fact to be noted on the back of the bond.

Noting removal of goods.

Every note so made shall specify the quantity and description of such goods, the purpose for which they have been removed, the date of removal, the name of the person removing them, the number and date of the shipping bill under which they have been taken away if removed for exportation by sea, or of the bill of entry if removed for home-consumption, and the amount of duty paid (if any).

121. A register shall be kept of all bonds entered into for Customs-duties on warehoused goods, and entry shall be made in such register of all particulars required by section 120 to be specified.

When such register shows that the whole of the goods covered by any bond have been cleared for home-consumption or shipment, or otherwise duly accounted for, and when all amounts due on account of such goods have been paid, the Customs-collector shall cancel such bond as discharged in full, and shall on demand deliver it, so cancelled, to the person who has executed or who is entitled to receive it.

Miscellaneous.

122. If any goods in respect of which a bond has been executed under section 92 and which have not been cleared for home consumption are lost or destroyed by unavoidable accident or delay, the Chief Customs-Authority may in its discretion remit the duties due thereon.

Provided that, if any such goods be so lost or destroyed in a private warehouse, notice thereof be given to the Customs-collector within forty-eight hours after the discovery of such loss or destruction.

123. The warehouse-keeper in respect of goods lodged in a public warehouse, and the licensee in respect of goods lodged in a private warehouse, shall be responsible for their due reception therein and delivery therefrom, and for their safe custody while deposited therein, according to the quantity, weight or gauge reported by the Custom-house officer who has assessed such goods, allowance being made, if necessary, for ullage and wastage as provided in sections 116 and 117.

Provided that no owner of goods shall be entitled to claim from the Customs-collector, or from any keeper of a public warehouse, compensation for any loss or damage occurring to such goods while they are being passed into or out of such warehouse, or while they remain therein, unless it be proved that such loss or damage was occasioned by the wilful act or neglect of the warehouse-keeper or of an officer of Customs.

124. Every public warehouse shall be under the lock and key of a warehouse-keeper appointed by the Chief Officer of Customs.

125. The Chief Customs-Authority, or such officer of customs as such Authority from time to time appoints in this behalf, may from time to time determine in what division of any public warehouse, and in what manner, and on what terms, any goods may be deposited, and what sort of goods may be deposited in any such warehouse.

126. The expenses of carriage, packing and stowage of goods on their reception into or removal from a public warehouse shall, if paid by the Customs-collector or by the warehouse-keeper, be chargeable on the goods, and be defrayed by, and recoverable from, the owner, in the manner provided in section 119.

127. All the provisions of this Act, relating to private warehouses, shall be applicable to the warehouses wherein the Bengal Bonded Warehouse Association receives bonded goods.

CHAPTER XII.

TRANSHIPMENT.

128. In the Ports of Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, Kárwár, Karáchi, Aden, Rangoon, Moulmain, Akyab, Chittagong, and such other ports as the Governor or General in Council may from time to time, by notification in the Gazette of India, direct in this behalf, the Customs-collector may, on application by the owner of any goods imported into such Port, and specially and distinctly manifested at the time of importation as for transshipment to some other Customs or Foreign Port, grant leave to tranship the same without payment of the duty, (if any) leviable, at the Port of transshipment, and without any security or bond for the due arrival and entry of the goods at the Port of destination.

In any Customs-port other than a Port in which the preceding clause may for the time being be in force, the Customs-collector may, on application by the owner of any goods so imported and manifested, grant leave for transshipment without payment of the duty (if any) leviable at such Port; provided that, where the goods so transhipped are dutiable, and are to be removed to some other Customs-port, the applicant shall enter into a bond, with such security as may be required of him, in a sum equal at least to the duty chargeable on such goods, for the due arrival and entry thereof at the Port of destination within such time as such Customs-collector directs.

129. An officer of Customs shall, in every case, be deputed free of charge to superintend the removal of transhipped goods from vessel to vessel.

130. The powers conferred on the Customs-collector by section 128 shall be exercised, and the transshipment shall be performed, subject to such rules as may from time to time be made by the Local Government.

No rules made under this section shall come into force until after the expiry of such reasonable time from the date of the publication of the same as the Local Government may in each case appoint in this behalf.

131. All goods transhipped under the second clause of section 128 for removal to a Customs-port shall on their arrival at such Port be entered in like manner as goods are entered on the first importation thereof, and under the laws and rules, in so far as such laws and rules can be made applicable, which regulate the entry of such last-mentioned goods.

132. If two or more vessels belonging wholly or in part to the same owner be at any Customs-port at the same time, any provisions and stores in use or ordinarily shipped for use on board may, at the discretion of the Customs-collector, be transhipped from one such vessel to any other such vessel without payment of import-duty.

133. A transhipment-fee on any goods or class of goods transhipped under this Act, may be levied at such rates, on each bale or package, or according to weight, measurement, quantity, or number, and under such rules as the Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor or General in Council, may from time to time by notification in the local official Gazette prescribe for each port.

134. The Governor General in Council may from time to time, by notification in the Gazette of India, prohibit, at any specified Port, or at all Ports, the transhipment, of any specified class of goods, generally or when destined for any specified ports, or prescribe any special mode of transhipping any specified class of goods.

No goods to be transhipped except as provided.
place in British India

135. Except as provided in this Act, no goods shall be transhipped at any Port or

CHAPTER XIII.

EXPORTATION OR SHIPMENT, AND RE-LANDING.

136. Except with the written permission of the Customs-collector, no goods other than passengers' baggage, or ballast urgently required for a vessel's safety shall be shipped or water-borne to be shipped in any vessel in a Customs-port until an order has been obtained under section 61 for entry outwards of such vessel.

When such order has been obtained, the export cargo of such vessel may be shipped, subject to the provisions next hereinafter contained.

137. Unless the Chief Customs-Authority shall, in the case of any Customs-port or wharf, or of any class of goods, otherwise direct by notification in the local official Gazette, no goods, except passengers' baggage, shall be shipped or water-borne to be shipped for exportation, until—

(a) the owner has delivered to the Customs-collector, or other proper officer, a shipping-bill of such goods in duplicate in such form and containing such particulars in addition to those specified in section 29 as may from time to time be prescribed by the Chief Customs-Authority ;

(b) such owner has paid the duties (if any) payable on such goods ; and

(c) such bill has been passed by the Customs-collector.

138. Before any warehoused goods or goods subject to excise-duties, or goods entitled to drawback of Customs-duties on exportation, or goods exportable only under particular rules or restrictions, are permitted to be exported, the owner shall, if required so to do, give security by bond in such sum, not exceeding twice the duty leviable on such goods, as the Customs-collector directs, with one sufficient surety, that such goods shall be duly shipped, exported and landed at the place for which they are entered outwards, or shall be otherwise accounted for to the satisfaction of such officer.

139. When goods are cleared for shipment on a shipping-bill presented after port-clearance has been granted, the Customs-collector may, if he thinks fit, levy, in addition to any duty to which such goods are ordinarily liable, a charge not exceeding—

(a) in the case of goods liable to duties on fixed tariff valuations, one per cent. on the tariff value ;

(b) in the case of all other goods, one per cent. on the market value.

Nothing in this section shall apply to any shipment of treasure or opium.

140. If any goods mentioned in a shipping-bill or manifest be not shipped, or be shipped and afterwards re-landed, the owner shall, before the expiration of five clear working days after the vessel on which such goods were intended to be shipped, or from which they were re-landed, has left the Port, give information of such short-shipment or re-landing to the Customs-collector.

Upon an application being made to the Customs-collector, any duty levied upon goods not shipped, or upon goods shipped and afterwards re-landed, shall be refunded to the person on whose behalf such duty was paid : Provided that no such refund shall be allowed unless information has been given as above required.

141. If, after having cleared from any Customs-port any vessel, without having discharged her cargo, returns to such Port, or puts into any other Customs-port, any owner of goods in such vessel, if he desires to land or tranship the same or any portion thereof for re-export, may, with the consent of the Master, apply to the Customs-collector in that behalf.

The Customs-collector, if he grant the application, shall thereupon send an officer of Customs to watch the vessel, and to take charge of such goods during such re-landing or transhipment.

Such goods shall not be allowed to be transhipped or re-exported free of duty by reason of the previous settlement of duty at the time of first export, unless they are lodged and remain until the time of re-export, under the custody of an officer of Customs, in a place appointed by the Customs-collector, or are transhipped under such custody.

All expenses attending such custody shall be borne by the owner.

142. In either of the cases mentioned in section 141, the Master of the vessel returning to port may enter and land goods under import-rules, and any owner of goods therein may, with the consent of the Master, land the same under the rules herein contained for the importation of goods.

In every such case, any export-duty levied shall be refunded to, and any amount paid in drawback shall be recovered from, such owner.

143. The Customs-collector may, on application by the Master of any vessel, which is obliged before completing her voyage to put into any Customs-port for repairs, permit him to land the cargo, or any portion thereof, and to place it in the custody of an officer of Customs during such repairs, and to re-ship and export the same free of duty.

All expenses attending such custody shall be borne by the Master.

CHAPTER XIV.

SPIRIT.

Exportation of spirit under bond for excise-duty.

144. The Chief Customs-Authority may from time to time make rules prescribing the conditions on which spirit manufactured in British India may be removed from any licensed distillery for exportation without payment of excise-duty.

The person so removing any such spirit shall execute a bond with one or more sureties, in the form marked C hereto annexed, or (when such form is inapplicable or insufficient) in such other form as the said Authority from time to time prescribes, conditioned that such duty shall be paid on all such spirit as is

(a) not exported within four months from the date of the bond, or

(b) exported to a Customs-port unless the payment of excise-duty as provided by this chapter in respect thereof at the port of destination is within six months from the date of the bond proved to the satisfaction of the proper officer.

The Chief Officer of Customs of the port of exportation may, on sufficient cause shown, extend for a further term not exceeding four months the period allowed for the exportation of any such spirit, or for the production of such proof that duty has been paid.

145. Spirit intended for exportation under bond for the excise-duty shall be taken from the distillery direct to the Custom-house, under passes to be granted for that purpose by the officers of Excise.

146. Spirit brought to the Custom-house for exportation under bond for the excise-duty shall, previous to shipment, be gauged and proved by an officer of Customs, and the quantity of spirit for which credit is to be given in the settlement of any bond shall be determined in the same manner.

147. Excise-duty shall be recoverable previous to shipment upon the excess on any deficiency in (if any) of the quantity of spirit under bond. spirit passed from a distillery over the quantity ascertained by gauge and proof at the Custom-house, less an allowance for ullage and wastage at such rates as are from time to time prescribed by the Local Government and notified in the local official Gazette.

148. Spirit exported under bond for excise-duty from any Customs-port to any other Customs-port, shall be charged at the Port of importation with excise-duty at the ordinary rate to which spirit of the like kind and strength is liable at such Port.

149. Spirit brought to the Custom-house for exportation under bond for the excise-duty may, on payment of such duty, be removed for local consumption under passes to be granted for that purpose by the officers of Excise.

Credit for every such payment shall be given in discharge of the bond to which it relates.

Drawback of excise duty on export of spirit.

150. A drawback of excise-duty paid on spirit manufactured in British India and exported to any Foreign Port under the provisions of section 138, shall be allowed by the Customs-collector at the Port of exportation:

Provided that the exportation be made within one year from the date of payment of such excise-duty, and that the spirit, when brought to the Custom-house, be accompanied by a pass in which such payment is certified.

Such drawback shall be regulated by the strength and quantity of such spirit as ascertained by gauge and proof by an officer of customs.

Miscellaneous.

151. If spirit manufactured in British India upon which excise-duty has been paid is exported from one Customs port to another, and the rate of local excise-duty at the port of importation is higher than that already paid upon such spirit, a differential duty shall be charged thereon, at such rate as the Local Government at such Port may by notification in the local official Gazette from time to time prescribe.

152. Rum-shrub, cordial, and other such liquor prepared in a licensed distillery under the supervision of the surveyor or officer in charge of the distillery shall be charged with excise-duty under this Act according to the quantity of spirit used in its preparation as ascertained by such surveyor or officer.

The provisions of this Act respecting spirit, except such as relate to gauge and proof, shall apply to such liquor.

153. No drawback shall be allowed for any spirit on which duty has been paid, nor shall the duty be remitted, unless the spirit is shipped from the Custom-house, and in a vessel whereon an officer of Customs has been appointed to superintend the receipt of export-cargo.

154. No spirit shipped for exportation shall be re-landed without a special pass from an officer of Excise, in addition to any permission of an officer of Customs which may be required by the law for the time being in force.

155. When by any law for the time being in force a special duty is imposed on spirit rendered unfit for human consumption, the Local Government may from time to time make rules for ascertaining and determining what spirit imported into British India shall be deemed to have been effectually and permanently so rendered unfit and for causing such spirit to be so rendered, if necessary, by their own officers, and at the expense of the person importing the same, before the Customs-duties leviable thereon are levied.

In the absence of any such rules, or if any dispute arises as to their applicability, the Chief Customs-Officer shall decide what spirit is subject only to the said special duty, and such decision shall be final.

CHAPTER XV. COASTING TRADE.

156. Except as hereinafter provided, nothing in Chapters VII, IX, X, and part of XIII inapplicable to coasting trade, sections 136, 139 and 141 to 143 inclusive of this Act shall apply to coasting vessels or to goods imported or exported in such vessels.

157. The Local Government may, from time to time, make rules consistent with the provisions of this Chapter,

(a) extending any provision of the Chapters and Sections mentioned in section 156 with or without modification to any coasting vessels or to any goods imported or exported in such vessels;

(b) exempting any such vessels or goods from any of the other provisions of this Act except those contained in this Chapter;

(c) prescribing the conditions on which goods, or any specified class of goods, may be (1) carried in a coasting vessel, whether shipped at a Foreign Port, or at a Customs-port, or at a place declared under section 12 to be a port; (2) shipped in a coasting vessel before all dutiable goods and goods brought in such vessel from a Foreign Port have been unladen;

(d) prohibiting the conveyance of any specified class of goods generally, or to or between specified Ports in a coasting vessel;

158. Before any coasting vessel departs from the port of lading or when there are more ports of lading than one, the first port of lading, the Master shall fill in, sign and deliver to the

Customs-collector a manifest in duplicate containing a true specification of all goods to be carried in such vessel, in such form, and accompanied by such shipping-bills or other documents as may from time to time be prescribed by the Chief Customs-Authority

If the Customs-collector sees no objection to the departure of the vessel, he shall retain the duplicate and return the original manifest dated and signed by him together with its accompaniments; and such manifest shall be the port-clearance of the vessel unless, under the general orders of the Chief Customs-Authority, a separate port-clearance be prescribed.

159. Within twenty-four hours after the arrival of any coasting vessel at any Customs-port, whether intermediate or final, and before any goods are there discharged, the manifest, together with the other documents referred to in section 158, shall be delivered to the Customs-collector, who shall note on the manifest the date of delivery.

If the vessel has touched at any Foreign Port between such Port of arrival and her last preceding Customs-port of departure, the Master shall append to the manifest a declaration to that effect, and shall also indicate on the manifest the portions (if any) of the cargo therein described which have been discharged, and subjoin thereto a true specification of all goods shipped at such Port.

If the Customs-port of arrival be an intermediate Port, and a portion only of the cargo is to be discharged thereat, the Master shall likewise so deliver an extract from the manifest signed by him, relating to such portion, and the Customs-collector shall, after verifying such extract, return to him the original manifest and all documents accompanying it except those relating to such portion.

If in any case the cargo actually on board any coasting vessel on her arrival at any Customs-port does not, owing to short-shipment, re-landing, or other cause, correspond with the specification thereof in the manifest returned to the Master under the second clause of section 158, such Master shall, before delivery of such manifest under this section, note thereon the particulars of the difference.

The Customs-collector, when satisfied with the manifest and other documents, shall grant an order to break bulk.

160. Before any coasting vessel departs from any Customs-port at which she has touched during her voyage, the Master shall re-deliver the original manifest to the Customs-collector, after indicating thereon the portions (if any) of the cargo therein described which have been discharged, and subjoining thereto a true specification of all goods shipped at such Port. He shall also deliver a duplicate, signed by him, of the specification so subjoined.

If the Customs-collector sees no objection to the departure of the vessel, he shall proceed as prescribed in the second clause of section 158.

161. The Customs-collector may, for sufficient reason, refuse port-clearance to any coasting vessel declared to be bound to, or about to touch at, any Customs-port, unless the owner or Master gives a bond with such security as the Customs-collector deems sufficient for the production to the Customs-collector of a certificate from the proper officer of the Port to which such vessel is said to be bound, of her arrival at such Port within a reasonable time to be prescribed in each case by the Customs-collector.

162. When permission has been granted by the Customs-collector for the discharge of cargo from any coasting vessel—

(a) if the vessel has not touched at any intermediate Foreign Port in the course of her voyage, and has not on board any dutiable goods, the cargo may be forthwith landed and removed by the owner, without entry thereof at the Custom-house and clearance for home-consumption, but subject to such general check and control as the Chief Customs-Authority may from time to time by rules prescribe;

(b) if the vessel has so touched at any such Port, or has on board any such goods, such vessel shall be subject to all the provisions of Chapter VII of this Act relating to vessels arriving and such goods, and until such goods have been duly discharged all other goods on board shall be subject to the provisions of Chapter IX of this Act relating to goods imported.

163. If any of the goods on board of any coasting vessel be subject to any excise-duty, they shall not be unladen without the permission of the proper officer of Excise.

164. Notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, the Chief Customs Authority may authorize the Customs-collector to grant a general pass, on any conditions which such Authority thinks expedient, for the lading and clearance, and for the entry and unlading, of any coasting steam-vessel at any Ports of despatch or destination, or at any intermediate Ports at which she touches for the purpose of receiving goods or passengers.

Such pass shall be valid throughout British India, or for such Ports only as may be specified therein.

Any such general pass may be revoked by order of the Chief Customs-Authority by whom the grant thereof was authorized, by notice in writing under the hand of such Authority, delivered to the Master or to the owner of such steam-vessel, or to any of the crew on board.

165. The Chief Customs-Authority may direct that the Master of any coasting vessel which is square-rigged or propelled by steam shall keep, or cause to be kept, a cargo-book, stating the name of the Master, the vessel, the Port to which she belongs, and the Port to which on each voyage she is bound.

At every Port of lading such Master shall enter, or cause to be entered, in such book the name of such Port, and an account of all goods there taken on board of such vessel, with a description of the packages, and the quantities and descriptions of the goods contained therein or stowed loose, and the names of the respective shippers and consignees, in so far as such particulars are known to him.

At every Port of discharge of any such goods such Master shall enter, or cause to be entered, in such book the respective days on which such goods or any of them are delivered out of such vessel.

The respective times of departure from every Port of lading, and of arrival at every Port of discharge, shall in like manner be duly entered.

Every such Master shall, on demand, produce his cargo-book for the inspection of any officer of Customs, and such officer shall be at liberty to make any note or remark therein.

The Chief Customs-Authority may, in the case of any vessel the Master whereof has been directed to keep a cargo-book under this section, dispense with the manifest required under sections 158, 159 and 160.

166. Any duly empowered officer of Customs may go on board of any coasting vessel in any Port or place in British India, and may at any period of a voyage search any such vessel and examine all goods on board, and all goods then lading or unlading, and may demand the production of any document, which ought to be on board of any such vessel.

The Customs-collector may further require that any such document belonging to any coasting vessel then in Port shall be brought to him for inspection.

CHAPTER XVI.

OFFENCES AND PENALTIES.

167. The offences mentioned in the first column of the following schedule shall be punishable to the extent mentioned in the third column of the same with reference to such offences respectively :

Offences.	Section of this Act to which offence has reference.	Penalties.

3.—If any person ship or land goods, or aid in the shipment or landing of goods, or knowingly keep or conceal, or knowingly permit or procure to be kept or concealed, any goods shipped or landed, or intended to be shipped or landed, contrary to the provisions of this Act ; or if any person be found to have been on board of any vessel liable to confiscation on account of the commission of an offence under No. 2 of this section, while such vessel is within any bay, river, creek or arm of the sea which is not a port for the landing or shipment of goods,	General 11	such person shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees.
4.—If any vessel which has been within the limits of any Port in British India with cargo on board, be afterwards found in any port, bay, river, creek or arm of the sea in British India, light or in ballast, and if the Master be unable to give a due account of the Customs-port where such vessel lawfully discharged her cargo,	11	such vessel shall be liable to confiscation.
5.—If any goods are put, without the authority of the proper officer of Customs, on board of any tug-steamer or pilot-vessel from any sea-going vessel inward-bound ; or if any goods are put, without such authority, out of any tug-steamer or pilot-vessel for the purpose of being put on board of any such vessel outward-bound ; or if any goods on which drawback has been granted are put, without such authority, on board of any tug-steamer or pilot-vessel for the purpose of being re-landed,	11	such goods shall be liable to confiscation, and the Master of every such tug-steamer or pilot-vessel shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees.

OFFENCES AND PENALTIES—contd.

Offences.	Section of this Act to which offence has reference.	Penalties.
6.—If any vessel arriving at, or departing from, any Customs-port fails, when so required under section 17, to bring to at any such station as has been appointed by the Chief Customs-Authority for the boarding or landing of an officer of Customs,	17	the Master of such vessel shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees.
7.—If any vessel arriving at any Customs-port, after having come to its proper place of mooring or unloading, removes from such place, except with the authority of the Conservator, obtained in accordance with the provisions of the Indian Ports Act, 1875, or other lawful authority, to some other place of mooring or unloading, or if any vessel not brought into Port by a Pilot be not anchored or moored in accordance with any direction of the Chief Customs-Authority under section 17,	17	the Master of such vessel shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five hundred rupees, and the vessel, if not entered, shall not be allowed to enter until the penalty is paid.
8.—If any goods, the importation or exportation of which is for the time being prohibited or restricted by or under Chapter IV of this Act, be imported into or exported from British India contrary to such prohibition or restriction; or if any attempt be made so to import or export any such goods; or if any such goods be found in any package produced to any officer of Customs as containing no such goods; or if any such goods, or any dutiable goods be found either before or after landing or shipment to have been concealed in any manner on board of any vessel within the limits of any port in British India; or if any goods, the exportation of which is prohibited or restricted as aforesaid, be brought to any wharf in order to be put on board of any vessel for exportation contrary to such prohibition or restriction,	18 & 19	such goods shall be liable to confiscation; and any person concerned in any such offence shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding three times the value of the goods, or not exceeding one thousand rupees.
9.—If upon an application to pass any goods through the Custom-house, any person not being the owner of such goods, and not having proper and sufficient authority from the owner, subscribes or attests any document relating to any goods on behalf of such owner,	General	such person shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees.

OFFENCES AND PENALTIES—contd.

Offences.	Section of this Act to which offence has reference.	Penalties.
10.—If any goods, on the entry of which for re-export drawback has been paid, are not duly exported or are unshipped or relanded at any Customs-port (not having been duly relanded or discharged under the provisions of this Act).	42 & 43	such goods, together with any vessel used in so unshipping or relanding them, shall be liable to confiscation; and the Master of the vessel from which such goods are so unshipped or relanded, and any person by whom or by whose orders or means such goods are so unshipped or relanded, or who aids or is concerned in such unshipping or relanding, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding three times the value of such goods, or not exceeding one thousand rupees.
11.—If any wine, spirit, provisions or stores be not laden on board of the vessel on board of which they should under the provisions of section 45, 46, 47 or 48 be laden, or be unladen from such vessel without the permission of the proper officer of Customs,	44 to 48	such wine, spirit, provisions or stores shall be liable to confiscation.
12.—If any goods be entered for drawback, which are of less value than the amount of the drawback claimed,	50	such goods shall be liable to confiscation.
13.—If, in any river or Port wherein a place has been fixed under section 53 by the Local Government, any vessel arriving passes beyond such place, before delivery of a manifest to the pilot, officer of Customs, or other person duly authorized to receive the same, or	53	the Master of such vessel shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees.
14.—If the Master of any vessel arriving which remains outside or below any place so fixed wilfully omits, for the space of twenty-four hours after anchoring, to deliver a manifest as required by this Act.	„	such Master shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees.
15.—If, after any vessel arriving has entered any Customs-port in which a place has not been fixed under section 53, the Master of such vessel wilfully omits, for the space of twenty-four hours after anchoring, to deliver a manifest as required by this Act.	54	ditto ditto.
16.—If any manifest delivered under section 53, 54, 60, 63 or 66 is not signed by the person delivering the same and is not in the form or does not contain the particulars required by section 55 or 63, as the case may be, in so far as such particulars are applicable to the ship, cargo and voyage; or if any manifest so delivered does not contain a specification true to the best of such person's knowledge of all goods imported or to be exported in such vessel,	55 & 63 „	the person delivering such manifest shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees.

Offences.	Section of this Act to which offence has reference.	Penalties.
17.—If any goods entered in the import manifest of a vessel are not found on board of the vessel; or if the quantity so found is short, and if such deficiency is not accounted for to the satisfaction of the officer in charge of the Custom-house;	55 & 61	the Master of such vessel shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding twice the amount of duty chargeable on the missing or deficient goods, if they be dutiable and the duty leviable thereon can be ascertained, or otherwise to a penalty not exceeding five hundred rupees for every missing or deficient package or separate article.
18.—If any person required by this Act to receive a manifest from any Master of a vessel, refuses so to do, or fails to countersign the same or to enter thereon the particulars referred to in section 58,	53, 54 & 56	such person shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five hundred rupees.
19.—If bulk be broken in any vessel previous to the grant by the Customs-collector, of an order for entry inwards or a special pass permitting bulk to be broken,	57 & 59	the Master of such vessel shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees.
20.—If any bill of lading or copy required under section 58 is false and the Master is unable to satisfy the Customs-collector that he was not aware of the fact; or if any such bill or copy has been altered with fraudulent intent; or if the goods mentioned in any such bill or copy have not been bona fide shipped as shewn therein; or if any such bill of lading or any bill of lading of which a copy is delivered, has not been made previously to the departure of the vessel from the place where the goods referred to in such bill of lading were shipped; or if any part of the cargo has been staved, destroyed or thrown overboard; or if any package has been opened, and such part of the cargo or such package be not accounted for to the satisfaction of the Customs-collector,	58	the Master of the vessel shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees.
21.—If any Master of a vessel attempts to depart without a port-clearance,	62	such Master shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five hundred rupees.
22.—If any vessel actually departs without a port-clearance,	62	the Master of such vessel shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees.
23.—If any pilot takes charge of any vessel proceeding to sea, notwithstanding that the Master of such vessel does not produce a port-clearance,	62	such pilot, on conviction before a Magistrate, shall be liable to fine not exceeding one thousand rupees.
24.—If any Master of a vessel refuses to receive on board an officer of Customs deputed under section 67,	68	such Master shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five hundred rupees for each day during which such officer is not received on board; and the vessel

CHAPTER XVII.

PROCEDURE RELATING TO OFFENCES, APPEALS, &c.

169. Any officer of Customs duly employed in the prevention of smuggling

Power to search on reasonable suspicion.

may search any person on board of any vessel in any Port in British India, or any person who has landed from any vessel:

Provided that such officer has reason to believe that such person has dutiable or prohibited goods secreted about his person.

170. When any officer of Customs is about to search any person under the provisions of section 169, such person may require the said officer to take him, previous to search, before the nearest Magistrate or Customs-collector.

Persons may, before search, require to be taken before Magistrate or Customs-collector.

If such requisition be made, the officer of Customs may detain the person making it until he can bring him before the nearest Magistrate or Customs-collector.

The Magistrate or Customs-collector before whom any person is so brought shall, if he see no reasonable ground for search, forthwith discharge such person; but if otherwise, shall direct that the search be made.

A female shall not be searched by any but a female.

171. Any duly empowered officer of Customs

Power to stop vessels, carts, &c., and search for goods on reasonable suspicion.

or other person duly employed for the prevention of smuggling, may stop and search for smuggled goods any vessel, cart or other means of conveyance; provided that he has reason to believe that smuggled goods are contained therein.

172. Any Magistrate may, on application by

Power to issue search-warrants.

a Customs-collector, stating his belief that dutiable or prohibited goods are secreted in any place within the local limits of the jurisdiction of such Magistrate, issue a warrant to search for such goods.

Such warrant shall be executed in the same way, and shall have the same effect, as a search-warrant issued under the law relating to Criminal Procedure.

173. Any person against whom a reasonable

Persons reasonably suspected may be arrested.

suspicion exists that he has been guilty of an offence under this Act, may be arrested in any place, either upon land or water, by any officer of Customs or other person duly employed for the prevention of smuggling.

174. Every person arrested on the ground that he has been guilty of an offence under this Act, shall forthwith be taken before the nearest Magistrate or Customs-collector.

175. When any such person is taken before a Magistrate, such Magistrate may, if he thinks fit, either commit him to gaol or order him to be kept in the custody of the Police for such time as is necessary to enable such Magistrate to communicate with the proper officers of Customs:

Provided that any person so arrested, committed, or kept shall be released on giving security to the satisfaction of the Magistrate to appear at such time and place as such Magistrate appoints in this behalf.

176. If any person liable to be arrested under this Act, is not arrested at the time of committing the offence for which he is so liable, or after arrest, makes his escape, he may at any time afterwards be arrested and taken before a Magistrate, to be dealt with as if he had been arrested at the time of committing such offence.

177. When any person employed on the crew of any of the ships of Her Majesty's Navy, Indian Marine or Marine Survey is arrested under this Act, the arresting officer shall forthwith give notice thereof to the commanding officer of the ship, who shall thereupon place such person in security on board of such ship, until the arresting officer has obtained a warrant from a Magistrate for bringing up such person to be dealt with according to law.

The Magistrate shall grant such warrant upon complaint made to him by the arresting officer, stating the offence for which the person is detained.

178. Any thing liable to confiscation under this Act may be seized in any place, either upon land or water, by any officer of Customs or other person duly employed for the prevention of smuggling.

179. All things seized on the ground that they are liable to confiscation under this Act shall, as soon as conveniently may be, be delivered into the care of any Customs officer authorized to receive the same.

If there be no such officer at hand, all such things shall be carried to and deposited at the Custom-house nearest to the place of seizure.

If there be no Custom-house within a convenient distance, such things shall be deposited at the nearest place appointed by the Chief Customs-Authority for the deposit of things so seized.

180. When any things liable to confiscation under this Act are seized by any Police-officer on suspicion that they have been stolen, he may carry them to any Police-station or Court at which a complaint connected with the stealing or receiving of such things has been made, or an enquiry connected with such stealing or receiving is in progress, and there detain such things until the dismissal of such complaint or the conclusion of such enquiry or of any trial thence resulting.

In every such case the Police-officer seizing the things shall send written notice of their seizure and detention to the nearest Custom-house; and immediately after the dismissal of the complaint or the conclusion of the enquiry or trial, he shall cause such things to be conveyed to, and deposited at, the nearest Custom-house, to be there proceeded against according to law.

181. When any thing is or seized, or any person is arrested, under this Act, the officer or other person making such seizure or arrest shall, on demand of the person in charge of the thing so seized, or of the person so arrested, give him a statement in writing of the reason for such seizure or arrest.

182. In every case except the cases mentioned in section 167, Nos. 26, 72 and 73 to 76 both inclusive, in which, under this Act, any thing is liable to confiscation or to increased rates of duty; or any person is liable to a penalty, such confiscation, increased rate of duty or penalty may be adjudged—

(a) without limit, by a Deputy Commissioner or Deputy Collector of Customs, or a Customs-collector;

(b) up to confiscation of goods not exceeding two hundred and fifty rupees in value, and imposition of penalty or increased duty not exceeding one-hundred rupees by an Assistant Commissioner or Assistant Collector of Customs;

(c) up to confiscation of goods not exceeding fifty rupees in value, and imposition of penalty or increased duty not exceeding ten rupees, by such other subordinate officers of Customs as the Local Government may, from time to time, empower in that behalf in virtue of their office:

Provided that the Local Government may, in the case of any officer, performing the duties of a Customs-collector, limit his powers to those indicated in clause (b) or in clause (c) of this section, and may confer on any officer by name, or in virtue of his office, the powers indicated in clauses (a), (b) or (c) of this section.

183. Whenever confiscation is authorized by this Act, the officer adjudging it shall give the owner of the goods an option to pay in lieu of confiscation such fine as the officer thinks fit.

184. When anything is confiscated under section 182, such thing shall thereupon vest in Her Majesty.

The officer adjudging confiscation shall take and hold possession of the thing confiscated, and every officer of Police, on the requisition of such officer, shall assist him in taking and holding such possession.

185. If any vessel actually departs without a port-clearance, or after failing to bring-to when required at any station appointed under section 17, the penalty to which the Master of such vessel is liable may be adjudged by the Chief Customs Officer of any Customs-port to which such vessel proceeds, or in which she is, and in the case of Aden, by such officer as the Governor of Bombay in Council appoints in this behalf.

A certificate of such departure or failure to bring-to when required, purporting to be signed by the Chief Customs Officer of the Port from which the vessel is stated to have so departed, shall be prima facie proof of the fact so certified.

186. The award of any confiscation, penalty or increased rate of duty under this Act by an officer of Customs shall not prevent the infliction of any punishment to which the person affected thereby is liable under any other law.

187. All offences against this Act, other than those cognizable under section 182 by officers of Customs may be tried summarily by a Magistrate.

188. Any person deeming himself aggrieved by any decision or order passed by an officer of customs under this Act may, within three months from the date of such decision or order, appeal therefrom to the Chief Customs-Authority, or, in such cases as the Local Government directs, to any officer of Customs not inferior in rank to a Customs Collector and empowered in that behalf by name or in virtue of his office by the Local Government.

Such authority or officer may thereupon make such further enquiry and pass such order as he thinks fit, confirming, altering or annulling the decision or order appealed against:

Provided that no such order in appeal shall have the effect of subjecting any person to any greater confiscation, penalty or rate of duty than has been adjudged against him in the original decision or order.

Every order passed in appeal under this section shall, subject to the power of revision conferred by section 191, be final.

189. Where the decision or order appealed against relates to any duty or penalty leviable in respect of any goods, the owner of such goods, if desirous of appealing against such decision or order, shall, pending the appeal, deposit in the hands of the Customs-collector at the Port where the dispute arises the amount demanded by the officer passing such decision or order.

When delivery of such goods to the owner thereof is withheld merely by reason of such amount not being paid, the Customs-collector shall upon such deposit being made cause such goods to be delivered to such owner.

If upon any such appeal it is decided that the whole or any portion of such amount was not leviable in respect of such goods, the Customs-collector shall return such amount or portion (as the case may be) to the owner of such goods on demand by such owner.

190. If, upon consideration of the circumstances under which any penalty, increased rate of duty or confiscation has been adjudged under this Act by an officer of Customs, the Chief Customs-Authority is of opinion that such penalty, increased rate or confiscation ought to be remitted in whole or in part, or commuted, such Authority may remit the same or any portion thereof, or may, with the consent of the owner of any goods ordered to be confiscated, commute the order of confiscation to a penalty not exceeding the value of such goods.

191. The Local Government may on the application of any person aggrieved by any decision or order passed under this Act by any officer of Customs or Chief Customs-Authority, and from which no appeal lies, reverse or modify such decision or order.

192. When any fine, penalty or increased rate of duty is leviable under this Act, the goods in respect of which such fine, penalty or rate is leviable shall not be removed by the owner until such fine, penalty or rate is paid.

If any person has become liable to any such fine, penalty or rate in respect of any goods, the Customs-collector may detain any other goods belonging to such person passing through the custom-house until such fine, penalty or rate is paid.

193. When a penalty or increased rate of duty is adjudged against any person under this Act by any officer of Customs, such officer, if such penalty or increased rate be not paid, may levy the same by sale of any goods of the said person which may be in his charge, or in the charge of any other officer of Customs.

When an officer of Customs who has adjudged a penalty or increased rate of duty against any person under this Act is unable to realize the unpaid amount thereof from such goods, such officer may notify in writing to any Magistrate within the local limits of whose jurisdiction such person or any goods belonging to him may be, the name and residence of the said person and the amount of penalty or increased rate of duty unrecovered; and such Magistrate shall thereupon proceed to enforce payment of the said amount in like manner as if such penalty or increased rate had been a fine inflicted by himself.

CHAPTER XVIII.

MISCELLANEOUS.

194. Any officer of Customs may open any package, and examine any goods brought by sea to, or shipped or brought for shipment at, any Customs-port.

195. The Customs-collector may, on the entry or clearance of any goods, or at any time while such goods are being passed through the Custom-house, take samples of such goods, for examination or for ascertaining the value thereof on which duties are payable, or for any other necessary purpose.

Every such sample shall, if practicable, be at the option of the owner either restored to him, or sold and the proceeds accounted for to him.

196. The unshipping, carrying, shipping and landing of all goods,

Owner to pay expense incidental to compliance with Customs-law.

rupees, be furnished, at the discretion of the Customs-collector, to any person applying for the same, if the Customs-collector is satisfied that no fraud has been committed or is intended by the applicant.

201. Except in the cases provided for by sections

Amendment of documents.

36, 55, 63 and 94, the Customs-collector may in his discretion, upon payment of one rupee, authorize any document, after it has been entered and recorded in the Custom-house, to be amended.

202. No person authorized to act as an agent

Custom-house agents.

for the transaction of any business relating to the entrance or clearance of any vessel, or the import or export of goods or baggage, shall so act in any Custom-house, unless such authorization is approved by the Customs-collector.

Such officer may require any person so authorized to give a bond with sufficient security, in any sum not exceeding five thousand rupees, for his faithful behaviour as regards the Custom-house regulations and officers.

Such officer may, in case of misbehaviour of the person so authorized, suspend or withdraw such approval, but an appeal against every such suspension or withdrawal shall lie to the Chief Customs-Authority, whose decision thereon shall be final.

Every appeal under this section shall be made within one month of the suspension or withdrawal.

203. When any person applies to any officer

D. FITZPATRICK,

Secy. to the Govt. of India.

[First Publication.]

The following Act of the Governor General of India in Council received the assent of His Excellency the Governor General on the 14th March 1878, and is, together with the Statement of Objects and Reasons, hereby promulgated for general information :—

ACT No. IX OF 1878.An Act for the better Control of Publications in Oriental languages.

WHEREAS certain publications in oriental languages printed or circulated in British India have of late contained matter likely to excite disaffection to the Government established by law in British India, or antipathy between persons of different races, castes, religions, or sects in British India, or have been used as means of intimidation or extortion :

And whereas such publications are read by and disseminated amongst large numbers of ignorant and unintelligent persons, and are thus likely to have an influence which they otherwise would not possess ; and whereas it is accordingly necessary for the maintenance of the public tranquillity and for the security of Her Majesty's subjects and others to confer on the executive Government power to control the printing and circulation of such publications : It is hereby enacted as follows :—

1. This section and sections eleven to sixteen both inclusive apply to the whole of British India ; the other sections of this Act apply only to those parts of British India to which they may from time to time be extended by the Governor General in Council by a notification in the Gazette of India.

2. In this Act—
‘Newspaper’ means any periodical work containing public news, or comments on public news, printed wholly or partially in any oriental language, and includes two or more copies of a newspaper bearing the same name, whether published on the same day or on different days, and also includes any series of newspapers, whether printed on one day or different days, or with one name or with different names ; and

‘Print,’ ‘printed’ and ‘printer’ apply not only to printing, but also to lithography, engraving and photography.

3. Any Magistrate of a district or Commissioner of Police in a Presidency town, within the local limits of whose jurisdiction any newspaper is printed or published, may, with the previous sanction of the Local Government and subject to the provisions of section five, call upon the printer and publisher of such newspaper to enter into a joint and several bond, or when the printer and publisher of such newspaper are the same person, call upon such person to enter into a bond, binding themselves or himself, as the case may be, in such sum as the Local Government thinks fit, not to—

(a) print or publish in such newspaper any words, signs, or visible representations, likely to excite disaffection to the Government established by law in British India or antipathy between any persons of different races, castes, religions, or sects in British India ; or

(b) use or attempt to use such newspaper

for the purpose of putting any person in fear or causing annoyance to him and thereby inducing him to deliver to any person any property or valuable security, or anything signed or sealed which may be converted into a valuable security, or to give any gratification to any person, or for the purpose of holding out any threat of injury to a public servant, or to any person in whom they or he believe or believes that public servant to be interested, and thereby inducing that public servant to do any act, or to forbear or delay to do any act, connected with the exercise of his public functions.

EXPLANATION.—“Valuable security,” “gratification” and “public servant” are used in this section in the senses in which they are respectively used in the Indian Penal Code.

4. When any bond is executed under section three, the said Magistrate or Commissioner may further require the obligor or obligors of the same to deposit the amount thereof in money or the equivalent thereof in securities of the Government of India ; and the money or securities so deposited shall, subject to the provisions hereinafter contained, remain so deposited until fifteen days after the person or persons depositing the same has or have made and subscribed a declaration under Act No. XXV of 1867, section eight.

When such person or persons has or have subscribed such a declaration, and fifteen days have elapsed from the date of subscribing the same, he or they may apply to the said Magistrate or Commissioner for the restoration of the said money or securities, and thereupon such money or securities shall, subject to the provisions hereinafter contained, be restored to such person or persons.

5. When any publisher or printer is called upon by a Magistrate or Commissioner of Police to execute a bond under this Act in respect of any newspaper, the publisher of such newspaper may deliver to such Magistrate or Commissioner an undertaking in writing to the effect that no words, signs, or visible representations shall, during the year next following the date of such undertaking, be printed or published in such newspaper which have not previously been submitted to such officer as the Local Government may appoint in this behalf, by name or in virtue of his office, or which on being so submitted have been objected to by such officer.

When such undertaking has been so delivered, no such bond or deposit shall be required from the publisher or printer of such newspaper during the said year.

6. Whenever it appears to the Local Government that any newspaper printed or published in the territories under its administration, contains any words, signs, or visible representations of the nature described in section three, clause (a), or that any such newspaper has been used or attempted to be used for any purpose described in the same section, clause (b), such Local Government may cause a notice in the form in the schedule hereto annexed, or to the like effect, to be published in the local official Gazette.

7. A true copy of such notice shall be fixed on some conspicuous part of the premises described in the declaration made in respect of the newspaper under the said Act No. XXV of 1867, section five, and the copy so fixed shall be deemed to have been duly served on the printer and publisher of such paper.

8. If after the publication of such notice and the service thereof, the newspaper in respect of which it has been issued contains any words, signs, or visible representations of the nature described in section three, clause (a), or is used, or attempted to be used, for any purpose described in the same section, clause (b), all printing presses, engines, machinery, types, lithographic stones, paper, and other implements, utensils, plant, and materials used or employed, or intended to be used or employed, in or for the purpose of printing or publishing such newspaper, or found in or about any premises where such newspaper is printed or published, and all copies of such newspaper wherever found, and any money or securities which the printer or publisher of such newspaper may have deposited under the provisions of section three, shall be liable to be forfeited to Her Majesty.

Provided that the publisher of any newspaper may, on the publication of a notice in respect thereof under section six, and before anything has become liable to forfeiture under this section in respect of such newspaper, deliver to the Magistrate of the District or to the Commissioner of Police in a Presidency town, within the local limits of whose jurisdiction such newspaper is published, an undertaking in writing of the nature specified in section five, and, if such Magistrate or Commissioner accepts such undertaking, nothing shall become liable to forfeiture under this section between the date on which such undertaking is so accepted and the end of the period for which it is given.

9. Whenever it appears to the Local Government that any money or security deposited under this Act in respect of any newspaper is liable to be forfeited under section eight, such Local Government may, by a notification in the local official Gazette, declare such money or security to be forfeited;

And whenever it appears to the Local Government that any implements, utensils, plant or materials used or employed or intended to be used or employed in or for the purpose of printing or publishing any newspaper, or which is or are in or about any premises where such newspaper is printed or published, or any copies of any newspaper, is or are liable to be forfeited under that section, the Local Government may declare such implements, utensils, plant, materials or copies to be forfeited and may by warrant issued by its authority under the hand of any Magistrate, empower any person to seize and take away such implements, utensils, plant, materials, and copies wherever found, and to enter upon any premises

(a) where the newspaper specified in such warrant is printed or published, or

(b) where any such implements, utensils, plant, or materials may be or may be reasonably suspected to be, or

(c) where any copy of such newspaper is sold, distributed, published, or publicly exhibited, or reasonably suspected to be sold, distributed, published, or publicly exhibited, or kept for sale, distribution, publication, or public exhibition, or reasonably suspected to be so kept,

and search for such implements, utensils, plant, materials, and copies.

Every warrant issued under this section, so far as relates to a search, shall be executed in manner provided for the execution of search-warrants under the law relating to criminal procedure for the time being in force.

10. When any book, pamphlet, placard, broadsheet, or other document printed wholly or partially in any oriental language in British India contains any words, signs, or visible representations which are of the nature described in section three, clause (a), or when any such book, pamphlet, placard, broadsheet, or other document has been used or attempted to be used, for any purpose described in the same section, clause (b), all printing presses, engines, machinery, types, lithographic stones, paper, and other implements, utensils, plant, and materials used or employed in or for the purpose of printing or publishing such book, pamphlet, placard, broadsheet, or other document, or found in or about any premises where the same is printed or published, and all copies of such book, pamphlet, placard, broadsheet or other document, shall be liable to be forfeited to Her Majesty.

Whenever it appears to the Local Government that anything is liable to be forfeited under this section, the Local Government may declare such thing to be forfeited and may direct any Magistrate to issue a warrant in respect of the same, and thereupon such thing may be searched for, seized, and taken away in manner provided by section nine.

The Local Government may, upon good cause shown, cancel any forfeiture under this section.

11. When any newspaper printed elsewhere

Copies of newspaper printed elsewhere, and brought into British India, liable to forfeiture in certain cases.

than in British India contains any words, signs, or visible representations of the nature described in section three, clause (a), or is used or attempted to be used for any purpose described in the same section, clause (b), all copies of such newspaper, brought into British India, shall be liable to be forfeited to Her Majesty.

12. Whenever it appears to the Local Government that any copies of any newspaper in any of the territories under its administration are liable to be forfeited under section eleven, such Local Government may declare all copies of such newspaper wherever found to be forfeited and may by warrant issued by its authority under the hand of any Magistrate, empower any person to seize and take away all copies of such newspaper wherever found, and to enter upon any premises where any copy of such newspaper is sold, distributed, published, or publicly exhibited, or reasonably suspected to be sold, distributed, published, or publicly exhibited, or kept for sale, distribution, publication, or public exhibition, or reasonably suspected to be so kept; and search for all copies of such newspaper.

Every warrant issued under this section shall, so far as relates to a search, be executed in manner provided for the execution of search-warrants under the law relating to criminal procedure for the time being in force.

13. Any person feeling aggrieved by the issue of any notification under section nine or by any declaration made or anything done in the execution of a warrant issued under that section, or under section ten or section twelve, may, within three months from the date of the notification or declaration or the doing of the thing complained of (as the case may be), appeal to the Governor General in Council; and the Governor General in Council shall take such appeal into consideration, and the order passed by him thereon shall be final and conclusive.

Appeal to the Governor General in Council.

14. The Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, direct that any newspapers printed at any place beyond the limits of British India, or any books, pamphlets, placards, broadsheets, or other documents printed wholly or partially in any oriental language at any such place, shall not be brought into, or circulated, distributed, or publicly exhibited, or sold, or kept for circulation, distribution, public exhibition, or sale, in British India.

Power to exclude from British India, newspapers, books, &c., printed out of British India.

Whoever, in contravention of any direction under this section, brings any such newspaper, book, pamphlet, placard, broadsheet, or other document into British India, or circulates, distributes, publishes, exhibits, or sells the same, or keeps the same for circulation, distribution, exhibition, or sale, shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine, or with both;

and all copies of such newspaper, book, pamphlet, placard, broadsheet, or other document found in British India shall be forfeited to Her Majesty.

Whenever it appears to any Magistrate of a district or to any Commissioner of Police in a Presidency town that anything within the local limits of his jurisdiction is forfeited under this section, he may issue a warrant to search for and seize the same, and such warrant shall be executed in manner provided for the execution of search-warrants under the law relating to criminal procedure for the time being in force.

15. When any declaration has been made under section nine, section ten, or section twelve, in respect of any newspaper, book, pamphlet, placard, broadsheet, or other document, or any notification has been issued in respect of the same under section fourteen, any officer of the Postal Department empowered in this behalf by the Governor General in Council, by name or in virtue of his office, may search or cause search to be made for any copies of the same in the custody of that Department, and shall deliver all such copies found to such officer as the Governor General in Council may appoint in this behalf by name or in virtue of his office.

Power of postal authorities to seize newspapers, books, &c.

16. Every notification and declaration of forfeiture purporting to be issued or made under this Act shall, as against all persons, be conclusive evidence that the forfeiture therein referred to has taken place; and no proceeding purporting to be taken under this Act, or in execution of a warrant issued under this Act, shall be called in question by any Court of civil or criminal jurisdiction; and no Civil or Criminal proceeding shall be instituted against any person for anything purporting to be done under this Act or in execution of any such warrant, or for the recovery of any property purporting to be seized under this Act.

Jurisdiction barred.

17. Any publisher or printer of a newspaper required to execute a bond or make a deposit under section three or section four, and publishing or printing such newspaper without having complied with such requisition, shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine, or with both.

Penalty for printing or publishing without executing bond or making deposit.

18. When any publisher of a newspaper has given an undertaking under section five or section eight, and during the period for which such undertaking is given, any words, signs, or visible representations which have not been submitted to the officer appointed under section five, or which on being so submitted have been objected to by him, are printed or published in such newspaper, such publisher and the printer of such newspaper, shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine, or with both.

Penalty for breach of an undertaking under section 5 or section 8.

19. Any portion of this Act which has been extended to any part of British India under section one shall cease to be in force in such part whenever the Governor General in Council, by notification in the Gazette of India, so directs, but may be again extended to such part by a like notification.

Power to remove territory from operation of Act, and again extend Act.

20. Nothing herein contained shall be deemed to prevent any person from being prosecuted under any other law for any act or omission which constitutes an offence against this Act.

Operation of other laws not barred.

SCHEDULE.

FORM OF NOTICE UNDER SECTION 6.

WHEREAS a certain newspaper (state name of newspaper) contains words, signs, or visible representations (as the case may be) of the nature described in section 3, clause (a), of Act No. IX of 1878 [or is used for a purpose mentioned in section 3 of Act No. IX of 1878, clause (b), or Whereas an attempt has been made to use a certain newspaper (state name of newspaper) for a purpose, &c.]

This is to give notice to all whom it may concern, and to give all such persons warning, according to the provisions of section 6 of the said Act No. IX of 1878.

This day of 187 .

Secretary to { the Government of the Chief Commissioner of

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

1. The main object of this Bill is to place newspapers which are published in the vernacular languages of India under better control, and to furnish the Government with more effective means than are provided by the existing law, of punishing and repressing seditious writings which are calculated to produce disaffection towards the Government in the minds of the ignorant and unenlightened masses. Another object is to prevent unscrupulous native editors using their papers as a means of intimidation or extortion.

2. As regards the latter of these objects, it is enough to state that the Government is informed on reliable authority that certain vernacular papers have from time to time been used as a means of intimidating, and extorting money from, our feudatories and native employés. As regards the former and more important object, a fuller statement of the reasons which have led to the introduction of this Bill seems desirable.

3. That a section of the vernacular Press has of late years assumed an attitude of fixed hostility to the Government; that it does not confine itself to criticising particular measures or the acts of individual officers on their merits, but attacks the very existence of British rule in India; and that the evil has been steadily growing and has now attained a magnitude which calls for the application of some strong means of repression, are facts patent to all who read the native papers.

4. The necessity for immediate action has been pressed on the Government of India from many quarters; and those most competent to form an opinion on such a point have advised that the existing law does not furnish a sufficient remedy, and that fresh legislation is accordingly necessary.

5. The only question has been as to the form which such legislation should assume, or, to speak more precisely, whether the object in view could be attained by any mere amendment of the general criminal law, or whether some measure of a special nature is required.

The Government of India have come to the conclusion that a special measure is necessary, and they have been led to this conclusion chiefly by two considerations:

6. In the first place, the object in view is simply to repress an evil which is altogether of a special and limited nature, and for the existence of which a small and strictly defined class of persons is answerable. It is not in any way necessary for that object to expand the general law relating to State offences, or to render that law more stringent. To do so would be to inflict an unmerited hardship on a large number of Her Majesty's subjects.

7. Secondly (and this seems to put the necessity of a special law, as distinguished from any mere amendment of the general law, beyond a doubt), the ordinary criminal law confines itself to imposing penalties for offences already committed, whereas the particular offence to be dealt with here is of such a nature that it is not enough that it should be punished when committed. Its commission must be prevented, and this can be done only under a special procedure devised expressly for that purpose.

8. The Bill now introduced is restricted in its operation to publications in oriental languages. Its chief provisions will take effect only in those parts of British India to which they may be specially extended by the Governor General in Council, and will cease to have effect in those parts whenever the Governor General in Council so directs.

9. The system of check it establishes in the case of newspapers in oriental languages published in British India is as follows:

First.—The Magistrate may, with the previous sanction of the Local Government, require the printer or publisher of any such newspaper to enter into a bond binding himself not to print or publish in such newspaper anything likely to excite feelings of disaffection to the Government or antipathy between persons of different races, castes, religions or sects, and not to use such paper for purposes of extortion. The Magistrate may further require the amount of this bond to be deposited in money or securities.

Secondly.—If any newspaper (whether a bond has been taken in respect of it or not) at any time contains any matter of the description just mentioned, or is used for purposes of extortion, the Local Government may warn such newspaper by a notification in the Gazette, and if, in spite of such warning, the offence is repeated, the Local Government may then issue its warrant to seize the plant, &c., of such newspaper, and when any deposit has been made may declare such deposit forfeited.

Thirdly.—As the provisions regarding the deposit of security and the forfeiture of the deposit would, perhaps, be found to press unduly on some of the less wealthy newspaper proprietors, clauses have been inserted enabling the publisher of a newspaper to take his paper out of the operation of this portion of the Act for such time as he pleases by undertaking to submit his proofs to an officer appointed by the Government before publication, and to publish nothing which such officer objects to.

Any publisher may, if he chooses, do this at the time when he is called upon to deposit security; and if he does so, no security can be demanded from him.

Again, if he does not choose to avail himself of this provision at that stage, he may subsequently, in the event of a warning being issued against him, offer such an undertaking, and if the Magistrate accepts it, the proceedings are at an end.

10. As regards books, pamphlets, &c., printed in British India, containing matter of the description above referred to or used for purposes of extortion, the Bill gives the Local Government a power to seize them and the presses at which they are printed.

11. Newspapers and books published out of British India but circulated in British India remain. And in regard to them the Bill provides—first, that if they contain matter of the nature already referred to or are used for purposes of extortion, the Local Government may seize them; and secondly, that the Governor General in Council may prohibit their importation altogether.

12. The only other points calling for special notice are that an appeal is given to the Governor General in Council against anything done by a Local Government or any inferior authority; that declarations of forfeitures and other proceedings under the Act are made final and conclusive, subject only to such appeal; and that penalties are provided for printing or publishing a newspaper without executing a bond or making a deposit after such bond or deposit has been required, and for breach of an undertaking to submit proofs to a Government officer.

THE FIRST SCHEDULE.

THE SECOND SCHEDULE.

An Act to consolidate and amend the law relating to Arms, Ammunition and Military Stores.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the law relating to arms, ammunition and military stores; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Preamble.

I.—Preliminary.

1. This Act may be called "The Indian Arms Act, 1878"; and it extends to the whole of British India.

Short title.

Local extent.

Savings.

But nothing herein contained shall apply to—

(a) arms, ammunition or military stores on board any sea-going vessel and forming part of her ordinary armament or equipment, or

(b) the manufacture, conversion, sale, import, export, transport, bearing or possession of arms, ammunition or military stores by order of the Government, or by a public servant or a volunteer enrolled under the Indian Volunteers Act, 1869, in the course of his duty as such public servant or volunteer.

2. This Act shall come into force on such day as the Governor General in Council by notification in the Gazette of India appoints.

Commencement.

3. On and from that day the enactments mentioned in the first schedule hereto annexed shall be repealed to the extent specified in the third column of the said schedule. But all authorities and permissions given, licenses and exemptions granted, orders and appointments made, notifications published, and rules, conditions, and forms prescribed under any enactment hereby repealed shall be deemed to be respectively given, granted, made, published and prescribed under this Act.

Repeal of enactments.

And all such authorities, permissions, licences and exemptions shall, except as otherwise provided by this Act, continue in force for the periods for which they may have been given or granted respectively, or, where no such period is expressly fixed, for one year from the date on which this Act comes into force, and shall then cease to have effect.

4. In this Act unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context—

Interpretation-clause.

"Cannon" includes also all howitzers, mortars, wall pieces, mitrailleuses and other ordnance and machine-guns, all parts of the same, and all carriages, platforms and appliances for mounting, transporting and serving the same:

"Arms" includes fire-arms, bayonets, swords, daggers, spears, spear-heads and bows and arrows, also cannon and parts of arms, and machinery for manufacturing arms:

"Ammunition" includes also all articles specially designed for torpedo service and submarine mining, rockets, gun-cotton, dynamite, lithofracteur and other explosive or fulminating material, gunflints, gunwads, percussion caps, fuses, and friction tubes, all parts of ammunition and all machinery for manufacturing ammunition, but does not include lead, sulphur or saltpetre:

"Military stores" in any section of this Act as applied to any part of British India means any military stores to which the Governor General in Council may from time to time by notification in the Gazette of India specially extend such section in such part, and includes also all lead, sulphur, saltpetre and other material to which the Governor General in Council may from time to time so extend such section.

"License" means a license granted under this Act, and "licensed" means holding such license:

II.—Manufacture, Conversion and Sale.

5. No person shall manufacture, convert, or sell, or keep, offer or expose for sale, any arms, ammunition or military stores except under a license and in the manner and to the extent permitted thereby.

Unlicensed manufacture, conversion and sale prohibited.

Nothing herein contained shall prevent any person from selling any arms or ammunition which he lawfully possesses for his own private use to any person who is not by any enactment for the time being in force prohibited from possessing the same; but every person so selling arms or ammunition to any person other than a person entitled to possess the same by reason of an exemption under section twenty-seven of this Act shall, without unnecessary delay, give to the Magistrate of the district or to the officer in charge of the nearest police-station notice of the sale and of the purchaser's name and address.

III.—Import, Export and Transport.

6. No person shall bring or take by sea or by land into or out of British India any arms, ammunition or military stores except under a license and in the manner and to the extent permitted by such license.

Unlicensed importation and exportation prohibited.

Nothing in the first clause of this section extends to arms (other than cannon) or ammunition imported or exported in reasonable quantities for his own private use by any person lawfully entitled to possess such arms or ammunition; but the Collector of Customs or any other officer empowered by the Local Government in this behalf by name or in virtue of his office may at any time detain such arms or ammunition until he receives the orders of the Local Government thereon.

Explanation.—Arms, ammunition and military stores taken from one part of British India to another by sea or across intervening territory not being part of British India are taken out of and brought into British India within the meaning of this section.

7. Notwithstanding anything contained in the Sea-customs Act, 1878, no arms, ammunition or military stores shall be deposited in any warehouse licensed under section 16 of that Act without the sanction of the Local Government.

Sanction of local Government required to warehousing of arms, &c.

8. In lieu of the duties imposed by the Indian Tariff Act, 1875, upon the articles mentioned in the second schedule hereto annexed when imported by sea, there shall be levied and collected, in every part of British India, upon the same articles the duties specified in the same schedule:

Levy of duties on arms, &c., imported by sea.

Provided that no duty in excess of ten per cent. ad valorem shall be levied upon any of the said articles imported in reasonable quantity for his own private use by any person lawfully entitled to possess the same:

Provided also that when any articles which have been otherwise imported and upon which duty has been levied or is leviable under this section are purchased retail from the importer by a person lawfully entitled as aforesaid, in reasonable quantity for his own private use, the importer may apply to the Customs-collector for a refund or remission (as the case may be) of so much of the duty thereon as is in excess of ten per cent. ad valorem; and if such collector is satisfied as to the identity of the articles, and that such importer is in other respects entitled to such refund or remission, he shall grant the same accordingly.

9. The Governor General in Council may from time to time by notification Power to impose duty on import by land. in the Gazette of India direct that duties not exceeding those specified in the second schedule hereto annexed shall be levied upon any articles mentioned in that schedule and brought by land into any part of British India, and may in like manner cancel any such notification.

10. The Governor General in Council may from time to time by notification Power to prohibit transport. in the Gazette of India—

(a) regulate or prohibit the transport of any description of arms, ammunition or military stores over the whole of British India or any part thereof, either altogether or except under a license and to the extent and in the manner permitted by such license, and

(b) cancel any such notification.

Explanation.—Arms, ammunition or military stores transhipped at a port Transhipment of arms. in British India are transported within the meaning of this section.

11. The Local Government with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council may, at Power to establish searching stations. any places along the boundary line between British India and Foreign territory and at such distance within such line as it deems expedient, establish searching posts at which all vessels, carts and baggage animals and all boxes, bales and packages in transit may be stopped and searched for arms, ammunition and military stores by any officer empowered by such Government in this behalf by name or in virtue of his office.

12. When any person is found carrying or conveying any arms, ammunition

Arrest of persons conveying arms, &c., under suspicious circumstances. or military stores, whether covered by a license or not, in such manner or under such circumstances as to afford just grounds of suspicion that the same are being carried by him with intent to use them, or that the same may be used, for any unlawful purpose, any person may without warrant apprehend him and take such arms, ammunition or military stores from him.

Any person so apprehended and any arms, ammunition or military stores so taken by a person not being a Magistrate or Police-officer shall be delivered over as soon as possible to a Police-officer.

Procedure where arrest made by person not a Magistrate or a Police-officer. All persons apprehended by, or delivered to, a Police-officer and all arms and ammunition seized by or delivered to any such officer under this section shall be taken without unnecessary delay before a Magistrate.

IV.—Going armed and possessing Arms, &c.

13. No person shall go armed with any arms except under a license and to the extent and in the manner permitted thereby.

Prohibition of going armed without license. Any person so going armed without a license or in contravention of its provisions may be disarmed by any Magistrate, Police-officer or other person empowered by the Local Government in this behalf by name or by virtue of his office.

14. No person shall have in his possession or under his control any can-Unlicensed possession of fire-arms, &c. non or fire-arms, or any ammunition or military stores except under a license and in the manner and to the extent permitted thereby.

During the three months next following the date on which this Act comes into force nothing in the former part of this section shall apply to the possession by any person of any fire-arms, ammunition or military stores in any place to which section 32, clause 2, of Act No. XXXI of 1860 does not apply at such date.

Any person having within the said period of three months any fire-arms, ammunition or military stores in his possession in any such place may, and any person having at the expiry of the same period any fire-arms, ammunition or military stores in his possession in any such place without a license shall, deposit the same with the officer in charge of the nearest police-station.

If the owner of any thing deposited under this section does not within the year next following the date on which this Act comes into force, obtain a license authorizing him to possess such thing and apply for delivery of the same, such thing shall be forfeited to Her Majesty.

15. In any place to which section 32, clause 2 of Act No. XXXI of 1860, applies at the time this Act comes into force or to which the Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, may by notification in the local official Gazette specially extend this section, no person shall have in his possession any arms of any description except under a license and in the manner and to the extent permitted thereby.

16. Any person possessing arms, ammunition or military stores, the possession whereof by him has, in consequence of the cancellation or expiry of a license or by the issue of a notification under section fifteen become unlawful, shall deposit the same without unnecessary delay with the officer in charge of the nearest police-station.

If the owner of any thing deposited under this section does not within three years from the date on which such thing is so deposited produce a license authorising him to possess the same and apply for delivery of the same, such thing shall be forfeited to Her Majesty.

V.—Licenses.

17. The Governor General in Council may from time to time, by notification in the Gazette of India, make rules to determine the officers by whom, the form in which, and the terms and conditions on and subject to which, any license shall be granted; and may by such rules among other matters—

(a) fix the period for which such license shall continue in force;

(b) fix a fee payable by stamp or otherwise in respect of any such license granted in a place to which section 32, clause 2, of Act No. XXXI of 1860 applies at the time this Act comes into force, or in respect of any such license other than a license for possession granted in any other place;

(c) direct that the holder of any such license other than a license for possession shall keep a record or account in such form as the Local Government may prescribe of anything done under such license, and exhibit such record or account when called upon by an officer of Government to do so;

(d) empower any officer of Government to enter and inspect any premises in which arms, ammunition or military stores are manufactured or kept by any person holding a license of the description referred to in section five or section six;

(e) direct that any such person shall exhibit the entire stock of arms, ammunition and military stores in his possession or under his control to any officer of Government so empowered, and

(f) require the person holding any license or acting under any license to produce the same, and to produce or account for the arms, ammunition or military stores covered by the same when called upon by an officer of Government so to do.

18. Any license may be cancelled or suspended—

(a) by the officer by whom the same was granted, or by any authority to which he may be subordinate, or by any Magistrate of a district or commissioner of police in a presidency town, within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the holder of such license may be, when, for reasons to be recorded in writing, such officer, authority, Magistrate or commissioner deems it necessary for the security of the public peace to cancel or suspend such license; or

(b) by any Judge or Magistrate before whom the holder of such license is convicted of an offence against this Act, or against the rules made under this Act; and the Local Government may at its discretion by a notification in the local official Gazette cancel or suspend all or any licenses throughout the whole or any portion of the territories under its administration.

VI.—Penalties.

19. Whoever commits any of the following offences (namely)—

(a) manufactures, converts or sells, or keeps, offers or exposes for sale any arms, ammunition or military stores in contravention of the provisions of section five;

(b) fails to give notice as required by the same section;

(c) imports or exports any arms, ammunition or military stores in contravention of the provisions of section six;

(d) transports any arms, ammunition or military stores in contravention of a regulation or prohibition issued under section ten;

(e) goes armed in contravention of the provisions of section thirteen;

(f) has in his possession or under his control any arms, ammunition or military stores in contravention of the provisions of section fourteen or section fifteen;

(g) intentionally makes any false entry in a record or account which by a rule made under section seventeen, clause (c), he is required to keep;

(h) intentionally fails to exhibit anything which by a rule made under section seventeen, clause (c), he is required to exhibit; or

(i) fails to deposit arms, ammunition or military stores, as required by section fourteen or section sixteen;

shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to three years, or with fine, or with both.

20. Whoever does any act mentioned in clause (a), (c), (d) or (f) of section nineteen, in such manner as to indicate an intention that such act may not be known to any public servant as defined in the Indian Penal Code, or to any person employed upon a Railway or to the servant of any public carrier, and whoever, on any search being made under section twenty-five, conceals or attempts to conceal any arms, ammunition or military stores, shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to seven years, or with fine, or with both.

21. Whoever, in violation of a condition subject to which a license has been granted, does or omits to do any act shall, when the doing or omitting to do such act is not punishable under section nineteen or section twenty, be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, or with both.

22. Whoever knowingly purchases any arms, ammunition or military stores from any person not licensed or authorized under the proviso to section five to sell the same; or delivers any arms, ammunition or military stores into the possession of any person without previously ascertaining that such person is legally authorized to possess the same, shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, or with both.

23. Any person violating any rule made under this Act, and for the violation of which no penalty is provided by this Act, shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to one month, or with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees, or with both.

24. When any person is convicted of an offence punishable under this Act committed by him in respect of any arms, ammunition or military stores, it shall be in the discretion of the convicting Court or Magistrate further to direct that the whole or any portion of such arms, ammunition or military stores, and any vessel, cart or baggage animal used to convey the same, and any box, package or bale in which the same may have been concealed, together with the other contents of such box, package or bale, shall be confiscated.

III.—Miscellaneous.

25. Whenever any Magistrate has reason to believe that any person residing within the local limits of his jurisdiction has in his possession any arms, ammunition or military stores for any unlawful purpose, or that such person cannot be left in the possession of any such arms, ammunition or military stores without danger to the public peace, such Magistrate, having first recorded the grounds of his belief, may cause a search to be made of the house or premises occupied by such person, or in which such Magistrate has reason to believe such arms, ammunition or military stores are or is to be found, and may seize and detain the same, although covered by a license, in safe custody for such time as he thinks necessary.

The search in such case shall be conducted by, or in the presence of, a Magistrate, or by or in the presence of some officer, specially empowered in this behalf by name or in virtue of his office by the Local Government.

26. The Local Government may at any time order or cause to be, seized any arms, ammunition or military stores in the possession of any person, notwithstanding that such person is licensed to possess the same, and may detain the same for such time as it thinks necessary for the public safety.

27. The Governor General in Council may from time to time by notification published in the Gazette of India—

(a) exempt any person by name or in virtue of his office or any class of persons or exclude any description of arms or ammunition or withdraw any part of British India, from the operation of any prohibition or direction contained in this Act; and

(b) cancel any such notification and again subject the persons or things or the part of British India comprised therein to the operation of such prohibition or direction.

28. Every person aware of the commission of any offence punishable under this Act, shall in the absence of reasonable excuse, the burden of proving which shall lie upon such person, give information of the same to the nearest Police-officer or Magistrate, and every person employed upon any railway or by any public carrier shall, in the absence of reasonable excuse, the burden of proving which shall lie upon such person, give information to the nearest Police-officer regarding any box, package or bale in transit which he may have reason to suspect contains arms, ammunition or military stores in respect of which an offence against this Act has been or is being committed.

29. Where an offence punishable under section nineteen, clause (f), has been committed within three months from the date on which this Act comes into force in any province, district or place to which section 32, clause 2 of Act XXXI of 1860 applies at such date, or where such an offence has been committed in any part of British India not being such a district, province or place, no proceedings shall be instituted against any person in respect of such offence without the previous sanction of the Magistrate of the district or in a presidency town of the commissioner of police.

30. Where a search is to be made under the Code of Criminal Procedure or the Presidency Magistrates Act 1877 in the course of any proceedings instituted in respect of an offence punishable under section nineteen, clause (f), such search shall, notwithstanding anything contained in the said Code or Act, be made in the presence of some officer specially appointed by name or in virtue of his office by the Local Government in this behalf, and not otherwise.

31. Nothing in this Act shall be deemed to prevent any person from being prosecuted under any other law for any act or omission which constitutes an offence against this Act or the rules made under it, or from being liable under such other law to any higher punishment or penalty than that provided by this Act: Provided that no person shall be punished twice for the same offence.

32. The Local Government may from time to time by notification in the local official Gazette direct a census to be taken of all fire-arms in any local area, and empower any person by name or in virtue of his office to take such census.

On the issue of any such notification, all persons possessing any such arms in such area shall furnish to the person so empowered such information as he may require in reference thereto, and shall produce such arms to him if he so requires.

Any person refusing or neglecting to produce any such arms when so required, shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to one month, or with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees, or with both.

33. No proceeding other than a suit shall be commenced against any person for any thing done in pursuance of this Act, without having given him at least one month's previous notice in writing of the intended proceeding and of the cause thereof, nor after the expiration of three months from the accrual of such cause.

COURT OF WARDS.

The HON'BLE MR. REYNOLDS moved for leave to introduce a Bill to amend the law relating to the Court of Wards within the provinces subject to the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal. He said that the Council would remember that the subject had been under consideration during the last year, and a Bill was brought in, and was eventually passed in April 1877, and sent up to the Governor-General for sanction. Unfortunately one of the sections of that Bill prohibited the execution of civil court decrees against property under the charge of the Court of Wards, and this was considered to be at variance with a provision in the new Code of Civil Procedure, and the Governor-General was therefore unable to give his assent to the Bill, and at the same time the Government of India suggested some minor alterations and amendments in it. The Bill, in accordance with those suggestions, was now in the course of being re-drafted, and if permission were given to him to introduce the Bill, it would be circulated to hon'ble members in the course of the week.

The motion was agreed to.

RURAL POLICE IN HAZARIBAGH AND LOHARDUDGA.

The Hon'ble MR. O'KINEALY moved for leave to introduce a Bill for the regulation of the rural police in Hazaribagh and Lohardugga. As His Honor the President and hon'ble members were no doubt aware, for a long time the police organization in Chota Nagpore had been somewhat different from that in the other districts of Bengal. There the zemindars were allowed and indeed were bound to guard the passes, to protect travellers and traffic, and to maintain law and order within the limits of their own zemindaries. At the time of the decennial settlement, this circumstance was taken into consideration and great reductions were made in the amount of the Government revenue assessed. For instance, he would take the case of the Ramgurih estate. The Government demand upon that estate before the decennial settlement amounted to over forty thousand rupees. But at the time of the decennial settlement it was reduced to nearly one-half, in consideration of the zemindars maintaining a large force of police for the assistance of the local officers, and the maintenance of law and order within the limits of their estates. The zemindars as it were in turn sublet these liabilities. They appointed sirdars to superintend the police patrols, and compelled them to collect and support a number of men sufficient to perform the duties. These officers were not paid any fixed salaries, but were granted a remuneration for their services,—jagheers of one or two villages in the immediate vicinity of the passes which were under their control. This system was maintained till 1862, when the regular police were introduced into the province, and then the police stations were taken over by the Government, and the zemindary police were relieved of their duties. He had pointed out already that at the time of the decennial settlement, when the duties of the zemindars were defined, their assessments were reduced. Strange to say that in 1862, when a converse course took place and the zemindars were relieved from all responsibility as regards the thana police, they were not bound, not compelled to continue their previous payments. Moreover the patrol system had not been found to work well. The police were subject to no discipline or control. As a fact, they never attended the passes they were supposed to guard, unless the Magistrate or other high authority was known to travel in that direction. It might be safely asserted that one of the most serious blots in the administration of that division was that the services of village patrols, which the zemindar and holders of under-tenures were bound to maintain, and to a certain extent did keep up, were not utilized in a proper way. Some short time since an experiment was tried in the district of Hazaribagh. The patrol police were transferred from the irresponsible direction of the zemindars and their under-tenants, and placed under the immediate control of the District Superintendent of Police, and the services of the under-tenants and zemindars were commuted into fixed money payments, sufficient to meet the charges incurred on account of police. This system had been found to work admirably. Robberies and dacoities had ceased under the organization of the new police, and it was simply to legalise and extend that organization that the present Bill was introduced.

Intimately connected with the question of the patrol police was the position and duties of the village police. At present the practice in Chota Nagpore seemed to be that the zemindar prepared a list of the sums which each ryot was bound to pay for the support of the chowkidar, and left the chowkidar to gather the money as best he could. He proposed by this Bill to get rid of this unsatisfactory procedure, and to introduce the system of collecting chowkidari dues according to the lines of the Village Police Act of 1870. It had been a matter that had undergone considerable consideration and discussion whether the Village Chowkidari Act should not be introduced into the districts to which the Bill would apply. But the local officers who were intimately acquainted with the habits and customs of that part of the country were opposed to its introduction; they feared that the provisions regarding the appointment of punchaits and others of minor importance were not suited to the people, and would not work well. With these few exceptions, the present Bill followed the lines of the Village Chowkidari Act of 1870.

The motion was agreed to.

The HON'BLE MR. O'KINEALY applied to the President to suspend the rules for the conduct of business to enable him to move that the Bill be read in Council, and referred to a Select Committee for consideration and report. The Council was now approaching the close of the session, and any delay might prevent the passing of the Bill before the sittings of the Council terminated.

HIS HONOR THE PRESIDENT observed that as the Bill before the Council was of a local and technical character, and the reasons for the introduction of the Bill had been fully explained by the hon'ble mover, it appeared to him very desirable, unless any hon'ble member had any objection to offer, that it should be put into the hands of a Select Committee without delay, so that it might be considered in detail as soon as possible. He had no hesitation therefore in suspending the rules.

The HON'BLE MR. O'KINEALY then moved that the Bill be read in Council and referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Mr. Mackenzie, the Hon'ble Baboo Kristodas Pal, the Hon'ble Baboo Mohini Mohun Roy, and the Mover, with instructions to report in three weeks.

The motion was agreed to.

The Council was adjourned to Saturday, the 23rd instant.

RESOLUTION ON THE BOARD'S REPORT ON THE ADMINISTRATION OF WARDS' AND ATTACHED ESTATES FOR 1876-77.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT—LAND REVENUE.

Calcutta, the 16th March 1878.

READ—

The report of the Board of Revenue on the Administration of Wards' and Attached Estates for the year 1876-77.

THIS report has been prepared in the form which was first adopted in 1874-75, and contains the administrative history of the more important estates under the management of the Court of Wards. Owing to the difficulty of obtaining correct and consistent returns from the local managers, the report has been submitted late, and even now contains no mention of the large estate of Durbhunga, and no returns for the estate of Narail, in Jessore, of a more recent date than the year 1874-75. In accordance with the instructions given in the resolution on the report for 1875-76, the introductory chapter has been confined to observations on the general character of the system followed by the Board, while in the body of the report only estates recently brought under management, and large estates with a rental of more than Rs. 1,00,000, have been noticed in detail. Where the field of operations is so wide, and the circumstances of the different estates so various, it is inevitable that the officers of Government should be met by many obstacles in their attempts to obtain punctual and exact returns from the native agency in immediate charge of estates. But district officers should do everything in their power to enforce the observance of the principle that from the time when an estate passes under the care of the Court of Wards, native methods of management must cease, and accounts must be strictly rendered in a form which will show the true financial position of the property. It is hoped that it may be possible to extend to wards' estates the system of periodical local audit which has been suggested for adoption in municipalities; and, if this can be done, an important advance will have been made towards securing accuracy and punctuality in the preparation of accounts.

2. During the year 1875-76 there were no less than 469 estates under the management of the revenue authorities as compared with 462 in the previous year. The following statement shows the total number of estates administered by Government on behalf of their proprietors, and the classes to which they belong:—

	1875-76.	1876-77.
Class I.—Wards' estates managed under Act IV (B.C.) of 1870 ...	55	66
.. II.—Estates of lunatics under the charge of the Collector by an order of a Civil Court under section 11, Act XXXV of 1858 ...	20	19
.. III.—Estates of minors placed under the Collector's management by an order of a Civil Court under section 12, Act XI of 1858 ...	38	42
.. IV.—Shares of disqualified proprietors retained under the Collector's management by an order of a Civil Court passed under Act IV (B.C.) of 1870, section 3 ...	2	2
.. V.—Attached estates ...	346	339
.. VI.—Chaklajal estate placed under the Board by special orders of Government ...	1	1
Total ...	462	469

The total includes the four estates of Narail, Baranagore, Pyrabund, and Abdool Waheb, from which no returns have been received for the past year. Of the 339 attached estates, no less than 319 are petty estates sequestered for debt in the Chota Nagpore Division.

3. Excluding the four estates mentioned above, for which no returns have been submitted, the total demand of rent in all classes of estates amounted to Rs. 1,58,91,201, of which Rs. 75,11,114 were the current demand of the year 1876-77, and Rs. 83,80,087 represented the arrear demand on account of previous years. During the year Rs. 63,84,630 were collected, of which Rs. 3,764 were payments made in advance: and Rs. 4,13,134 were remitted. A balance of Rs. 90,97,201 was left outstanding at the close of the year. The total demand of Government revenue, both current and arrear, from all classes of estates amounted to Rs. 27,70,590, of which Rs. 23,72,016 were paid and Rs. 9 remitted, leaving an outstanding balance at the close of the year of Rs. 3,98,565 due to Government on account of the current and arrear demand. The following statement shows the results of the collection of rent and revenue in each Division during 1876-77:—

	Burdwan.	Presidency.	Rajshahye.	Dacca.	Chittagong.	Patna.	Bhagulpore.	Orissa.	Chota Nagpore.	TOTAL.
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.

4. In reviewing the results of the administration of wards' and attached estates, it has hitherto been the practice to compare the amount of rent realized during the year with the total demand, both current and arrear. Tested by this standard, it is inevitable that the actual collections in any year must bear a comparatively small proportion to the actual demand, while the standard itself is fluctuating and uncertain. It may be possible to lay down, as in the case of Government estates, that the collections of the year should as a rule not fall below a certain percentage of the current demand; but the proportion which the collections should bear to the total demand cannot be defined at all. For the amount of the arrear balance depends mainly upon the condition of the estate and the relations between the proprietor and his tenants when Government assumes the management; and different officers are found to take very different views as to the possibility of recovering arrears. It may reasonably be expected that, if the test of efficient administration is to be the proportion of the total demand collected, the managers of estates will be more ready to recommend that balances should be written off as irrecoverable; and thus debts which might be realized will be lost. The Lieutenant-Governor is, therefore, inclined to agree with the Board that the test of successful management should be the proportion borne by the collections to the current rather than to the total demand. Applying this standard to the results of the past year, it appears that the realizations amounted to 85 per cent. of the current demand. In six districts the percentage of collections was exceptionally low, but this was due to the operation of special causes and not to laxity of management on the part of the Court of Wards. After making allowance for the embarrassed circumstances of many estates, and for the fact that the rent-roll of a property under native management frequently exaggerates the assets, the Lieutenant-Governor thinks that a larger proportion of the demand should have been collected. It is the first duty of a Government manager to enforce the punctual realization of rents, and no schemes of improvement should be allowed to hinder this object.

5. In the Burdwan Division the balance of rent uncollected at the end of the year amounted to Rs. 1,57,940, of which Rs. 1,01,354 were due to the Chuckdighee estate. Heavy legal expenditure was incurred on behalf of this estate, and the litigation also produced an injurious effect by encouraging the ryots to withhold rents which were actually due. The Court of Wards was successful in the Subordinate Civil Court, but an appeal which has been made to the High Court is still pending. The Board of Revenue should watch the case carefully, and see that no unnecessary expenditure is incurred. In Midnapore the collections of rent due to the wards' estates amounted to 90 per cent. of the current demand, and in other respects the administration of those properties by the Collector appears to have been judicious and successful.

6. The Presidency Division shows an arrear balance of Rs. 32,68,918, the three heaviest items being Rs. 20,61,051 due to the Satkhira estate, and Rs. 3,72,826 to the Paikpara estate, both in the 24-Pergunnahs. There was also an arrear of Rs. 1,98,664 on the estate of Nashipore, in Moorsshedabad, and of Rs. 1,11,716 on the attached estate of Ramnagur, in Jessore. No returns are furnished for Narail. The involved state of the Satkhira estate is due to mismanagement and neglect before it passed under the Court of Wards, and three-fourths of the balance is stated to be outstanding from before this time, and to be now irrecoverable. It is observed that the debts on the estate have increased from Rs. 3,24,085 to Rs. 3,45,675 during the past year, and the Collector seems to doubt the possibility of materially reducing this amount. In the Paikpara estate the deficient collections are attributed to the cyclone and storm-wave of October 1876, which seriously affected the Noakholly portion of the property. Most of the balance will probably be recovered, and in any case the estate has more than 25 lakhs invested in mortgages and Government securities, and can afford to bear the loss arising from a great natural calamity. The Nashipore estate, in Moorshedabad, seems to be recovering from the confusion into which its affairs were thrown by the neglect of the late manager, and the Lieutenant-Governor hopes that the Court of Wards may be able to discharge all liabilities before the close of the current year. Special orders have issued to the Board regarding the estate of Narail, in Jessore. No doubt the position of the manager is one of some difficulty, but the Lieutenant-Governor must insist on vigorous efforts being made to procure the submission of accurate returns. At present it is impossible to say even approximately what are the assets and liabilities of the estate.

7. In the Rajshahy and Cooch Behar Division the most important property is the political estate known as the Chacklajat, in which the uncollected balance amounted to Rs. 2,55,645. Owing to the laxity of management which prevailed before the property came under the Court of Wards, considerable difficulties were at first encountered in realizing rents from the jotedars, but it is expected that the measurement and reassessment of the estate, commenced in 1876, will disclose large quantities of land held by these middlemen in excess of their rights, and will largely enhance the rent-roll of the estate.

8. By far the largest estate under the charge of the Court of Wards in the Dacca Division is that of Ramkishore Acharjee, which appears to be very deeply involved. The uncollected balance at the end of the year amounted to Rs. 1,15,034, while the debts on the estate came to Rs. 8,89,047. The attempts of the manager to set the affairs of the minor in order were thwarted by the widow of the late proprietor, and the ryots were indisposed to make any concessions in order to relieve the estate from its encumbrances. Under the circumstances, it appears probable that some portion of the estate will have to be sold to redeem the debts which were incurred during the lifetime of the late proprietor. All the estates in the Chittagong Division suffered severely from the cyclone, and their financial position is consequently far from satisfactory.

9. In the Patna Division the unrealized balance of rent amounted to Rs. 37,48,856, of which no less than Rs. 34,03,505 were due to the Durbhunga estate. Separate orders will be passed on the supplementary report which the Board promise to submit. Most of the estates in the Patna Division are deeply involved, and the only properties which have any considerable sum invested are those of Durbhunga and of Avadh Behari Sarun Misr. In this latter estate, however, the expenses of management bear an extravagant proportion to the current demand. The same remark applies to several estates in the Patna Division and to the estates of Chanchal and Chauthan, in the Bhagulpore Division. Measures must be at once taken to reduce the charges, and the Board will be good enough to submit a special report on the subject.

10. In Orissa the condition of the Kanika estate appears to be improving, and the debt has been considerably reduced during the past year. The uncollected balance has been augmented by the necessity of granting to the ryots remissions of rent on account of losses by flood.

11. Considerable progress has been made in the reduction of the debt on the Chota Nagpore estate, but the uncollected balance is still very heavy. The current demand of the estate amounted to Rs. 1,34,592, and the total demand, both current and arrear, to Rs. 2,74,772, while the collections on both accounts came to only Rs. 1,19,559. This result is far from satisfactory. The ryots in Chota Nagpore are not a turbulent class, and it was stated in the report for 1875-76 that the relations between them and the estate were thoroughly cordial. No doubt cases occasionally occur in which ryots who have fallen into arrears with their rents evade the claim by emigrating to the tea districts; but this practice can hardly be carried out to such an extent as to cause serious loss; and if the collections were punctually made, the amounts thus barred by limitation would be trifling. It is observed that there are still 319 petty estates sequestrated for debt under the special procedure in force in Chota Nagpore; but now that the Encumbered Estates' Act has provided the means of saving the larger properties from sale, the Lieutenant-Governor thinks that it should be considered whether the majority of these should not be released from attachment and left to be dealt with by the ordinary course of law. A special report has been called for from the Commissioner on this subject.

On the whole the Lieutenant-Governor considers the results of the year's administration of wards' and attached estates to be creditable to the Board of Revenue and to the local Courts of Wards. In several estates which had become seriously involved vigorous reforms have been commenced, and real progress has been made in the difficult task of bringing order out of the confusion in which too many estates are involved when they pass under the management of the Court. The main principles by which the Board have been guided are sound, and are calculated to reconcile the apparently conflicting duties of Government in its double capacity of landlord and trustee.

13. During the year, fifteen wards were receiving their education at the Calcutta Wards' Institution at an average cost of Rs. 214 per mensem. This is slightly above the average cost in the previous year; but prices have been high, and, looking to the social position of the inmates of the institution, this amount does not appear to be excessive. Allowing for the absence of special inducements to study, the progress made by the pupils seems to be fairly satisfactory, while the personal influence of the Director and the encouragement given to out-door pursuits have produced a healthy general tone in the Institution. The thanks of the Lieutenant-Governor are due to Dr. Rajendralala Mitra for his efficient management of the important and delicate charge entrusted to him.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

H. J. REYNOLDS,

Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

Rainfall, Weather, and State and Prospects of the Crops.

Statement showing Rainfall, Weather, and State and Prospects of the Crops in the different Districts of Bengal, as reported to Government during the week ending the 16th March 1878.

No.	District, and date of return.	Rainfall at Sudder Station in inches.	Character of the weather, state and prospects of the crops, and state of health at date.
BENGAL.
Western Districts.
BURDWAN DIV.	1 Burdwan, Mar. 16 '78	Nil	Pressing of sugarcane is going on. Wheat and barley are doing well. Cholera and small-pox are prevalent in Cutwa, Raneeunge, and Bood-Bood sub-divisions. Fever prevails in Jehanabad sub-division. Cholera still lingers in Culna sub-division.
	2 Bankoora, „ 16 „	0.46	Weather—clear and hot in the early part of the week. A very lowering sky on the 14th ended on the 15th in thunder showers. No change in the state and prospects of the crops since last week. Some cases of cholera, small-pox and measles, and cattle disease are reported.
	3 Beerbhoom, „ 16 „	0.10	Heavy storms in the north of the district on the 15th. A very slight fall of rain at the station. All is well with such crops as are still on the ground.
	4 Midnapore, „ 16 „	0.25	Weather—hot and seasonable. Nothing new to report on the state and prospects of the crops.
	5 Hooghly, „ 16 „	0.35	Weather—very warm. Cloudy on the 14th and 15th. Slight rain on the night of the 15th. The land is being ploughed for indigo. Sugarcane is being planted. A few cases of cholera and small-pox have been reported from the Hooghly and Chinsurah Municipality. Cattle disease has broken out in one village in thana Pandooah.
PRESIDENCY DIV.	Howrah, „ 18 „	0.16	Weather—seasonable, with occasional storms in the evening. The slight rain has been beneficial to the few crops on the ground. It seems to have been heavier in Moheshreekha than at head-quarters, and it will facilitate cultivation.
	6 Central Districts 24-Pergunnahs, Mar. 16 '78	0.23	Squally weather, with a little rain. The late showers have done good, but rain is still much wanted. Some cholera continues. Cattle disease is reported from all the thanas of Satkhira.
	7 Nudda, „ 16 „	0.10	Occasional fogs in the morning. A little rain fell in most parts of the district. There is scarcely anything on the ground now. The rain has been of much service in facilitating cultivation. The fogs have injured the mango blossoms.
	8 Jessore, „ 16 „	1.43 Jhenidah 3.02, Magoo- rah 2.00, Bagurhat 1.35	Weather—seasonable. State and prospects of the crops are favourable. The recent rain that fell has done much good. Sowings of paddy have commenced.
	9 Moorshedabad, „ 16 „	0.25	Weather—seasonable. The rubber crops are being reaped with every prospect of a fair outturn. Cholera still prevails locally in a sporadic form.
RAJSHAHY AND COOCH BEHAR DIV.	10 Dinagepore, Mar. 15 '78	Nil	Weather—cool. Strong east wind blowing. The prospects of the spring crops are good. General health of the district has improved.
	11 Rajshahye, „ 16 „	0.001	The heat is daily increasing. The nights are still cool. There have been mist nearly every morning. A very slight fall of rain on the night of the 15th. The cutting of the rubber crops, and the sowing of sansamum and early rice are going on; a shower of rain would do much good. The price of rice is high. A few cases of cholera occurred in the vicinity of Nowhatta.
	12 Rungpore, „ 15 „	Nil Gaihandia 0.73	There was some slight drizzling rain on the night of the 13th, followed by high easterly winds. State and prospects of the crops continue to be favourable. The tobacco outturn this year is expected to be an average one. Cholera still exists in some parts of Oleport and Bhowanigunge thanas. Fever is at its minimum.
	13 Bogra, „ 16 „	0.74	There was a shower of rain on the night of the 15th, and more is anticipated. The sowing of early rice and jute has commenced in some places. Linseed and ganja are being gathered; the latter crop is not very good. Some cases of cholera have been reported from Panchbibi station.
	14 Pubna, „ 16 „	Nil	Slight rain in most parts of the district at the commencement of the week, which has done no benefit to the crops. The sky appears now and then cloudy. No change to report in the state and prospects of the crops; but rain is wanted.
	15 Darjeeling, „ 15 „	1.53	Several showers of rain with some hail and a good deal of high wind. The recent rain will be favourable to the approaching rice sowings. There are no crops of importance on the ground now.
	16 Julpigoree, „ 15 „	0.90	The weather has been windy and stormy. The present fall of snow on the Bhootan Hills seems to have been unusually heavy. There is nothing fresh to report about the crops. The price of rice is rapidly rising all over the district, owing to the increased demand for export.
	Cooch Behar, „ 14 „	Nil	East winds prevailing. Weather cool. The prospects of cheena and kaon continue satisfactory. Tobacco in places has suffered from the high winds. Public health is generally good.

Eastern Districts.
Dacca Divn.	17 Dacca, Mar. 16 '78	0.06 Manick-gunge 0.82, Moon-shee-gunge 1.23 for week ending 13th.	Weather—seasonable and getting warm. State and prospects of the crops are favourable. The rain has done much good in every way.
	18 Furrusedpore, „ 16 „	0.02 Madari-pore 2.76	Weather—generally cloudy, with a breeze from the south. The prospects of the crops have been benefitted by the rain which fell during the week in the Madari-pore sub-division and by the previous rain in the head-quarters sub-division. A storm is reported to have occurred at Goalundo on the evening of the 12th instant. There was no rain at Goalundo itself, but rain and hail are believed to have fallen in the neighbourhood. The storm caused some damage to boats on the river, but particulars have not been received. Sporadic cases of cholera and some cases of small-pox have been reported, but there is no serious outbreak of sickness.
	19 Backergunge, „ 14 „	1.93	There has been some rain, but not nearly sufficient to permit the beginning of ploughing. Food still continues dear, from Rs 3 to Rs 3.8 per maund. There has been, and there still is, a serious outbreak of small-pox in the sub-division of Perozepore.
	20 Mymensingh, „ 15 „	0.24	Weather—stormy and showery. Ploughing is in progress.
	21 Tipperah, „ 15 „	1.08 Sub-divn 0.77	Rain fell on the 6th, 7th, and 8th in the south, and on the 9th and 10th in the centre and west of the district. There was a heavy thunder-storm on the night of the 9th. Boro rice and other crops are thriving. Khesari and kalai are being reaped. Chillies are being gathered. Aus dhan is being transplanted. Sugarcane is nearly all cut. Rice is being exported to the south and to Naraingunge. The average price of the staple is about Rs. 2.14.
CHITTAGONG DIVN.	22 Chittagong, „ 14 „	0.92	Nights and mornings are cool. Days are hot. Rain has benefitted the cold-weather crops. Pania aus is being transplanted. Rice is selling at 10 to 16 seers per rupee.
	23 Nonkholly, „ 14 „	0.55	Weather—daily getting warmer. Slight rain fell on the 8th and 10th. The cold-weather crops are progressing favourably. Public health is good.
	24 Chittagong Hill Tracts, „ 12 „	Nil	Weather—seasonable. Cloudy on the 11th. Joom-cutting still continues. Tobacco leaves are being gathered in small quantities. The lands are being ploughed for aus crop.
	Hill Tipperah, „ 13 „	2.17	Weather—stormy on the 6th, 8th, and 11th. A good deal of rain has fallen. There was hail also on the 8th. Much damage has been caused by hail to the mango blossoms. Prices have slightly fallen.
BEHAR.
PATNA DIVN.	25 Patna, Mar. 16 '78	Nil	Nothing new to report about the state and prospects of the crops.
	26 Gaya, „ 16 „	Slight rain.	Weather—warm. Maximum thermometer in the shade 101.2°. The rubber harvest is going on. Injury by insects is still reported. Prices show no upward tendency at present.
	27 Shahabad „ 16 „	Drizzling	Weather—cloudy, with strong east wind. The rubber crops are being harvested; they have, however, been greatly damaged by insects. Peas and gram have been cut. Prices are still high. Public health is good.
	28 Darbhanga, Mar 16 '78	Nil	Strong east wind prevailing. The weather thus far is unfavourable for indigo, though it is favourable for the rubber harvest which is satisfactorily progressing. There is promise of an excellent mango season.
	29 Mozufferpore, „ 16 „	Nil	Weather—getting warm. West wind prevailing. The rubber crops are being reaped. Poppy and tobacco have been much injured by caterpillars in Hajee-pore sub-division.
	30 Saran, „ 16 „	Nil	Weather—cold in the mornings and evenings; seasonably warm at midday; cloudy with high east wind during the last three days; sprinkling rain on the morning of the 16th. The cold-weather crops are still being harvested, and a fair outturn is expected, save in the rahar which has suffered somewhat from frost. Injury has been done to the mango trees by the east wind. Poppy-heads are still being topped. Prices are stationary. Public health is good.
	31 Chhaparun, „ 16 „	0.03	Weather—nice and cool. Sky overcast, and there was a slight shower of rain on the morning of the 16th. Nothing new to report regarding the prospects of the rubber and opium crops. The rubber has commenced to be harvested, and the lancetting of opium is nearly over. Grain market is steady.

No.	District, and date of return.	Rainfall at Sudder Station in inches.	Character of the weather, state and prospects of the crops, and state of health at date.
BHAGULPORE DIVISION.	32 Monghyr, Mar. 16 '78	Nil	Weather—warm, with east winds and rain threatening. The rubbee crops are being harvested. The opium is suffering from blight, and its outturn is much reduced.
	33 Bhagulpore, „ 16 „	0·17	Weather—hot, with easterly winds. Nights are cool. A shower in the afternoon of the 16th. The harvesting of the rubbee crops has commenced. Prices are unchanged. Health is generally good.
	34 Purneah, „ 16 „	0·06	Temperature windy. Winds generally easterly. The outturn of the rubbee harvest is generally good, and the prospects continue good where the harvest is in progress. Rain is required for the bhadoi sowings.
	35 Maldah, „ 16 „	Nil	Weather—fair. The rubbee harvest is progressing: in most places the crop seems an excellent one, but along the banks of the Ganges it is not so good. The price of rice is very high for the time of year, owing to the demand for export. Cholera is prevalent in Mamick Chuk and Nowabgunge, and cases have also been reported from old Maldah and Gajole.
	36 Sonthal Pergah, „ 17 „	Nil	Weather—warmer, but seasonable. Gram and wheat have been fair. Mohwa in the Godda sub-division has been destroyed by hail. Small-pox and cholera are still about.
ORISSA.
ORISSA DIV.	37 Cuttack Mar. 16 '78	Nil	Weather—warm and windy. There was rain in several parts of the district which has benefitted the dalua and cotton crops. Ploughing for next year's crop is going on in those parts.
	38 Pooree, „ 14 „	A few drops, Khoor-dah 0·01	Weather—warm for the season. Dalua rice and moong are being reaped. Common rice is selling at a rupee for 11½ to 15½ seers. Export of rice to the Madras Presidency continues. The selling price of rice in the salt tracts is a rupee for 9½ Calcutta seers. Public health is good.
	39 Balasore, „ 15 „	0·13	Weather—foggy in the morning; hot and dry in the day. A few very slight showers have fallen. The few crops on the ground are in fair condition. Sporadic deaths from cholera occur.
CHOTA NAGPORE.
South-West Frontier Agency.
40	Hazareebagh, Mar. 16 '78	Nil	Weather—seasonable. No change to report about the crops. Prices of food grains continue to rise.
41	Lohardugga, „ 16 „	1·03	There have been three storms of wind from the westward, the last one accompanied with hail and rain. The rubbee crops are being harvested. Some of them are better than others. The outturn is about 8 annas. Mohwa promised well till the hail of the 15th. It is not known whether the storm was general. Considerable emigration to the Tributary Mehals in the south of the district is going on. Prices have not risen since last report.
42	Singbhoom, „ 15 „	Nil	Weather—seasonable. A severe storm on the evening of the 14th at Chyehassa, but no damage has been done. Nothing to report about the crops. The district is healthy.
43	Munbhoom, „ 16 „	0·05	Weather—stormy. Bad reports of the condition of the people have been received from the west of the district. The prospects of the mohwa crop have been reported favourable, but heavy storms of wind and rain have very lately occurred, the reports of the effects of which are awaited.

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from observations made at 6h., 10h., 16h and 22h.; the maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard (Newman's No. 86) formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The direction and movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

f foggy, w dew, o overcast, ⊕ solar corona, g gloomy, t thunder, l lightning, d drizzling, / strong wind, p passing temporary showers.

NOTIFICATION.

The 18th March 1878.—The following Bye-laws framed by the Municipal Commissioners of Howrah at a meeting under section 313, of Act V (B.C.) of 1876, having been confirmed by the Lieutenant-Governor under section 314 thereof, are hereby published for general information:—

For regulating the conduct of business at Meetings of the Commissioners.

1. An Ordinary General Meeting of the Commissioners shall be held on every first and third Thursday of the month.
2. All such meetings shall be convened by the Chairman or Vice-Chairman by notice to be served on each Commissioner, not later than the Monday preceding the day of the meeting.
3. In the event of the Chairman or Vice-Chairman determining to call an Extraordinary General Meeting, not less than two clear days' notice shall be given to the Commissioners of the day fixed for such Extraordinary General Meeting.
4. Every notice convening a meeting shall be accompanied by a list of the business signed by the Chairman or Vice-Chairman to be brought forward at such meeting.
5. Any Commissioners wishing to bring forward any business shall give notice of such intention in writing to the Chairman a week before the meeting, when the Chairman or Vice-Chairman shall include such business in the list of the business to be laid before such meeting.
6. No business shall be considered, or proposition received at any meeting, if it does not appear in the list of business.
7. At all Ordinary General Meetings the proceedings shall be commenced by the Secretary reading the Minutes of the last Ordinary or Extraordinary General Meeting with a view to ascertain if the resolutions passed at such meeting have been faithfully and accurately recorded in the words used by the mover of such resolution, or if amendments thereto shall have been passed in the words used by the mover of such duly passed amendments.
8. In the event of any Commissioner being of opinion that any such resolution has not been accurately recorded, it shall be competent to such Commissioner to state his opinion to that effect, and thereupon the Chairman shall decide, whether or no, such resolution has been accurately recorded by reference to the original draft of such resolution written and signed by the mover, and if he finds the Minute to be inaccurate, he shall then and there make the necessary correction in the Minute Book, provided that no discussion as to the propriety or otherwise of such resolution shall be allowed.
9. The order in which the several subjects shall be discussed at a meeting shall be determined by the order in which they are mentioned in the Chairman's list.
10. On the Commissioners proceeding to the consideration of any subject, the Secretary shall first read to the Commissioners the letters and papers connected with such subject, and thereupon any Commissioner may make a proposition regarding such subject, and address the meeting prior to the question being put to vote by the President, provided that such Commissioner shall confine his remarks to the subject under consideration.
11. Every proposition made shall be written out by the proposer, and signed by him.
12. Every proposition shall be seconded by one Commissioner who shall also sign or initial the draft proposition written by the proposer.
13. The Commissioner who first addresses the meeting shall be entitled to be heard first, and should more than one Commissioner address the meeting, the right of precedence shall be determined by the President.
14. Any Commissioner shall be at liberty to call the attention of the President to a point of order, even when a Commissioner is addressing the meeting.
15. Any Commissioner may propose an amendment to a proposition to the effect that certain words in the proposition originally made be omitted therefrom, that certain words be substituted, or that certain words be added thereto, provided that such amendment be proposed when the subject is being discussed and the original proposition is still before the meeting.

16. On the discussion being concluded, in the event of several amendments having been proposed, the President shall put the last amendment to the vote first; if negatived, he shall put the second amendment, and then the first, and if all the amendments are lost, the original proposition shall be put to the vote.

17. No Commissioner shall be allowed to vote by proxy, when he is unable to attend a meeting, or under any circumstances.

18. On a proposition being made and seconded, the President shall put the same to the vote.

19. Votes shall be taken by show of hands.

20. All votes shall be put by the President, first in the affirmative, and then in the negative form.

21. Any Commissioner may decline to vote on any subject without assigning his reason for abstaining from voting.

22. Any Commissioner may, with the President's permission, make a proposition that a subject under consideration be postponed, or that the consideration of it be adjourned either to a fixed date, or sine die.

23. It shall be competent to any Commissioner to move a resolution to the effect that the subject under consideration be referred to a committee, provided that such Commissioner shall also at the same time propose the names of the members of such committee.

24. It shall be competent to the members of any such committee appointed to vote at any general meeting on the subject reported on by such committee.

25. Should any Commissioner object to any part of a report submitted by such committee, such Commissioner shall be competent to make a proposition that the report be adopted, except with regard to the particular part objected to by him, or that such report be again referred to the committee, or that the report be entirely set aside.

26. A subject once finally disposed of by a resolution duly passed at a meeting shall not be re-opened at any subsequent meeting, unless at least three-fourths of the Commissioners present at a meeting, of which due notice has been given, consent that such subject shall be re-opened and re-considered, provided that resolutions adjourning the consideration of a subject may be re-considered at any meeting after the usual notice.

27. The minutes of the proceedings of all meetings shall show the names of the President and of all members attending, the words of every proposition and every amendment, and in cases where votes are taken the number of votes pro and con.

For regulating the mode of collecting taxes.

28. Every collecting officer shall be provided with a certificate of his authority to collect, and every such certificate shall bear the seal of the municipality and the signature of the Chairman or Vice-Chairman. Every collecting officer at the time of demanding payment shall be bound to show this certificate if required.

29. The collecting officer taking the money in payment of any demand shall give the receipt for it.

For regulating the conduct of persons employed by the Commissioners.

30. All persons employed by the Commissioners, whose services may no longer be required, shall be liable to discharge after receipt of previous notice, or pay in advance for the period of one month, and no such person shall withdraw from the duties of his office without having given previous notice for the period of one month, on pain of forfeiture of one month's salary.

31. All persons now holding, or who may hereafter be appointed to any office under the Commissioners, shall, when required to do so, furnish good security to such amount as the Commissioners may from time to time fix, and any person failing to furnish such security within reasonable time, or within such time as the Commissioners may appoint, shall be held to have thereby forfeited his appointment, and may be removed from office.

HIGH COURT NOTICES.

Circular Order issued by Authority of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal.

CRIMINAL.

No. 1, dated the 4th March 1878.

THE attention of Sessions Judges, and of Magistrates of the first class in the Lower Provinces of Bengal, and of the Presidency Magistrates in Calcutta, is drawn to the rules made by the Governor-General in Council under Section 22, Act V of 1876, and published at page 138, Part I, of the Calcutta Gazette of 20th February, by which the periods for which they may send youthful offenders to Reformatory Schools must be regulated.

2. The Court have learnt from the Government of Bengal that the preliminary arrangements for the introduction of the Reformatory Schools' Act in the Lower Provinces of Bengal are now complete; that the buildings for the Reformatory School to be established at Alipore for the reception and industrial training of juvenile offenders are ready for occupation, and that the Act has been formally extended to the Lower Provinces of Bengal from the 1st March. The instructions contained in Circular Memorandum No. 2, dated 20th May 1874, are therefore withdrawn. Officers must, however, bear in mind that the accommodation available in the Reformatory will be very limited, at least during 1878-79, provision having been made for the maintenance of only 50 boys in the institution during the ensuing financial year. It will therefore be necessary, before recording an order for sending a boy to the Reformatory School at Alipore, to inquire whether he can be received.

Sheriff's Office, the 27th February 1878.

NOTICE is hereby given that the Third Criminal Sessions of the year 1878, of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, for the Town of Calcutta and Factory of Fort William and the places subordinate thereto, will be holden at the Court-house, in the Town of Calcutta, on Monday, the Twenty-fifth day of March next, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, and so on from day to day until the said Sessions be over. And it is hereby proclaimed that all persons who will prosecute any of the prisoners to be brought up for trial at the said Sessions be then and there to prosecute.

JUDICIAL.

Fort William, the 13th March 1878

No. 340.—In exercise of the power conferred by Section 22 of the Reformatory Schools' Act V of 1876, the Governor-General in Council is pleased to make the following Rules for regulating the periods for which Courts and Magistrates in the territories administered by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal may send youthful offenders to reformatory schools in the said territories:—

RULE I.—No boy shall be sent to a reformatory school on a first conviction (except as provided in Rule III), if under ten years of age, for a less period than five years; if over ten, for a less period than three years, unless he shall sooner attain the age of 18.

RULE II.—On a subsequent conviction for a similar offence, a boy under ten years of age shall not be sent to a reformatory school for a less period than seven years; if over ten, for a less period than five years, unless he shall sooner attain the age of 18.

RULE III.—A first conviction may bring a boy under Rule II—

- (1) if he belongs to a criminal tribe withing the meaning of Act XXVII of 1871, Section 2;
- (2) if either of his parents is an habitual criminal;
- (3) if he is destitute; and
- (4) if the offence of which he is convicted is one arguing great depravity.*

* N. B.—The word "depravity" here means a general corruption of morals apart from the specific criminality of the particular act.

NOTIFICATIONS.—COMMERCE AND TRADE.

Fort William, the 15th March 1878.

No. 11 of 1878.—The following Notice to Mariners is published for general information:—

NOTICE TO MARINERS.

RED SEA.

Central Channel—Zebayir Islands, Jebel Zukur, and the Hanish Islands.

The information contained in this Notice has been published by the Hydrographer to the British Admiralty.

The following amended positions of Zebayir Islands, Jebel Zukur, and the Hanish Islands, are derived from a recent examination by Commander W. J. L. Wharton, H. M.'s Surveying Vessel Fawn, 1877.

ZEBAYIR ISLANDS.—The west end of Centre Peak Island lies East one mile from the position it formerly occupied on the Admiralty Chart, and is now placed in latitude $15^{\circ} 14' N.$, longitude $12^{\circ} 12' E.$ The west end of Jebel Zebayir is E. by S. $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles; the west end of Saddle Island is E. N. E. $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles; and the remaining islands of the group are N. E. by N. $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles from their former charted positions respectively.

An islet 40 feet high lies S. W. $\frac{1}{2}$ S. half a mile from Rugged Island.

JEHEL ZUKUR AND THE HANISH ISLANDS.—Jebel Zukur and the Hanish Islands are situated $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles S.E. of their former position on the chart. Jebel Zukur north point is in latitude $14^{\circ} 3' 53'' N.$, longitude $12^{\circ} 45' 28'' E.$, depending on the submarine telegraph office at Aden, being in longitude $44^{\circ} 58' 32'' E.$

MARINE SURVEY DEPARTMENT; } CALCUTTA,
The 15th March 1878.

By order,
G. H. M. BATTEN,
Offg. Secy. to the Govt. of India.

This notice affects the following Admiralty Charts:—Red sea, sheet 4, No. 8d, sheet 5, No. 8e; Index chart No. 2523; also, Red sea pilot, 1873, pages 15, 29, 32, 33; and Taylor's Sailing Directory, Vol. I, page 165.

If this Notice is received on boardship, the information contained therein should be noted in the Sailing Directions, and compared with the charts, when the ship is navigating the locality to which it refers.

The following orders, issued by the Government of India in the Financial Department, are republished for general information:—

NOTIFICATIONS.

Fort William, the 15th March 1878.

No. 1864.—The Governor-General in Council directs the publication of the following Addenda and Corrigenda to the Codes of the Financial Department:—

CIVIL PENSION CODE.

SECTION 95. RULE 5 (PAGE 52).

Substitute the following for the proviso inserted after "life" in the second sentence of this Rule by Notification No. 986, dated 15th February 1878:—

Provided that no gratuity which will yield on commutation a pension of less than two rupees a month, need be commuted at all under this rule.

SEPARATE REVENUE—POST OFFICE.

The 15th March 1878.

No. 1845.—Under the powers vested in him by Sections 19, 20, 22 and 63 of the Post Office Act of 1866, the Governor General in Council is pleased to direct that from the 1st April next postage rates shall be chargeable upon letters, packets and parcels transmitted by the Indian Inland Post at the rates and under the conditions mentioned below, viz.:—

POSTAGE RATES AND CONDITIONS.

Prepaid Postage Rates.

The prepaid postage rates shall be as follows:—

(Postage can be prepaid only by a proper stamp or stamps, adhesive or embossed).

	Letters.	Packets in open covers. — Prepayment of one rate ($\frac{1}{2}$ anna) compulsory.	Parcels.
	Annas.	Annas.	Annas.
Not exceeding $\frac{1}{4}$ tola in weight	$\frac{1}{4}$
Exceeding $\frac{1}{4}$ tola and not exceeding 1 tola	1
Exceeding 1 tola and not exceeding 2 tolas	2
For every additional tola	1
Not exceeding 10 tolas in weight	$\frac{3}{4}$...
Exceeding 10 tolas and not exceeding 20 tolas	1	...
For every additional 10 tolas	$\frac{1}{4}$...
Not exceeding 40 tolas in weight	8
Exceeding 40 tolas and not exceeding 80 tolas	12
For every additional 40 tolas	4

Unpaid Postage chargeable on delivery.

The unpaid postage rates shall be as follows:—

For an unpaid letter—double the prepaid rate.

For an insufficiently paid letter or packet—double the deficiency.

For an unpaid parcel—the prepaid rate.

For an insufficiently paid parcel—the deficiency.

Registration of Newspapers to cease.

Consequent upon the assimilation of the postage rates chargeable upon packets generally to those heretofore chargeable upon newspapers, it will no longer be necessary to register newspapers in the Postmaster General's office or to print registration numbers upon them.

Letter and Banghy Posts.

Articles not exceeding 10 tolas in weight shall be forwarded by the letter post (at letter or packet rates as the case may be) except when they are specially marked or presented by the senders for transmission as parcels. And any fully prepaid packet exceeding 10 tolas in weight which contains only a single mission news-paper* shall also be transmitted by the letter post.

All other articles shall be forwarded by the banghy post (at parcel or packet rates as the case may be) except when they are specially marked by the senders for transmission as letters, or when an intention to send them as letters is inferred from the outward appearance or other indication, such as prepayment of letter postage.

Packets how to be packed.

Packets must be packed in "open covers." By this term are meant covers open at the ends so as to admit of a ready examination of the contents, and containing nothing closed against inspection. Packets without covers shall be treated in the same way as those in open covers.

* NOTE.—Here and elsewhere in this notification the term newspaper includes periodicals published at intervals not exceeding 31 days.

Contents of Packets.

Packets must not contain any communication having the character of an actual and personal correspondence unless such communication be wholly printed, lithographed or papyrographed. But proof sheets marked as such on the outside under the signature of the sender (even though they may bear manuscript corrections) shall be reckoned as being "wholly printed" within the meaning of this rule: and press manuscripts intended for publication shall not be reckoned as having the character of an actual and personal correspondence, provided that the packet has on the outside above the address the superscription "Press manuscript" and is addressed to the office of a newspaper.

Size of Packets.

No packet may exceed one foot and a half in length or one foot in width or depth.

Packets not fulfilling the prescribed conditions.

Packets not fulfilling the prescribed conditions or not prepaid with the minimum rate of half anna shall be forwarded charged with the letter or parcel postage whichever may be the least: but if any such packet contains only one or more newspapers, it shall not be forwarded but be sent to the Dead Letter Office.

Contents of Parcels.

Not more than one communication having the character of an actual and personal correspondence (unless wholly printed, lithographed or papyrographed) may be enclosed in a parcel.

Weight of Parcels.

No parcel may exceed 25 seers (2,000 tolas) in weight, nor may it be of a kind, which owing to size, shape or otherwise, cannot be carried without serious inconvenience to the mail service or risk to itself.

Receipts and acknowledgments for parcels when properly packed.

A person tendering a parcel at a post office within the prescribed hours shall be entitled to get a receipt for it, provided that a parcel so tendered is securely packed in cloth, wax-cloth or tin, and if it is packed in cloth or wax-cloth, provided further that it bears seals with distinct impressions of some device (not that of a current coin) at intervals not exceeding five inches along the lines of sewing.

CERTIFICATES OF POSTING OF UNREGISTERED ARTICLES.

Preparation and presentation of certificates.

Persons desirous to have a certificate of posting in respect of any article for which a post office receipt is not given, may obtain such certificate under the following conditions, viz. :—

- (1) The certificates of posting should be presented ready written in ink along with the article to be posted, and both the certificate and the article should be presented at the Post Office window on any day except Sunday at least half an hour before the hour fixed for closing the mail for which it is intended.
- (2) The certificate should be an exact transcript of what is entered upon the address side of the article to be posted, and should have a half-anna postage label affixed thereto.
- (3) The Post Office will compare the address of the letter with the certificate, and if it be correct, will obliterate the postage label and impress the dated stamp upon the certificate. The certificate will be returned to the person who presented it.

Official Postage Rates.

Prepayment is optional in all cases, except for registered articles. Unpaid rates are the same as the prepaid rates.	Letters.	Packets in open covers to contain no letter or communication of the nature of a letter (unless wholly printed, lithographed or papyrographed) or anything closed against inspection.	Parcels.
	Annas.	Annas.	Annas.
Not exceeding $\frac{1}{2}$ tola	$\frac{1}{2}$	$\frac{1}{2}$	} See note (b).
Exceeding $\frac{1}{2}$ and not exceeding 10 tolas	1	1
Exceeding 10 and not exceeding 20 tolas	2	1
" 20 " 30 " "	3	1 $\frac{1}{2}$
" 30 " 40 " "	4	2
Exceeding 40 tolas	{ 1 anna per tola : see note (a). }		$\frac{1}{2}$ anna per 10 tolas.
Exceeding 40 tolas and not exceeding 80 tolas	12
Exceeding 80 tolas and not exceeding 120 tolas	16
For every additional 40 tolas	4

NOTE (a).—Thus an article weighing 41 tolas will be charged with 41 annas. Articles in closed covers which exceed 40 tolas will be conveyed by Banghy Post (as packets or as parcels) at the lower rate of charge, unless specially marked by the senders for transmission as letters, or prepaid at letter rates.

NOTE (b).—No rates are given for parcels not exceeding 40 tolas in weight, because they can be sent as registered letters at no greater cost.

NOTE (c).—All letters as well as all Packets not exceeding 10 tolas in weight and any fully prepaid packet exceeding 10 tolas which contains only a single Official Gazette are forwarded by Letter Post. All other articles are forwarded by the slower Banghy Post.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT FOR 1878-79.

No. 1911, dated 18th March 1878.

● RESOLUTION—By the Government of India, FINANCIAL DEPT.

1. Such full explanations of the general financial situation of the Government of India have lately been given in the Legislative Council of the Governor General, in connection with the new measures of taxation which have been adopted, that the necessity for entering into much detail at present has been obviated. As no legislation is required to carry out any measures which the Government of India now proposes to adopt, the Financial Statement necessarily takes the form of a Resolution of the Government, for no Statement could be made in the Legislative Council without disregarding the provisions of the Act of Parliament by which the Council is constituted. It will, however, be convenient to recapitulate the main facts which have lately been laid before the Council and the public, and to refer to the more important measures, whether of taxation or of financial administration, which have been taken during the past year.

2. A Statement in explanation of the Accounts of the year 1876-77, of the Regular Estimates of the current year 1877-78, and of the Budget Estimates of the coming year 1878-79, accompanies this Resolution. The main results will now be summarized.

3. The Accounts of 1876-77 show a deficit on the ordinary account of £2,182,778, of which a sum of £3,450,000 is due to Famine Expenditure and Loss of Revenue.

4. The Expenditure on Productive Public Works (under which designation the class of works will be henceforth spoken of hitherto termed Extraordinary) was £3,809,284.

5. The Regular Estimate for 1877-78 shows a deficit on the Ordinary Account of £3,431,000. This result is worse than the Budget Estimate by £2,809,300, due to the prolongation of the Famine in Southern India, which is now expected to cost, in loss of revenue and direct expenditure during the current year, £6,500,000.

6. The Expenditure on Productive Works for 1877-78 is now estimated at £4,877,000.

7. The effects of the Famine have so entirely disturbed the whole of the Financial arrangements of these two years that no useful comparison can be instituted between the Budget Estimates and the later results. Full details, however, will be found in the Statement appended to this Resolution.

8. The Budget Estimates for 1878-79 show the Ordinary Revenue at £63,250,000, and the Ordinary Expenditure at £61,094,000, with a surplus of £2,156,000.

9. The increase of the Revenues compared with the Regular Estimates for 1877-78 is due, to the extent of £2,654,000, to the incorporation of Provincial rates which have hitherto been excluded; £929,000 arises from new taxation.

The land revenue of 1877-78 having been about £1,300,000 in deficit of the normal receipts, and that of 1878-79 being about £700,000 in excess, accounts for an apparent improvement in the Budget Estimate of nearly £2,000,000.

The improvement in the Excise, £248,000, is partly real and the result of improved administration, and partly due to depression in 1877-78.

Under Assessed Taxes is shown the proceeds of the New License Tax amounting to £765,000.

The decrease under Customs and increase under Salt will be explained subsequently.

The net revenue under Opium is taken at 6 millions, being less by about £500,000 than the Regular Estimate. This decrease is mainly due, as explained in the Statement, to a failure in the opium crop in Malwa.

The decrease under Mints is due to the very large coining operations of 1877-78.

The head Guaranteed Railways shows a decrease of £965,000, the revenue having been swollen by famine and other exceptional causes during the current year.

State Railways show an estimated increase of £430,000, with a gross income of £967,000.

10. The ordinary expenditure excluding £555,000 for Famine amounts to £60,539,000, showing an increase over the corresponding estimated expenditure for 1877-78 (also excluding Famine) of £3,860,000, of which £2,832,100 is due to the incorporation of the Provincial Expenditure now for the first time brought into the general accounts.

Under Expenditure, the increase under Interest is £161,000, the total charge being £5,909,000. The apparent increases under Land Revenue, Minor Departments, Police, Education and some other less important heads are due to the transfers from Provincial Funds.

The reduction under Opium, £469,000, arises from reduced payments to cultivators.

The largely increased remittances in the coming year lead to an increase of £1,384,000 under the head Loss by Exchange.

Famine Relief shows a reduction of £4,734,000. The estimate provides for £500,000 for relief, to which £55,000 has to be added under Army. The corresponding charge last year under Army was £200,000.

The Expenditure under Army shows a satisfactory diminution of £636,000, due to the extent of £230,100 to expenditure in India, the rest being under Stores in England.

The increase under Public Works Ordinary is due to the Provincial Expenditure.

State Railways show an increase of £298,000 with a total of £704,000, leaving a net increase of £263,000.

11. The Expenditure under Productive Public Works, hitherto classed as Public Works Extraordinary, is estimated for 1878-79 at £4,555,000. This grant is less by £322,000 than the Regular Estimate for 1878-79, but exceeds the Budget Grant of that year by £927,000. The excess expenditure under this head in the current year was due partly to the desire to complete the Indus Valley Railway, and partly to works undertaken for Famine relief.

12. Taking into account the capital transactions with the Guaranteed Railway Companies and the loans to Native States, &c., the net sum borrowed in 1876-77 was £3,306,595, exceeding by £1,409,795 the sum (£1,896,800) entered in the Regular Estimates. This, and some other circumstances, explain the excess of £2,776,865 in the Opening Balances of 1877-78 as compared with the Regular Estimates. In 1877-78 the net sum borrowed similarly calculated amounts to £6,726,000, exceeding by £1,344,900 the sum £5,381,100 shown in the Budget Estimates. The Closing Balances of the year are now expected to be £16,000,000, being more than the Opening Balances by £535,335, and than the estimated Closing Balances by £2,488,800. The great extra expenditure imposed upon the State by the prolongation of the Famine was practically almost entirely met by the excess sum borrowed in the two years compared with the Estimates of the 15th March last, viz., £2,754,695.

Next year it is proposed to borrow in all only £2,500,000, of which £600,000 is wanted for loans to Native States and the like, and £1,000,000 for repayment to the Guaranteed Railway Companies; the net sums therefore added to the Debt will, if the Estimates are realised, be only £900,000. But, on the other hand, the balances will be reduced by £1,500,000. The Government of India cannot at present give any information about the time or manner in which it will borrow the £2,500,000 set down in the Estimates, or any other sum which it may actually want. The Closing Balance of 1878-79 is estimated at £14,500,000. Of the Closing Balances, £14,734,600 in 1877-78 and £13,069,200 in 1878-79 are expected to be in the Indian Treasuries.

13. The total net cost of the Famine in Southern India is now estimated to be—

In 1876-77	3,450,000
TOTAL	9,950,000

In 1878-79 it is, at present, expected that arrears of land revenue lying over from the famine years will be recovered in excess of the famine expenditure occurring in the year by about £116,000. Upon the whole, it seems probable that the whole net cost of the Famine will be about nine-and-three-quarters millions sterling, viz. :—

	£
In the Bombay Presidency	1,300,000
In the Madras Presidency	8,450,000

14. In the Financial Statement for 1877-78 made by the Hon'ble Sir John Strachey on the 15th March 1877 it was shown as the result of a careful examination of the actual Accounts of the Revenues and Expenditure of the Empire during the preceding seven years that, excluding the cost of famine relief, the Government had just managed to pay its way. Before the commencement of the great famine from which the country has lately been suffering, and the effects of which have even now not entirely passed away, the finances of India might be considered to be in a condition of equilibrium. But for one reason the financial position would have been satisfactory. The ordinary public expenditure, with the exception of that incurred in England for the Army, not only showed no tendency to increase, but, excluding famine relief, it was less in 1875-76 by more than £1,000,000 than it had been seven years before. Excluding Loss by Exchange, an element altogether beyond our control, the net expenditure during the same period had decreased by £2,254,000. It was shown also that the net revenue of the Empire had increased in seven years by more than £2,000,000, or at the average rate of nearly £300,000 a year. Thus, but for one cause, we might have hoped that no addition to the burdens of the country would be necessary, and that the normal growth of the revenues would have enabled the Government to go on gradually carrying out those measures of fiscal and administrative reform which it felt to be essential to the prosperity and progress of the Empire. The cause which rendered nugatory all such anticipations and beliefs was the recognition of the fact that the obligations entailed on the Government by the periodical and inevitable recurrence of famine must be provided for among the ordinary charges of the State.

15. When it was thus admitted that famines must be looked on not as abnormal or exceptional calamities, but as certain from time to time to recur, it became obvious that sound financial policy obliged the Government to reject altogether the expedient of trusting to borrowing to meet the charges which they entailed, and that it was essential to make such an improvement in the financial position of the Government as would enable it to meet these charges from its ordinary revenue. This could only be done satisfactorily by securing in years of prosperity a substantial surplus of revenue over expenditure by means of which the Government could meet the charges thrown upon it in years of famine.

16. It was not possible to estimate with any confidence the amount of financial relief which was necessary before the Government could undertake these new burdens, but for reasons which were explained by the Hon'ble Sir John Strachey in his speech in the Legislative Council on the 27th December 1877, the Government decided that the yearly average cost of famines, in loss of revenue and actual expenditure, could not safely be estimated at less than £1,500,000.

17. It was necessary therefore (on account of famine alone) to improve the financial position by that amount. Besides this it was necessary to provide a margin on the annual estimates of at least £500,000, to meet those contingencies which cannot be foreseen but to which we must always be liable, and to assist the Government in providing the means of proceeding steadily with the administrative and fiscal improvements which from time to time become necessary.

Thus, the conclusion was arrived at, that when the late famine commenced, or we may say at the beginning of the current year 1877-78, the revenues were deficient to the amount of about £2,000,000 a year.

18. In considering how these additional resources could be supplied, the Government of India anxiously directed its attention in the first instance to the possibility of reducing expenditure. In regard to the civil expenditure, although there are still some branches of the Administration for which the charges ought undoubtedly to be diminished, the Government was satisfied that no very great reduction could be hoped for. In the seven years to which reference has been made the net civil expenditure was reduced by £1,500,000 a year. This fact justifies the Government of India in declaring that the administration of the finances has been conducted with care and economy in the past, and entitles it to claim confidence when it asserts its resolution to exercise similar care and economy in the future.

19. No reduction could be looked for in the charges for Productive Public Works, for, although the receipts from the Railways and Irrigation Works have rapidly increased and the financial results that have been obtained from these great undertakings are as a whole satisfactory and encouraging, the Government hopes to push on these useful works even more vigorously in the future than it has done in the past. Thus only can it discharge the responsibility which it has accepted, of sparing no efforts which it is possible to make for the purpose of protecting the country against the consequences of drought and famine. Past experience has proved that even from a merely financial point of view it is wise strenuously to persevere in this policy. The burden on the revenues on account of these great works goes on steadily diminishing. During the last twenty-five years more than £130,000,000 has been spent in India, either directly by the Government, or through the Guaranteed Companies, on Railways and Works of Irrigation. In 1876-77 the total net charge for interest on this account was about £1,000,000, or about sixteen shillings per cent. on the capital outlay, an insignificant price to pay for works of such incalculable usefulness. In 1877-78, under circumstances no doubt exceptional, this charge has virtually disappeared. That the policy which the Government has been pursuing in regard to the construction of productive works may, if it be wisely applied, be followed without financial risk, is further illustrated by the fact that the total charge for interest on debt of all sorts and Guaranteed Railway Capital, is in the present year less than the charge in 1870-71 by about £2,000,000.

20. Up to the year 1875-76, the efforts of the Government to reduce the Military charges had been as successful as those made to reduce the charges for the Civil Services. The net cost of the army in 1875-76 was less by £1,000,000 than it had been seven years before. Unfortunately its cost during the last two years was again increased by upwards of £1,000,000, chiefly on account of increase to the Home charges. It is satisfactory that the Estimates for the coming year 1878-79 show a reduction under this head of more than £600,000 compared with the Regular Estimate of the present year. The Government of India has been in communication with Her Majesty's Secretary of State on this important subject, and trusts that some arrangement may be found practicable which shall prevent further demands on account of the Home military charges, over which this Government has no power of control, being thrown on the Revenues of India.

21. The measures taken during the past year for increasing the powers and responsibilities of the Local Governments, the nature of which was described in the Financial Statement for 1877-78, will, it is believed, when they are complete, improve the financial position of the Government of India by an annual sum of nearly £400,000. No part of this improvement is due to fresh taxation. It is the result of the administrative changes and improvements to which the policy of decentralization has led. The original measures taken in 1870 by the Government of Lord Mayo had previously led to a saving of £330,000, and this policy, which has given increased efficiency to almost every branch of the Administration, has thus added to the Imperial Revenues a sum of about £700,000 a year, without the imposition of any fresh burdens on the people. These measures of decentralization have now been more or less completely carried out in Bengal, in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, in the Punjab, the Central Provinces, and in Bombay, and in all cases with the complete approval of the Local Governments. The only great province in regard to which no satisfactory arrangement has hitherto been found practicable is Madras.

22. After taking credit for the gain of £400,000 just referred to, there remained to be provided a sum of £1,100,000 to complete the amount of £1,500,000 declared necessary to enable the Revenues to meet the estimated charges on account of famine. It appeared to the Government that this sum could only be provided by fresh taxation.

23. It is not necessary to repeat here the reasons which led the Government of India to the conclusion that the new taxes necessary for providing an insurance against famine should fall partly on the trading and partly on the agricultural classes. Nor is it necessary to describe again in detail the measures of taxation which have recently been passed into law. It is sufficient to refer to those measures in general terms.

24. The new taxation imposed on the trading classes has taken the form of a License Tax on trades and dealings. The Acts passed for the various provinces differ in some of their details, but in all matters of importance they are similar. In those which apply to the provinces of Northern India, the maximum fee chargeable in any case is Rs. 500. The minimum fee is Re. 1. The tax will be imposed on no person whose net earnings are less than Rs. 100 a year, and no person will be called on to pay an amount exceeding 2 per cent. on his annual income. In Bombay the maximum fee has been fixed at Rs. 200. The License Tax will be levied throughout India. It is estimated to yield to the Imperial Government about £700,000 after meeting charges of collection, and allowing a margin to Local Governments.

25. The tax on the agricultural classes has been imposed in the provinces of Northern India and Bengal alone. It has taken in each province the form of an addition to the existing Local Rates on land. It is expected to yield about £500,000 a year.

26. Similar additional rates have not been imposed in Madras or Bombay. In order to carry out the long-declared policy of the Government in regard to the equalisation of the salt duties throughout India, an increase to the Salt Tax in those presidencies became unavoidable. Although, before any thought of imposing new taxation on account of famine had arisen, this increase had been virtually decided upon, and had therefore no connection with the new measures of famine taxation, the Government of India did not think that it would be right to impose additional direct taxation on the agricultural classes in Madras and Bombay at the same time that it was increasing the salt duties. No fresh taxation has therefore been imposed in those presidencies on the land.

27. The total amount which the new taxes on the trading and agricultural classes will yield is thus estimated at £1,200,000. The full amount, however, will not be collected in the coming year, because it will not be right to levy the additional rates on land in the North-Western Provinces, until the country has recovered from the serious loss which it suffered in the almost total failure of the last summer crops.

28. The proceeds of these taxes, together with the sum of £400,000 which will be gained by the extension of Provincial responsibility, make up a little more than the £1,500,000 which is annually required for the insurance of the country against famine. The manner in which the Government proposes actually to apply this sum was fully explained by the Hon'ble Sir John Strachey in his speech in the Legislative Council on the 9th February 1878.

This explanation will be found in an Appendix* to this Resolution. By following the course which is proposed, the Government of India will virtually reduce the Public Debt by £1,500,000 a year; and resources will be stored up in years of prosperity, by means of which, when famine actually occurs, it will be possible to discharge the heavy obligations which then fall upon the State. By investing in Productive Public Works from the resources thus specially created a sum of 1½ millions yearly, instead of from borrowed money, the charge for interest which would otherwise arise will be saved, while an additional income will be created from the works, which will supply in the future a source from which to meet without increased strain on the finances a corresponding interest payment on any debt which may then be incurred to meet famine charges.

29. When introducing the new measures of taxation, it was explained by Sir John Strachey that, in the opinion of the Government of India, it was necessary that a surplus should be shown on the Accounts of each year amounting at least to £2,000,000. Of this, £1,500,000 was for insurance against famine; the remaining £500,000 was said to be required as the smallest sum which would enable the Government to meet contingencies, and to furnish, in combination with the natural growth of the Revenues, the means of carrying out necessary administrative and fiscal reforms.

30. To provide a portion of this surplus, new taxation was necessary. The new taxes were expected to improve the Imperial Revenues by £1,100,000 a year. The steps taken towards the equalisation of the Salt duties, to be further referred to hereafter, gave temporary relief to the extent of £300,000. The £600,000 required to make up the full amount of £2,000,000 would, it was expected, be provided partly by the new measures of decentralisation, which involved no fresh taxation, and partly by the normal increase of the General Revenues.

31. It is important to ascertain how far the estimates for the coming year, which are now published, support the anticipations made by the Government a few months ago.

32. To obtain a true conception of the present financial position, it is, first, necessary to eliminate certain disturbing causes. In this view, it must be remembered that a sum of £281,000 is shown among the receipts on account of the extinct Military Funds. This is a merely nominal credit, and it must be deducted in estimating the real amount of our Revenues. It must further be remembered that the Accounts of the past, of the present, and of the coming year are all much disturbed by the effects of the Famine. It is from this cause that in the coming year 1878-79, £671,000 is expected to be received on account of the arrears of the land-revenue of past years. Hence, if we look only to the normal facts of the Revenue, allowance must be made for these disturbing causes, and the estimated receipts for 1878-79 must be reduced by the aggregate of these two amounts, namely, £952,000.

33. If after making these allowances, no fiscal changes were now made; if all existing taxes were to remain unaltered; and no provision had to be made for the relief of famine for which £555,000 has actually been granted, the surplus of £2,156,000 as shown in the Estimates of the ensuing year would be reduced to £1,991,000. Hence after providing for the estimated Famine Expenditure of £555,000, and allowing £945,000 as expenditure for Famine Insurance, making together the $1\frac{1}{2}$ millions required, there would still be left a margin of £491,000. Thus there appears to be a deficiency of only £9,000 to be provided, if the ultimate surplus of £500,000 is to be made good from the normal revenues of the year. As regards the Ways and Means of the coming year, the additional exceptional receipts of arrears of Land Revenue, amounting to £671,000, will far more than make good this small deficiency.

34. Thus the Government trusts that it will be able in the ensuing year to fulfil satisfactorily the engagements which it has undertaken and the pledges which it has given. It will be able to provide from its ordinary revenues a sum of £555,000 for the relief of famine, and to devote at least £1,000,000 towards Famine Insurance, thus the pledge that £1,500,000 shall be set aside from the ordinary Revenues for the relief and prevention of famine, will be fulfilled. It will indeed be more than fulfilled, for the actual pledge given was not that this amount should always be provided in the Estimates of the year, but that it should always be shown to have been applied when the actual accounts of the year were closed.

35. After thus assigning from the Revenues of the coming year £1,500,000 on account of famine, there will still be at the disposal of the Government an available surplus of £656,000 for meeting those contingencies, and carrying out those fiscal and other reforms to which reference has been made.

36. Although it is thus confidently expected that the new taxation will enable the Government to fulfil, in the coming year, its pledge to devote £1,500,000 to the relief and prevention of Famine, it is clear that the financial position is not such as to justify at the present time new measures which would involve considerable reductions in any great branch of the existing revenue. It is true that all those branches of revenues are prosperous, but there are several causes which render caution obligatory on the part of the Government.

37. The extreme pressure of the famine has passed away, but relief operations still continue in a large tract of Southern India, and much suffering still exists among the poorer classes in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh. Thus the prospects of the future are not free from anxiety. The state of political affairs in Europe cannot wisely be ignored. Further, although the position of the silver market seems far more hopeful than it was, it is impossible to contemplate without some anxiety an operation of such unexampled magnitude as the remittance from India to England in the ensuing year of £17,000,000.

38. With every desire to press on the accomplishment of the fiscal reforms which it has bound itself to undertake, or which have been prescribed for its adoption by Parliament and the Secretary of State, the Government of India feels that it cannot, with due regard to the condition of the finances, do very much at the present time. It would be in opposition to the pledges given by the Government, and to the instructions of the Secretary of State, to undertake any such measures of reform if they would involve fresh taxation, and this prohibition must be applied to the future as well as to the present. No risk therefore must now be incurred of doing that which might render it necessary hereafter to impose fresh burdens.

39. There are two great measures to which the Government is pledged: the first is the equalization of the salt duties, the abolition of the Inland Customs line, and, with it, of the inland duties on sugar; the second is the improvement of the Customs tariff and the removal of the import duties on cotton manufactures.

40. Towards the accomplishment of the first of these measures great steps have been taken during the present year. Throughout the Presidencies of Madras and Bombay, including Sindh, the duty on salt, whether foreign salt imported by sea or home manufactured salt, has been raised to Rs. 2-8 per maund. At the same time the milcage duty which was levied on salt brought by Railway from Bombay into the Central Provinces, has been abolished, so that the duty of Rs. 2-8 per maund is the rate for those Provinces also, since they derive their supply of salt from Bombay and Madras. The duties in Lower Bengal, both import and excise, have been reduced to Rs. 3-2 per maund, and the duty on salt imported across the Inland Customs Line for consumption in the Upper Provinces, as well as the excise duty on salt manufactured in those Provinces, has been reduced to Rs. 2-12 per maund. At the same time the price of Punjab mines salt, the property of Government, has been diminished by 4 annas per maund. More recently, that is on the 1st of this month, the price of Sambhar salt, purchased for importation into British Territory, has been reduced by 2 annas a maund, but a great part of this reduction has been counteracted by the simultaneous raising of the Railway freight on this salt, when brought to Agra, by $1\frac{1}{2}$ anna per maund. The freight had been kept abnormally low under an arrangement by which the Inland Customs Department made up to the Railway any deficiency from a fixed standard of profit. This arrangement, which was inconvenient and anomalous, has now ceased.

41. The object of these measures has been recently fully explained. That object is not to increase the burden of the salt taxes on the people of India or to derive therefrom a larger revenue, but to make as large a step as the finances will permit toward the equalisation of those duties, a condition of taxation desirable in itself and an essential preliminary to the abolition of that great opprobrium to British administration, the Inland Customs Line. The Government of India regrets, that on a general review of its position no further steps in this direction can at the present moment be taken, but it confidently hopes that the time is not distant when this great reform, the object of which is to give the people of India "the means of obtaining, with the least possible inconvenience, and at the cheapest rate consistent with financial necessities, a supply of salt only limited by the people's capacity for consumption, will be completely carried out."

42. After making due allowance for these changes and for the normal development of the salt revenue, as well as other circumstances affecting it, the Budget Estimate of 1878-79 shows a net increase of £247,000 over the Regular Estimate of 1877-78.

43. In Sir John Strachey's Financial Statement made a year ago, he referred to the duties levied on sugar exported across the Inland Customs Line in the following terms:—

"These are one rupee per maund on refined sugar, and six annas per maund on unrefined sugar, or saccharine produce. Except where the line runs along the left bank of the Indus, exports across it are taken to Native States; but, when it passes the Indus, the sugar is nearly taken from one part of British territory to another. This sugar is all the produce of our own people in the North-Western Provinces, Oudh, and the Punjab: it is one of the most important agricultural staples of those provinces; and it is important not only to the agriculturists and manufacturers and consumers, but directly to the Government, which looks greatly to sugar cultivation for its irrigation revenue.

"While we are taxing heavily our own sugar grown on the east of the Customs Line, for the supply of the country beyond it, we admit into the same country the Mauritius sugar, which is imported largely to Bombay, taxed at a much lower rate. It is calculated that the Inland Customs duty is equivalent to 10 per cent. on the value; but the incidence of the duty varies considerably, particularly on refined sugar: on the cheaper kinds the duty is equivalent to more than 20 per cent. on its value: the sea import duty on Mauritius sugar is 5 per cent. ad valorem. I do not assert that there is, at present, any great competition between the sugar of the Upper Provinces of this Presidency and foreign sugar; but, so far as competition exists, the Inland Customs duty acts as a protective duty in favor of foreign and against our own sugar: to this extent, the duty must fall on the producer within the Customs Line. The competition will be more apparent and severe when the connection of the Rajputana State Railway with the Bombay and Baroda Line is completed.

"Little or no sugar is grown in Rajputana or Central India; and the increase of price caused by the Inland Customs Line must tend to diminish consumption, and so, still further, to injure the producer. It is impossible to estimate the injury to the people and the Government caused by placing artificial obstructions on the export of one of the great agricultural staples of the country. Such obstructions obviously affect not only the export but the import trade as well. The Government of India has repeatedly urged upon Native States the policy of abolishing their transit duties, but it is difficult to see with what consistency we can do this, so long as we retain our sugar duties. They yield about £165,000 a year: this is my only excuse for not proposing their instant abolition: they will, at any rate, disappear with the abolition of the Inland Customs Line."

44. The negotiations relating to salt, with the Native States of Rajputana and Central India, which have for their object the abolition of the Customs Line, are rapidly approaching successful completion. The maintenance of the sugar duties after the arrangements connected with salt in the Native States are put into effect, will not be consistent with the engagements made with those States, and after the Customs Line, along which they are levied, has been removed their retention will be impossible. The Government of India will therefore be compelled under any circumstances to relinquish these duties very shortly, and as no practical financial advantage would be obtained by postponing the measure for a few months, it has been decided that the duties shall be at once abolished. The country will thus be relieved of these sugar duties, which have been more than once characterized as "the most discreditable relic of the dark ages of taxation that exists in India."

45. It is estimated that these Inland sugar duties would have produced in the coming year £155,000. They appear under the head of "Customs" and their abolition has led to a corresponding reduction.

46. The second of the measures of fiscal reform before mentioned, the improvement of the Customs Tariff, next calls for notice.

47. Her Majesty's Secretary of State has called the attention of the Government of India to the Customs Tariff generally, and to the duties levied on cotton goods in particular, in several despatches received during the past year.

First, in a despatch, No. 81, dated the 7th June 1877,* His Lordship pointed out that there were numerous articles in the Tariff on which the duty levied was quite insignificant, and he requested that at a convenient time the propriety of excluding from the Tariff items that will not be productive of revenue might be considered.

Next, a despatch, No. 124, dated the 23rd August 1877,† forwarded a copy of a memorial from the Council of the East India Association, and a reply thereto by Mr. Raynsford Jackson on behalf of the Associated Committees of Employers and Workmen in the cotton manufacturing districts, respecting the abolition of the duties on the importation of cotton goods and yarns into India. Lord Salisbury observed with reference to these papers:—

"Your Excellency is well aware of the great importance attached by Her Majesty's Government to the gradual reduction of these duties at the earliest period that is not inconsistent with the financial requirements of your administration."

Finally, the Secretary of State transmitted with his despatch No. 136, dated the 30th August 1877,‡ a Resolution which was adopted by the House of Commons on the 11th July 1877 without a division in the following terms:—

"That, in the opinion of this House, the duties now levied upon cotton manufactures imported into India, being protective in their nature, are contrary to sound commercial policy, and ought to be repealed without delay so soon as the financial condition of India will permit."

His Lordship expressed his concurrence with the views of this Government, as reported in the speeches of His Excellency the Viceroy and of Sir John Strachey in the Proceedings of the Legislative Council on the occasion of the Budget Statement in March last.

The despatch concluded in the following words:—

"I can only, in conclusion, express my hope that the financial prospects of your Government in the approaching year may not preclude the possibility of commencing the reform of this branch of the Indian Tariff, but if, as now seems too probable, it shall unfortunately be such as to render you unable to incur the risk of any material loss of revenue from remission of duties, there are still two measures in connexion with this reform which should not, in my opinion, be delayed beyond the present year. I mean the repeal of the duty of 5 per cent. on foreign raw cotton imported into India, and the exemption from import duty of the lower qualities of cotton manufactures, upon which the present tax is incontestably protective, not only in principle but in fact, and the value of which for revenue purposes is wholly insignificant."

48. The questions thus brought before the Government of India by Her Majesty's Secretary of State have received careful consideration. It is evident that, in the present state of the finances of India, any large measure of reduction of the Customs duties would be not only impossible, but would not be in accordance with the views of the House of Commons or of Her Majesty's Secretary of State. The Government of India is, however, of opinion that there is no reason for delaying compliance with the instructions of the Secretary of State, that something should be done towards removing from the Tariff the coarser qualities of cotton goods which are subject to competition from the Indian mills and looms and some other articles which are productive of but a small amount of revenue.

49. Although as just stated it is not at present possible to sacrifice any important part of our existing revenue, for the purposes of reforming the commercial taxation of India, the Government deems it right to place on record the principles on which its action is at the present time guided, and by which it desires to be guided in the future.

50. It is not necessary now to discuss the advantages to a country of free trade and the disadvantages of protective duties. It is sufficient to say that these have been admitted for many years by the Statesmen who, of whatever party, have guided the policy of the United Kingdom. In pursuance of the principles thus accepted, the Tariff of the United Kingdom, which, less than thirty years ago, subjected to duty more than one thousand different articles, has been brought down by various stages to some half dozen, of which the only important ones are wine and spirits, tea and tobacco. At the same time all export duties have been abolished.

51. The principles on which the Customs legislation of the United Kingdom has been based are now admitted axioms by all who recognise the theoretic advantages of free trade. They must be regarded as a part of the national policy which Great Britain has finally adopted, and which the Secretary of State for India, with the deliberate approval of the House of Commons, has required the Government of India in this country to carry out.

These principles are, as regards imports;—

(1) that no duty should exist which affords protection to native industry, and, as a corollary, that no duty should be applied to any article which can be produced at home, without an equivalent duty of excise on the home production, also, that no duty should be levied except for purely fiscal purposes;

(2) that, as far as possible, the raw materials of industry and articles contributing to production should be exempt from customs taxation;

(3) that duties should be applied only to articles which yield a revenue of sufficient importance to justify the interference with trade involved by the machinery of collection.

As regards exports;—that duties should be levied on those commodities only in which the exporting country has practically a monopoly of production.

52. These principles are of general application, but in the case of India, they possess a peculiar significance. India is a country of unbounded material resources, but her people are a poor people. Its characteristics are great power of production, but almost total absence of accumulated capital. On this account alone the prosperity of the country essentially depends on its being able to secure a large and favourable outlet for its surplus produce. But there is a special feature in the economic conditions of India which renders this a matter of yet more pressing, and even of vital importance,—this is the fact that her connection with England and the financial results of that connection, compel her to send to Europe every year about 20 millions sterling worth of her products without receiving in return any direct commercial equivalent. It is this excess of exports over imports which, in the language of the economists, is described as tribute. It is, really, the return for the foreign capital, in its broadest sense, which is invested in India, including under capital not only money, but all advantages which have to be paid for, such as the intelligence, strength, and energy, on which good administration and commercial prosperity depend. From these causes the trade of India is in an abnormal position, preventing her receiving, in the shape of imported merchandise and treasure, the full commercial benefit which otherwise would spring from her vast material resources.

53. The comparatively undeveloped condition of the trade of India may be illustrated by the following figures. The value of the imports and exports taken together per head of the population is in the United Kingdom about £20. In British India it is about 10 shillings. The Custom revenue on the few articles now retained in the Import Tariff of the United Kingdom is about 12 shillings per head, while that of India, on all the articles of its lengthy Tariff, is about 3 pence, showing that small as is the proportion of the foreign trade of India to that of England, the proportion of customs revenue derived from it is smaller still.

54. Here then is a country which, both from its poverty, the primitive and monotonous condition of its industrial life, and the peculiar character of its political condition, seems to require from its Government, before all things, the most economical treatment of its resources, and, therefore, the greatest possible freedom in its foreign exchanges.

Under these circumstances, what are the conditions of production and consumption in India? How far is it possible to construct a Tariff of import and export duties, which will comply with the accepted canons of taxation? And how far does the existing Tariff conform to those canons?

55. In answering these questions, it will be found that India, by the extent and favourable conditions of its territory, is capable of producing almost every article required for the use of man. If, therefore, the Import Customs Tariff be maintained, it will involve the evils of protection, unless an excise duty to counter-vail the customs duty be imposed upon almost every item which the tariff now includes. Now, as excise duties are generally costly, vexatious, and inconvenient forms of taxation, and would be in most cases impracticable in India, this of itself is a reason against the permanent retention of the existing Customs Tariff, and one which interposes a very serious difficulty in the way of constructing one that shall be free from objection. Since almost every article that is now on the Tariff, or that could be named, is either produced or is capable of being produced in India, it follows that import duties must in every case be actually or potentially protective, while, with the exception of liquors and salt, none of them are subject to an excise.

Again, the people of India are too poor to consume many luxuries. The import trade merely consists of what may be considered either the materials of industry or the necessaries of life. It will accordingly be found that nearly all the heads of customs revenue which are of any importance are derived from one or other of these descriptions of commodities, and that the revenue derived from other articles is so insignificant as neither to justify the machinery of collection nor the interference with the trade.

56. The total amount of import duties was, in 1870-77, £4,170,947, or, deducting erroneous collections, refunds, and drawbacks on re-exportation, £4,098,296; of this latter sum there was realised—

From Salt	2,491,010
From Liquors	331,761
Total	2,822,771

On these articles there is an internal excise duty countervailing the customs duty.

Deducting the duty on these two articles, there remains £1,275,525. Deducting again from this the revenue realised from cotton goods, or £811,340, there remains £464,185, which is thus distributed:—

Copper	...	65,624	} 112,740
Iron	...	17,086
Other metals	...	30,020
Silk, raw and manufactured	43,727
Woollen manufactures	38,008
Provisions	32,901
Apparel	26,658
Hardware and cutlery	21,049
Spices	18,724
Sugar	13,886
Glass	13,244
Railway materials	11,835
Articles, each group of which gave less than £10,000	132,853
Total	464,185

Many of the numerous articles in the last class yield each an insignificant revenue, and nearly the whole are, or can be, produced in India. The duties on them are thus indefensible in principle, and cannot consistently be maintained longer than financial exigencies require their retention.

57. To revert to the cotton duties, regarding which the Resolution of the House of Commons has declared that, being contrary to sound commercial principles, they ought to be abolished, the Government of India has been at some pains to ascertain how such of them as are now actually protective can be defined. The real test is the quality or fineness of the yarn of which the goods consist. At present the Indian manufacture is confined to the coarser yarns and goods made of such yarns, and it is evident that the 5 per cent. import duty does protect such yarns and goods against competition from without. It is difficult to determine exactly how far it is effective. The coarser Indian yarns and piece-goods may, by their comparative cheapness, displace, as indeed it is asserted that they have displaced, finer imported goods in the Indian market. So far as this happens, the duties are destructive of the Customs revenue. However this may be, it is generally admitted, and the Customs returns, so far as they supply information, show, that there are certain descriptions of goods, regarding which it can safely be asserted that they are of the kinds with which the Indian manufactures can compete successfully. These are unbleached T cloths under 18 reed, jeans, domestics, sheetings, and drills. The duty paid by these descriptions of piece-goods in 1876-77 was only £22,227, of which probably some portion was given back in the shape of drawbacks and refunds, as there is a considerable re-export of grey piece-goods from India. The total value of such goods re-exported in 1876-77 was £302,234. They are taken chiefly to Persia, Arabia, and the east coast of Africa. The total refunds and drawbacks in 1867-68 amounted to £12,563. It is not known how much of this was on account of the coarser goods specified above.

58. The Government of India has determined to commence by exempting these descriptions with the further condition that the goods so exempted shall not contain finer yarn than what is known as 30s, that is, yarn of which 30 hanks of 840 yards each weigh one pound. The loss of duty, calculated on the figures of 1876-77, cannot exceed £22,227, and, for the reasons above stated, will probably be less. For yarns themselves, the limit selected for exemption is for mule twist 32s and for water twist 20s. The former yielded in 1876-77 £3,400, and the latter £39, minus any refunds and drawbacks that may have been granted. The duty on long-stapled raw cotton yielded £15, and it is quite unnecessary to maintain this duty. The maximum remission of duty proposed under these heads, calculated on the figures of 1876-77, amounts to £25,681.

59. It has been urged in some quarters that instead of taking the duties off imported cotton goods or so long as they are retained, it would be right to excise the Indian manufactures. Regarding this proposal, it may be said, first, that it would be impossible to excise the product of all the hand-looms and spinning apparatus in India, and that to confine the excise duty to the large mills and looms worked by European machinery would be not only an unjust and incomplete measure, but would place an obstruction on a most legitimate and desirable development of the industry of India; secondly, that it would be impossible to tax the manufactures produced in India in Native States outside of British territory without maintaining the present Inland Customs lines, which the Government of India are strenuously endeavouring to abolish, and without establishing many more similar lines; and thirdly, that the imposition of an excise duty is inconsistent with the declared future policy of the Government of India, and of Her Majesty's Government, namely, eventually to abolish all import duties on cotton manufactures. The Government of India has, therefore, no hesitation in rejecting the proposal in question. Orders giving effect to the decisions will be found in the Notification issued with this Resolution.

60. Another class of articles is also clearly marked out for exemption. These are materials for railways. Under any circumstances, it must be a short-sighted fiscal policy to add artificially to the cost of railways, on which the development of the wealth of India is so greatly dependent; but when it is considered that, under the guarantee system, the Government of India has to pay five per cent. on the customs duties which it imposes on railway plant not imported by itself, the inexpediency and inconsistency of retaining these duties is beyond question. Locomotives and other machinery for railways, as well as wooden sleepers, have already been freed from duty. On the rest £11,335 net duty was realised in 1876-77, and the Government of India has determined to free this head of the Tariff from duty.

61. It has also decided to relieve the Tariff of 26 other major heads, comprising a larger number of sub-heads and innumerable articles, the details of which will be found in the Notification published with this Resolution. The whole of these Tariff heads produced in 1876-77 £39,610. The most important is the head "Fruits and Vegetables," being chiefly cocoanuts, dates, and the like—articles of food of the poorer classes. These yielded a revenue of £6,126.

62. With respect to the Export Tariff, the only duties now remaining are those on rice, indigo, and shell and button lac. Although India cannot be said to possess a complete monopoly of these articles, still this condition is nearly enough complied with to justify their present retention on the Tariff. As soon as the finances will permit of it, the question of the retention of these duties may be reconsidered. They yielded in 1876-77 the following amounts:—

Rice	529,730
Indigo	41,132
Lac of all sorts	33,952

63. There will now remain out of the 62 tariff numbers of Schedule A of the Indian Tariff Act, 1875, only 35 numbers, and this important reduction including the remissions of duties on the cotton goods and minor articles is effected with a loss of about £77,000.

64. Thus, these measures, designed to be the first steps towards giving effect to the policy that has been enjoined on the Government of India by Parliament and the Secretary of State, strictly comply with the conditions under which that policy was to be carried out. The estimate of the Customs revenue of 1878-79 is, after allowing for all the proposed remissions, taken at £2,480,000 or £150,000 less than the regular estimate of 1877-78. This decrease is less than what will be given up by the relief of sugar from Inland Customs duty, so that the sea customs duty remitted has no part in this decrease. The amount of sea customs duties in the coming year is smaller than in the earlier years of the series given below, by reason of the reductions made in the tariff in the year 1875 by the Government of Lord Northbrook:—

1872-73, Actuals	2,654,000
1873-74 „	2,628,000
1874-75 „	2,678,000
1875-76 „	2,721,000
1876-77 „	2,483,000
1877-78, Regular Estimate	2,630,000
1878-79, Budget „	2,480,000

The Government of India, in pursuing for the future the policy that has guided it in making these remissions, will always give full consideration to the general financial position of the country and will recognise the obligation laid upon it not to attempt to hasten this important fiscal reform by additional taxation. It confidently expects that the normal growth of the revenues will place at its disposal the necessary means.

65. After the explanation that has now been given of the actual financial measures taken by the Government in the past year, and those now to be adopted, it is further necessary to refer to the plans by which the Governor General in Council hopes to give effect to the policy of enlarging the responsibilities of the Local Governments, and through them to accomplish the task that devolves upon it, of providing as far as practicable for the protection of the country from the effects of Famine.

66. The keystone of the whole financial policy of the present Government is the enforcement to the utmost of the responsibility of every great Province of the Empire for meeting its own local wants. It has given to the Local Governments largely increased powers; it declares that they, alone, are competent to deal wisely with the details of administration; that they have advantages which the Government of India cannot possess, of seeing what their own provinces require; and that it is only by acting on these principles that the Supreme Government can obtain either good Provincial administration, or exercise that intelligent power of control which is essential to the prosperity of the Empire. A sound financial system and financial safety can only be secured by efficient administration in every great department of the State. It is by the application of these principles that the Government of India hopes to discharge the greatest of the responsibilities which now rests upon it—that of protecting the people against the terrible calamity of periodical famines.

67. During the year 1877-78 the scheme of making Provincial Governments responsible for provincial finances has been much developed, and the Government of India has received interesting reports upon the working of the scheme. Every Local Government that has expressed any opinion has reported favourably upon the result of the provincialization arrangements begun by the late Lord Mayo in 1870. It happens that during the past year nearly all of the larger provinces, except Bengal, have been more or less afflicted by drought. The first financial effect of drought and of famine relief outlay is to reduce the provincial balances and to cause large provincial expenditure. Under the pressure of famine exigencies, therefore, the provincial finance system has been more or less strained in almost every province except Bengal. From that province most favourable accounts of the results of the system have been received. The Local Government of Bengal is now financially responsible for all civil expenditure of every kind within Bengal, except only the Opium Department operations; it has full authority over, and the benefit of, all branches of the public revenue except only land revenue, salt and opium; and it provides locally for any loss that may occur on Productive Public Works such as canals and railways. The Guaranteed Railways in Bengal earn considerably more than the full guaranteed interest. And so the Imperial Treasury is relieved from all burdens on account of future increases in the cost of the civil administration, or the material improvement of Bengal, while it reserves to itself the right to a share in future increments of the provincial revenues entrusted to the Local Government. From the imperial point of view the scheme of financial provincialization is thus eminently advantageous.

68. The Hon'ble the Lieutenant-Governor's report of December last shows that from the Local Government's point of view also the scheme is not less beneficial. That report, of which a copy will be found in Appendix E to this Statement, shows that the revenues made over to Bengal increased 17 per cent. during the first half of the year 1877-78, and that, to use the Lieutenant-Governor's words, "in the majority of headings the expenditure, so far from showing any tendency to grow, is actually somewhat less than during the corresponding period of last year." Some of the increases of revenue are abnormal, and may not recur. But the general result appears to be fairly summed up in the concluding paragraph of the Lieutenant-Governor's report, which runs as follows:—

"The Lieutenant-Governor has found that the general effect of the extension of the decentralization system in respect to the facilities which it has given to provincial administration has been even more satisfactory than he anticipated. In making the Local Government responsible for expenditure, and giving them a direct interest in the development of various branches of the revenue, it has secured a careful scrutiny over the expenditure of all departments, and a deep interest in all improveable heads of revenue, which has extended to all grades of the services. District officers understand that the Provincial Government can sanction no new schemes and few new works unless it has a constantly improving revenue, and they have shewn an earnest desire to assist the Government by the adoption of every measure which their local experience suggests as likely to have a beneficial effect upon the revenues. At the same time the Local Government has, since the inauguration of the system of provincial finance in 1870-71, been in a position to carry out many works and many measures of improvement on its own responsibility, which would, under the old system, have possibly been delayed for an indefinite period. All friction with the Imperial Government has been obviated, and much useless and unsatisfactory correspondence avoided."

69. Though the failure of the autumn crop has caused a severe strain on the provincial finances of the North-Western Provinces, where the localization of the financial responsibility has been introduced as completely as in Bengal, still it is worthy of note that, even in a year of drought and partial famine, the Imperial Treasury has in those provinces benefitted greatly from the provincialization system. The Local Government has already spent nine lakhs of rupees on relief works and in charitable relief, and it expects to spend five lakhs more before the rainy season begins. Under the old system this money would have come out of the Imperial Treasury, but the whole sum has this year been found by the Provincial Government; it has come from the provincial balances and from savings made in previous years. Not only has the Imperial Treasury been benefitted, but the Local Government and its officers have had the strongest possible interest in spending their money with careful economy and on permanently useful works; and it is certain that the North-Western Provinces' relief expenditure of 1877-78 will bequeath to the country a considerable legacy of useful canals, railway works and roads.

70. Although there is hardly any branch of the public administration, improvement in which will not help the Government to fulfil the great task which it has undertaken, it is obvious that the principal means by which the end in view will be attained is the construction of works for increasing the productiveness of the country, and improving its communications. Of all things, therefore, the most essential at the present time is this, that the best and most economical arrangements possible should be made with the least practicable delay, yet with no unwise precipitance, in covering the country with that net-work of railways, and with those works of irrigation, which the country requires.

71. The development that has been recently given to the financial responsibilities of the Local Governments, and the transfer to some of them of the entire charge arising from the larger reproductive public works constructed within their territories, having been approved by Her Majesty's Government, and otherwise being found by experience to be conducive to improved administration and public economy, the Government of India has adopted the conclusion that it should be made generally applicable as soon as circumstances permit, and the needful preliminary arrangements have been completed with the several Local Governments and Administrations.

72. This resolution renders it necessary to review the rules under which funds are supplied for the prosecution of such works, the sanction of expenditure takes place, and the general system of management, financial and administrative, is conducted; and the urgency for this is the greater now that the Government of India has declared its intention of applying the funds at its disposal, for providing protection against famine, to works to be carried out through the agency of the Local Governments.

73. Her Majesty's Government have also recently directed that certain modifications should be made in the method of recording the financial results of all such works, with a view to presenting them to Parliament in a form likely to be more readily understood, and the present time may conveniently be taken for consolidating and revising the rules that have hitherto been in force in relation to this class of works.

74. The policy which has hitherto guided the Government of India in its action has been based on the assumption, which experience has shown to be a sound one, that the gradual improvement of the income derived from the larger reproductive works, including under this head the guaranteed railways, would admit of a certain yearly additional expenditure of borrowed money for extending such undertakings without bringing on the revenues any consequent larger net charge, when the increased income had been set off against the increased interest on the borrowed capital. It was on this principle that Lord Lawrence in 1869, in his minute on railway extension, advocated the gradual but systematic construction of railways, and on it the Government has since been acting with most satisfactory results. By regulating its operations within these prudent limits, the Government has been able to apply a sum of not less than 25½ millions to reproductive works during the last eight years, without thereby adding to the total charge of interest on account of the public debt, including under that name the guaranteed railway capital.

75. It is the intention of the Governor General in Council to follow the same general course in the future, subject to such modifications of detail as will be required by the somewhat changed system that will henceforth be adopted on making use of the agency of the Local Governments in carrying out the works. Heretofore the aggregate interest charge on the capital invested in the works had to be met from the general revenues, under the condition that the net burden should not exceed a certain sum which experience had shown could be borne without inconvenience; so in future, a similar liability will be held to attach to the provincial outlay of capital applied to these objects, otherwise than from the revenues of year. The provincial revenues will be made to bear the net charge for all interest on such capital, after deducting the net receipts from the works; and the net burden of interest thus thrown on the provincial resources year by year will not be allowed to exceed the sum which in each case experience shows that they can bear without inconvenience or undue interference with other administrative demands.

76. It will manifestly be a necessary condition of success in carrying out such a policy that the works undertaken shall in fact produce the growing income from which to meet the gradual increase of interest charge, and it therefore becomes essential to examine very strictly the character of all projects brought forward for execution, so that borrowed capital shall not, under any circumstances, be supplied for any work of which it cannot reasonably be anticipated that it will in a definite period of time produce a net income at least as great as the interest on the capital outlay upon it.

77. Further, the same limitation that it is thus necessary to apply to the grant of borrowed money to these works, must also be applied to the grant of all funds the expenditure of which does not appear as a direct charge against the revenues of the year, under which will be included the new resources lately specially created to provide a surplus from which to meet charges on account of the relief or prevention of famine.

78. The sum that is likely to be available for capital outlay on works of this class from the ordinary revenues would, under any circumstances, be small, and the inconvenience of distinguishing in the accounts between outlay from ordinary revenue, and that met from other sources, would be great. The justification for granting, for productive works, funds from the surplus revenues which might otherwise be applied to the extinction of debt, is, that so far as it prevents an increase of debt, it will virtually be equivalent to a corresponding discharge of debt; a condition however that cannot be fulfilled unless the works are properly remunerative. In all cases then the interest on the whole capital, from whatever sources it is obtained, must be secured generally by the provincial revenues, and specially in each case by the ascertained profitable character of the work, so far as a careful examination can serve to test it.

79. It will be seen that the general policy thus explained necessarily starts with the acceptance, for a limited period, of a dead weight of interest charge during the time when the income of the works is not fully developed. This charge may properly be met from the provincial revenues at the disposal of the Local Governments for carrying out works of internal improvement; and Her Majesty's Government has recognized the propriety of thus applying the local resources, subject to the general obligation that rests on Local Governments to see that the essential wants of the provinces under their administration are provided for in the manner that shall on the whole be most conducive to their well-being.

80. The reasons that support this view will likewise justify the Government of India in accepting, in proof of the financial sufficiency of the estimated income of any proposed work, during what may be termed the unremunerative period of its operation, a calculation which should include any well established saving of outlay that would follow upon the execution of the work.

such as the reduction of the cost of maintenance of a road which would be diminished in consequence of the opening of a line of railway.

81. So also in the case of any work undertaken avowedly with the intention of its being wholly or in part paid for by any special rate or cess imposed, outside of all general rates or taxes, on those likely to benefit by the work, the proceeds of any such special rate would be properly included with any ordinary receipts due to specific payments for the actual use of the work as income in the estimate of financial return.

82. In these cases, and possibly in others, special considerations will present themselves, on which the Government of India will have to form a judgment as they arise, but the general principles that have now been laid down will indicate the spirit in which any such proposals will hereafter be dealt with.

83. Within the limits thus marked out, the Government of India will endeavour to meet the reasonable requirements of the Local Governments for funds, in addition to those available for expenditure from the ordinary revenues, to carry out works of material improvement, especially such as will have for their more immediate effect the protection of the country against the effects of famine, whether by supplying improved means of communication, or of irrigation, or otherwise. The power of the Government of India to do this, however, will be necessarily restricted by the amount that it can spare from the surplus revenues, or raise by loan without unduly forcing the money market, or coming under inconvenient liabilities. Neither can it consistently with the instructions of Her Majesty's Government enlarge the borrowed grants beyond the sums that can be raised in India.

84. It will be the wish of the Governor General in Council to comply as far as possible with the wishes of the Local Governments in carrying out the policy thus explained, subject of course to any instructions of a general or special character that may be given by the Secretary of State, or that may be found otherwise necessary to secure financial regularity or administrative convenience.

85. Under orders of the Secretary of State, works of the class now under consideration will henceforth be designated as Productive Public Works, and the expressions Extraordinary Works and Grants will cease to be employed. The whole of the rules now in force as to the preparation of designs and estimates, and the sanction of works hitherto called Extraordinary, and as to the grants of funds to carry out such works and the manner of rendering the accounts, will however continue to be applicable to all Productive Public Works already constructed or hereafter undertaken.

86. As a rule, all Productive Works, which will for the most part consist of Works of Irrigation or Navigation and Railways (excluding however the Guaranteed Railways, which will continue to be managed as heretofore), within the territories of the several Local Governments and Administrations, will be carried out under their direct orders and financial management, subject only to a general control by the Government of India, and in the manner described in the detailed rules that will be issued hereafter. The earliest possible effect will be given to this arrangement.

87. His Excellency the Viceroy, when addressing the Legislative Council on the introduction of the new measures of taxation, thus stated the intentions of the Government in relation to the execution of Protective Public Works :—

“ For the attainment of this object, the material appliances we intend to promote, by means of additional revenue, are cheap railroads and extended irrigation works. We are conscious of the reproach we should justly incur if, after such a declaration as I have now made, the prosecution of these necessary works were commenced, suspended, or relinquished, according to the increased or relaxed pressure of annual circumstances, or the intermittent activity of spasmodic effort. We, therefore, propose to entrust, in the first instance, to the Local Governments the duty of framing a sufficient and carefully considered scheme of local railroad and irrigation works. We are prepared to provide them with the means whereby they may from year to year work systematically forwards and upwards to the completion of such a scheme. The funds locally raised for this purpose will be locally applied. But Provincial Governments will have to meet the cost of provincial famines out of provincial funds to the fullest extent those funds can bear. They will find that thriftless expenditure in one year may involve the risk of diminished allotments in subsequent years; and I cannot doubt that the unavoidable recognition of this fact will make them wisely eager to spend the requisite proportion of their annual income upon well-planned and carefully estimated railway and irrigation works which will be their best insurance against the losses of famine, and the postponement of all administrative progress which famine generally entails. It will be the special duty of the Public Works Department of this Government to keep those objects constantly in view of the Local Governments, and to assist them, no less constantly, in their endeavours to give a rational preference to really useful and remunerative works, over those more captivating, but less compensating, subjects of expenditure which, in all comparatively small communities, so powerfully appeal to provincial pride, professional proclivities, or popular pleasure."

88. In amplification of these views, His Excellency has subsequently recorded a Minute, in which are laid down the principles that will henceforth guide the Financial and Public Works Departments in dealing with projects for Public Works designed to improve the internal communications of the country or to increase the means of irrigation, by which works protection from the consequences of famine can best be secured. The Minute of His Excellency is appended to this Resolution (Appendix F).

ORDERED, that this Resolution, with the annexed Statement and Appendices A to G, be published in a Gazette of India Extraordinary, and that copy thereof be forwarded to Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India; and also for information and guidance

NOTIFICATION.

The 18th March 1878.—The following Bye-laws framed by the Municipal Commissioners of Howrah at a meeting, under section 313, of Act V (B.C.) of 1876, having been confirmed by the Lieutenant-Governor under section 314 thereof, are hereby published for general information.

Regulating the conduct of business at Meetings of the Commissioners.

1. An Ordinary General Meeting of the Commissioners shall be held on every first and third Thursday of the month.

2. All such meetings shall be convened by the Chairman or Vice-Chairman by notice to be served on each Commissioner, not later than the Monday preceding the day of the meeting.

3. In the event of the Chairman or Vice-Chairman determining to call an Extraordinary General Meeting, not less than two clear days' notice shall be given to the Commissioners of the day fixed for such Extraordinary General Meeting.

4. Every notice convening a meeting shall be accompanied by a list of the business signed by the Chairman or Vice-Chairman to be brought forward at such meeting.

5. Any Commissioner wishing to bring forward any business shall give notice of such intention in writing to the Chairman a week before the meeting, when the Chairman or Vice-Chairman shall include such business in the list of the business to be laid before such meeting.

6. No business shall be considered, or proposition received at any meeting, if it does not appear in the list of business.

7. At all Ordinary General Meetings the proceedings shall be commenced by the Secretary reading the Minutes of the last Ordinary or Extraordinary General Meeting with a view to ascertain if the resolutions passed at such meeting have been faithfully and accurately recorded in the Minutes used by the mover of such resolution, or if amendments thereto shall have been passed in the words used by the mover of such duly passed amendments.

8. In the event of any Commissioner being of opinion that any such resolution has not been accurately recorded, it shall be competent to such Commissioner to state his opinion to that effect, and thereupon the Chairman shall decide whether or no, such resolution has been accurately recorded by reference to the original draft of such resolution written and signed by the mover, and if he finds the same to be inaccurate, he shall then and there make the necessary correction in the Minute Book, and that no discussion as to the propriety or otherwise of such resolution shall be allowed.

9. The order in which the several subjects shall be discussed at a meeting shall be determined by the order in which they are mentioned in the Chairman's list.

10. When the Commissioners proceeding to the consideration of any subject, the Secretary shall place before the Commissioners the letters and papers connected with such subject, and any Commissioner may make a proposition regarding such subject, and address himself to the question being put to vote by the President, provided that such Commissioner confine his remarks to the subject under consideration.

11. Every proposition made shall be written out by the proposer, and signed by him.

12. Every proposition shall be seconded by one Commissioner who shall also sign or initial the draft proposition written by the proposer.

13. The Commissioner who first addresses the meeting shall be entitled to be heard first, and should more than one Commissioner address the meeting, the right of precedence shall be determined by the President.

14. Any Commissioner shall be at liberty to call the attention of the President to a point of order, even when a Commissioner is addressing the meeting.

15. Any Commissioner may propose an amendment to a proposition to the effect that certain words in the proposition originally made be omitted therefrom, that certain words be substituted, or that certain words be added thereto, provided that such amendment be proposed when the subject is being discussed and the original proposition is still before the meeting.

HIGH COURT NOTICES.

Circular Order issued by Authority of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal.

CIVIL.

No. 11, dated the 6th March 1878.

District Judges are reminded that any cash belonging to an intestate's estate, which may be received in Court, from whatever source derived, must be paid into the treasury at once, and that no such cash must be allowed to remain in the hands of their Nazirs.

2. On the receipt of unclaimed property of persons dying intestate, the Nazir must make the requisite entries in the register prescribed in paragraph 35 of the Account Rules, and these entries must be compared with the police chalan by the sheristadar and the accountant. If cash be part of the property, or if part of the property, being perishable, be sold before expiry of the year prescribed by law, such cash or sale proceeds must, after entry in the register referred to, be put in deposit till the time arrives for paying them over to claimants or crediting them to Government.

3. When any property in the custody of the Court is sold, the sale account must invariably be checked with the Register by the Sheristadar and the Accountant, and the Judge must from time to time test the work of his subordinates by personally examining the sale accounts in some cases taken at random.

No. 12, dated the 9th March 1878.

With reference to Section 2, Act X of 1877, which enacts that every Court of Small Causes shall, for the purposes of that Code, be deemed to be subordinate to the District Court, the Court direct that all communications, including the monthly returns, from Small Cause Courts to the High Court, be submitted in the first instance to the District Judge, to whom the Small Cause Court is subordinate.

NOTIFICATIONS.

Fort William, the 22nd March 1878.

No. 1980.—Ordered that the following Resolution be published for general information:—

Read again—

Financial Resolution No. 3556, dated 19th October 1877.

RESOLUTION.—In order to eliminate from the category of "Money in the Government Treasuries and at credit of the Government in the Presidency Banks and their branches" every thing which is not actually available for immediate use as legal-tender in payment or on account, the Governor-General in Council is pleased to pass the following orders.

2. All legal-tender copper coin, and all silver coin which is legal-tender only for fractions of a rupee, shall be received in the first instance—if coined at the Calcutta Mint—by the Comptroller-General, and if coined at the Bombay Mint—by the Accountant-General, Bombay, and shall be deposited in the Office of Issue of Paper Currency in Calcutta and Bombay respectively, where depôts of these coins shall be formed and supplied by the Mints from time to time upon the requisition of the Comptroller-General. Sub-depôts shall be formed, in like manner, at all the other Offices of Issue of Paper Currency, and at such other treasuries as the Comptroller-General may direct.

3. Legal tender copper coin and silver coin which is legal-tender for only fractions of a rupee, which may accumulate in any treasury or at any Presidency Bank or Branch of a Presidency Bank in excess of the current local demand for such coin, should, under the orders of the Comptroller-General, be at once returned into store in the nearest depôt or sub-depôt.

4. No copper or silver coin in store in such depôts or sub-depôt shall be reckoned as money, or included in any return of money in the public treasuries or at credit of the Government.

5. Legal-tender copper or small silver coins, to meet current local demands, will be supplied to treasuries from the nearest depôt or sub-depôt; but indents should not be made for such coin in excess of what is necessary to meet current local demands.

6. As soon as legal-tender copper coin or small silver coin is issued from a depôt or sub-depôt, it will be reckoned and treated as money; and as soon as any such coin is received into such depôt, it will cease to be treated as money. The net revenue from the copper coinage in any year will be reckoned upon the excess of the issues from the depôts and sub-depôts over the receipts from the public, or the treasuries or banks under paragraph 3.

7. As soon as occasion offers, the contracts with the Presidency Banks should, with the concurrence of the Directors, be revised, so as to remove the distinction now made in respect to coin which is not legal-tender without limit of amount. These revised orders will obviate the need of any such distinction.

No. 1941.—The services of Mr. D. M. Barbour, Officiating Accountant-General, Bengal, are placed at the disposal of the Government of Bengal with effect from the 8th April 1878.

PART · III.

Act of the Bengal Council

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[First Publication.]

The following Act, passed by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in Council, received the assent of His Honor on the 5th February 1878, and having been assented to by the Governor-General on the 25th idem, is hereby published for general information :—

ACT No. II OF 1878.

An Act to extend the provisions of Bengal Act VII of 1873 (the Labor Districts Emigration Act) to the district of Chittagong and to the Chittagong Hill Tracts.

WHEREAS it is expedient to extend the provisions of Bengal Act VII of 1873 (the Labor Districts Emigration Act) to the district of Chittagong and to the Chittagong Hill Tracts: It is enacted as follows :—

1. This Act shall come into force from the date on which it may be published in the Calcutta Gazette with the assent of the Governor-General.

2. For the third paragraph of section 3 of Bengal Act VII of 1873 the following shall be substituted:

"The labor districts" mean the districts of Assam, Cachar, Sylhet, Chittagong, and the Chittagong Hill Tracts, and a "labor district" means any one of those districts.

3. For the words "the districts of Assam, Cachar, and Sylhet," in Schedules C and D of the said Act the words "Assam, Cachar, Sylhet, Chittagong, and the Chittagong Hill Tracts" shall be substituted.

4. The provisions of Part III of the said Act shall be deemed to extend to all laborers who at the time of the commencement of this Act shall be serving in the district of Chittagong or the Chittagong Hill Tracts in accordance with any contract to labor provided that they have been conveyed to the said districts at the expense of their employers.

PART IV.

Bills of the Bengal Council.

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Bill was read in the Council of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 23rd March 1878, and was referred to a Select Committee who are to report thereon in three weeks :—

A Bill to amend the law relating to the Court of Wards within the provinces subject to the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the law relating to the Court of Wards within the provinces subject to the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal; It is enacted as follows :—

PART I.

Preliminary.

Short title.

1. This Act may be called the Court of Wards' Act, 1878.

It shall come into force from the date on which it may be published in the Calcutta Gazette with the assent of the Governor-General.

Repeal of Court of Wards' Act, 1870.

2. Bengal Act IV of 1870 (the Court of Wards' Act) shall be repealed.

This repeal shall not affect the validity or invalidity of anything done or suffered, or any right, title, obligation, or liability accrued before the commencement of this Act.

And all rules prescribed, orders or appointments made, and agreements executed under the said Act shall (so far as they are consistent with this Act) be deemed to be respectively prescribed, made, and executed under this Act.

And all suits and proceedings now pending, which may have been commenced under the said Act, shall be deemed to be commenced under this Act.

3. In the Act, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context—

Interpretation.

(1.) "The Board" means the Board of Revenue for the Provinces for the time being subject to the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal.

"The Board."

(2.) "Collector" includes any officer in charge of the revenue jurisdiction of a district.

"Collector."

(3.) "The Court" means the Court of Wards.

"Court."

(4.) "Disqualified proprietors" means persons who by the provisions of this Act are subject to the superintendence and jurisdiction of the Court of Wards.

"Disqualified proprietors."

(5.) "Estate" means any land subject to the payment to Government of revenue in respect of which the name or names of a proprietor or of proprietors are entered on the General Register of revenue-paying lands.

"Estate."

(6.) "Section" means a section of this Act.

"Section."

PART II.

Constitution and Powers of the Court of Wards.

4. In every division of the provinces administered by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal there shall be a Court of Wards.

Court of Wards in each division.

The Commissioner of Revenue of each such division shall be such court, and shall have and exercise all the powers and authorities conferred by this Act upon the court over the persons and property of all wards of such court.

5. The court may manage estates and other lands falling under its charge either by appointment of a manager, or by giving some or all of the estates and lands in farm, or by adopting such other form of management as may to the court seem most expedient.

But no lease or farm shall, except under the sanction of the Board, be given for a term exceeding ten years, nor exceeding the time when the ward shall have attained the age of twenty-one years; and no estate coming under the charge of the court shall be leased in putnee or other permanent under-tenure unless, in the opinion of the court, subject to the express sanction of the Board and the Lieutenant-Governor, such a lease is necessary for the protection of the estate.

Provided that all leases given by the court, or by the Collector acting for the court, or by the manager, shall become null and void on the removal of the estate from the superintendence of the court for whatever cause, save leases made with such sanction as aforesaid.

6. The court may from time to time make such orders and give such instructions for the management of the estates and properties and the care of the persons of the wards thereof, or of any of them, as to it shall seem fit, provided that such orders and instructions be not inconsistent with the provisions of this Act or of any law for the time being in force, or with any orders which may from time to time be made by the Lieutenant-Governor, or the Board, under the provisions of this Act.

7. The court shall allow for the support of each ward, and of his or her family, such monthly sum as it thinks fit with regard to the rank and circumstances of the parties, and their indebtedness or freedom from debt.

PART III.

Estates of Disqualified Proprietors.

8. All proprietors of entire estates (other than proprietors residing within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the High Court) who are, or may be, females not deemed by the court competent to the management of their own estates, or who are, or may be, under the age of twenty-one; all sons of such females who are, or may be, under the age of twenty-one; all joint proprietors of entire estates held in common tenancy who are, or may be, under the age of twenty-one; all proprietors of entire estates who for the time being are of unsound mind, or otherwise incapable of managing their affairs by reason of any disqualifying natural or acquired defect or infirmity;

all proprietors of entire estates declared by the court on their own application to be disqualified from managing their estates;

any member of a ward's family who may have an immediate interest in the ward's estate, who is under the age of twenty-one, and who has no legal guardian, shall be subject to the superintendence and jurisdiction of the court.

Provided that no estate of a proprietor declared disqualified by the court on his own application shall, unless the court shall think fit, be discharged from such superintendence and jurisdiction until after five years from the date of such proprietor becoming a ward of the court; but at the expiration of the said five years the court shall be bound, on the application of the proprietors or any of them in that behalf, to discharge such estate from its superintendence and jurisdiction.

Provided, also, that the court shall discharge any such member of a ward's family from its superintendence and jurisdiction as soon as the estate of the ward ceases to be under the said superintendence and jurisdiction.

9. The superintendence of the court shall not extend to joint proprietors of estates, any one of whom is not of any of the descriptions specified in section 8.

Provided that whenever, by any order made under the provisions of section fourteen of Act XI. of 1858, any Collector is directed to retain possession of the persons and properties of still disqualified proprietors, all further proceedings shall be taken according to the provisions of this Act as if such still disqualified proprietors were proprietors of an entire estate; and in case any of the qualified proprietors shall so consent, the management of the shares of such qualified proprietors may be retained or assumed by the Collector and carried out under the provisions of this Act, so long as it shall seem fit to the Collector and such qualified proprietors.

10. No person shall become a ward of the court by reason of his acquiring, while subject to any such disqualification as aforesaid, any estate, unless the same has accrued to him in the regular course of inheritance on the death of the person to whom he may succeed in such estate, or by virtue of the will of, or some settlement made by, some deceased owner thereof.

Provided that the Board may direct the court to take charge of any estate, being the property of any disqualified person, or of any two or more persons, both or all of whom may be disqualified, although the same has not descended to such person or persons in any regular course of inheritance or succession, nor accrued to him or them by will or settlement as aforesaid, whenever the same shall appear to the Board to be advisable for the interests of Government and of the proprietor or proprietors; and such estates shall be considered in all respects, as far as regards the management of them by the court, as if they had devolved on the proprietor or proprietors in the regular course of inheritance or succession, or accrued to him or them by will or settlement as aforesaid: and such proprietor or proprietors shall in all respects be treated by the court accordingly.

11. All estates shall, whilst they are under the superintendence and jurisdiction of the court, be exempt from sale for arrears of revenue.

Provided that all arrears of revenue shall be the first charge upon the proceeds of such estates sold for any other cause while under such superintendence and jurisdiction.

12. When any person becomes a ward, the court shall take charge of all property, moveable or immovable, belonging to such person, inclusive of any share in any joint undivided estate, and of any tenures or shares of tenures of land.

No such share, if subject to the payment of revenue, shall be liable to sale for recovery of arrears of revenue or for other demands similarly recoverable, until after the end of the year in which such arrears accrued.

If the share has been separated under section ten or eleven of Act XI of 1859, the protection given to entire estates under section 8 of this Act will be extended to such share, subject to the provisions of sections thirteen and fourteen of the said Act XI of 1859.

13. Proprietors whose property is under the charge of the court shall not be competent to create, without the sanction of the court, any charge upon, or interest in, such property or any part thereof.

14. The court may, if it thinks fit, by an order under its seal refuse to admit any disqualified proprietor to be a ward, or by like order, and with the sanction of the Board, discharge any estate from the court's further superintendence and jurisdiction, or rescind any such last mentioned order, and make the disqualified proprietor again a ward of the court.

Provided that no estate, the sole property of a person under the age of twenty-one, or of two or more such persons, and descended to him or them by the regular course of inheritance, or by virtue of the will of, or some settlement made by, some deceased owner thereof, shall, until such person or some one or more of such persons shall have attained the age of twenty-one years, be sold for arrears of revenue accruing subsequently to his or their succession to the same;

and all arrears of revenue shall be the first charge upon the proceeds of such estate if it is sold while such proprietor is disqualified.

The revenue authorities may on an arrear so accruing, farm the estate for a period not exceeding ten years, nor exceeding the time when such person or one of such persons shall have attained the age of twenty-one years.

15. The exemption from sale for arrears of revenue given by section 14, shall only apply to cases where due notice has been given to the Collector, and acknowledged by him before the sale, of the fact that the estate is the sole property of a person under the age of twenty-one years, or the property of two or more such persons.

16. When an estate has been farmed under the provisions of section 14, the proceeds of such farm shall be paid to the Collector, and the Collector, after the deduction of the amount of the claims of the Government for revenue, shall, with the sanction of the Board, either pay the same to the person authorized to receive it for the ward, or shall dispose of it for the ward's benefit in any of the modes mentioned in section 58.

PART IV.

Powers and Duties of Collectors.

17. When the estate or other lands of a ward are situated within one district only, the Collector of such district shall have charge of the ward and his moveable and immovable property.

18. When the estate or other lands of a ward are situated within more than one district, but within the same division, the court in that division shall appoint some one of the Collectors within the division to have charge of the person of the ward.

19. When the estate or other lands of a ward are situated within more than one district, but within the same division, the Collector of each district shall have charge of the ward's property situated within his district; provided that the court may, with the sanction of the Board, entrust to any one Collector the charge of any portion of the ward's property not situated within his own district.

20. When the estate or other lands of a ward are situated within two or more divisions, the Board shall determine the court which shall have the charge of the person of the ward; and such court shall appoint some one of the Collectors within its own division to have charge of the person of the ward.

21. When the estate or other lands of a ward are situated within two or more divisions, the court of each division and the Collector of each district shall control and superintend the management of such portion of the property as is situated within their jurisdictions; provided that the court to whom the charge of the ward's person has been committed under section 20 shall exercise a general control over all disbursements and payments connected with the ward's property, wherever situated, and over the accounts of such property; and the Board may direct that the court in charge of the ward shall have the entire control of all one or more portions of the ward's property wherever situated, under such form of management as may appear to the Board advisable, or take any other action which may seem convenient for the due care of the ward's interests, and the efficient management of his property.

22. All orders and proceedings of a Collector under the provisions of this Act shall be subject to the revision of the court, and every person aggrieved by any such order or proceeding may, within a month from the date of such order or proceeding, prefer an appeal therefrom to the court in charge of the estate in respect of which such order has been made or proceeding taken; or in case such order has not been made in respect of an estate, then to the court in charge of the ward in respect of whom or of whose property such order has been made or proceeding taken.

Provided that the court may, if it thinks fit, revise, modify, or reverse any such order or proceeding after the lapse of the said period of one month, whether any appeal is preferred or not.

PART V.

Mode of ascertaining the ground of disqualification.

23. Every Collector, immediately upon his receiving credible information that disqualification under this Act attaches to any proprietor of an estate in his district, shall report the same to the court of his division, and shall specify the nature of the disqualification.

24. Whenever any Collector receives information that any proprietor of an estate within his district has died, and that the heirs of such proprietor are disqualified, such Collector may take order for the safety and preservation of any moveable property of such deceased proprietor, and of all deeds, documents, and papers relating to any portion of the property of such proprietor, and for that purpose cause the same or any part thereof to be removed to any public treasury, or to place such guards in charge thereof as to him shall seem fit.

25. If the Collector reports to the court that any female proprietor is disqualified from incompetency to manage her estate, the court shall immediately proceed to ascertain whether such proprietor is competent from her capacity and habits of business to manage her own estate, and shall, if satisfied that such proprietor is competent to manage her own estate, by an order under the seal of the court exempt her from the operation of this Act, and if not satisfied, shall by a like order declare such proprietor to be a ward, and shall immediately take charge of her estate under the provisions of this Act.

26. If any proprietor who does not reside within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the High Court is reported to be under the age of twenty-one, the court shall direct the Collector to proceed to enquire into the age of such proprietor, and for that purpose the Collector shall have power to require the production in person of such proprietor, if a male, and of all documents from which the truth of such matter may appear, and to take evidence of witnesses.

The Collector shall record such evidence and report thereupon, and shall submit with report and all evidence taken by him to the court.

The court shall thereupon make an order declaring the age of such proprietor, and such order shall be final and conclusive for all the purposes of this Act.

The court shall retain all documentary evidence filed with such report until the proprietor attains the age of twenty-one years, or, less, upon an application made in that behalf, it thinks fit to allow any such document to be restored to the owner thereof.

27. The Collector may direct that any person having the unlawful custody or being unlawfully in possession of the person of any ward under the age of twenty-one, shall produce him or her before the Collector on a day fixed by him, and may make such order for the temporary custody and protection of such ward as may appear proper.

The Collector may punish any person disobeying his orders under this section with a fine not exceeding five hundred rupees, and with a daily fine not exceeding two hundred rupees until the production of the person of such ward.

In the case of a female ward she shall not be brought into court.

28. If a proprietor who does not reside within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the High Court is deemed disqualified on the ground of idiocy or lunacy, the court shall order the Collector making such report to apply, in pursuance of the provisions of Act XXXV of 1858, to the civil court of the district within the jurisdiction of which such proprietor may reside.

29. If a proprietor is found by any High Court of Judicature, under the provisions of Act XXXIV of 1858, to be of unsound mind and incapable of managing his affairs, the court may (subject to the powers of the High Court under the said Act XXXIV of 1858) take charge of the estate and lands of such proprietor situated beyond the local limits of the jurisdiction of such High Court, and deal with the same subject to the provisions of this Act.

30. If a proprietor resident beyond the provinces for the time being subject to the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal is declared, by a civil court of competent jurisdiction, under the provisions of Act XXXV of 1858, to be of unsound mind and incapable of managing his own affairs, the court may take charge of the estate and lands of such proprietor situated within the said provinces, and deal with the same subject to the provisions of this Act.

31. In any such case as is mentioned in sections 29 and 30 no further proceedings shall be taken under section 28, nor shall the court appoint a guardian of the person of the said proprietor:

and the surplus income of the property so taken charge of by the court, after providing for the discharge of the Government revenue and the expenses of management, shall be disposed of from time to time in such manner as the said High Court or civil court shall direct, and not otherwise.

32. If a proprietor who does not reside within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the High Court is reported by the Collector to be disqualified on the ground of some natural or acquired defect or infirmity, other than unsoundness of mind, the court shall order the Collector making the report to apply to the civil court within whose jurisdiction such person may be residing, and upon such Collector so applying, such civil court shall institute an enquiry for the purpose of ascertaining whether such person is or is not subject to such disqualifying defect or infirmity.

33. If a proprietor resident within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, or resident beyond the provinces for the time being subject to the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, shall be reported by a Collector to be disqualified by reason of some natural or acquired defect or infirmity other than unsoundness of mind, the court within whose division the estate or lands of such proprietor are situated shall order the Collector making such report to apply to the civil court of the 24-Pergunnahs, or to such other civil court as the Lieutenant-Governor, on application made to him by the Collector in that behalf, may determine.

Such civil court shall thereupon enquire into and determine the question as to the alleged disqualification, and the provisions of sections four, seven, and twenty-two of the said Act XXXV of 1858 shall apply to such enquiry.

34. When any enquiry is instituted by a civil court under section 32 or section 33, such court shall, for the purposes of making such enquiry, have such and the same or the like powers and authorities, and shall proceed in such and the same or the like manner and form as in and by the said Act XXXV of 1858 are provided for making the enquiries in and by the same Act directed to be made.

The civil court shall transmit to the court by which any enquiry under section 28 or 29 is directed a copy of the order made on each such enquiry, and the court shall thereupon, in case the proprietor has been found by the civil court to be disqualified, treat such proprietor as subject to its superintendence and jurisdiction.

PART VI.

Procedure on ascertainment of disqualification.

35. Whenever it has been determined under the provisions aforesaid, that the proprietor of an estate is disqualified, the court shall make an order declaring such estate to be subject to the jurisdiction of the court, and directing the Collector to take charge of such proprietor and of his property, and such proprietor shall be held to be a ward of the court from the date of such order; and the Collector of every district within which there may be any property of the ward shall, as soon as conveniently may be, take possession of such property, and the court shall be held to be in charge of such property from the time when possession shall have been so taken.

36. Immediately on an order being made under the provisions of section 35, the Collector shall search for and take possession of all seals and such accounts and papers belonging to the ward as it may appear to him advisable to take possession of, and shall, at his discretion, remove them to his own office, or send them to the custody of the court, and shall also take possession of all moveable property of the ward, and place under proper custody such portion thereof as he may think necessary.

And the Collector may, in case he has reason to believe that any such seal, account paper, or property is in any room, box, or receptacle, within any house or on any land in the actual possession of the ward, break open the same for the purpose of searching for such seal, account-paper, or property.

37. The Collector shall, within six months from the date of his taking possession of the property of a ward under the provisions of this Act, deliver to the court an inventory of all immoveable and moveable property so taken possession of.

Collector to deliver inventory.

38. Every Collector in charge of a ward shall forthwith report to the court in charge of such ward the condition of such ward, the particulars of his property, moveable and immoveable, so far as the same can be ascertained, and the persons who respectively may appear to be most eligible to be appointed manager and guardian, with the grounds of such opinion.

Collector to report particulars of estates of disqualified persons.

PART VII.

Appointment and Duties of Managers and Guardians.

39. The offices of manager and guardian for wards shall be wholly distinct.

40. When the offices of manager and guardian are vested in different persons, the manager shall have the care of the moveable and immoveable property of the ward, save such property as may be under the immediate charge of any Collector, and the guardian shall have the superintendence and care of the person and maintenance of the ward.

41. The court in charge of a ward may, if it thinks fit, appoint the same person to be guardian and manager; but in every case where one person shall be appointed to be both manager and guardian, he shall render all such accounts and perform all such duties as in and by this Act are required from manager and guardian respectively and severally.

42. Every manager and every guardian shall sign and seal all papers, deeds, documents, and writings which are executed by him by virtue of his office, with his own name and seal; and shall add to his name his description of manager or guardian of the ward for whom he may act, as the case may be;

and every manager shall deliver to the Collector in charge of the estate of which he is a manager, and every guardian shall deliver to the Collector in charge of the ward, all family seals belonging to the ward which may come into his power or control, and such seals shall be deposited wherever the court shall order.

43. Every manager of the estate of any ward shall, subject to the approbation of the Board, be appointed by the court in charge of such estate, and his commission shall be authenticated by the official seal of such court.

Provided that whenever any ward has estates in more than one division, the manager appointed by the court in charge of such ward shall be appointed manager of all other estates of such ward by the respective courts in and for the division in which such estates respectively are situated;

Documents to be executed by manager and guardian.

Appointment of manager of estate.

but any such court may, with the assent of the Board, appoint a separate manager of the estate or estates under its charge, or a sub-manager who shall act under the orders of the manager.

44. Every manager shall be subordinate to the court and to the Collector under whose superintendence the estate or lands of a ward may be; but the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal may at any time declare any manager to be no longer subordinate to the Collector, and may order him to be directly subordinate to the court or to the Board.

45. Every manager of an estate, previous to the receipt of his commission, shall give security for the due performance of his duty as such manager, and shall execute an agreement in the form in schedule A hereto annexed.

Provided that with the assent of the Board such security may be dispensed with, and that no security shall be required from a manager if he be the testamentary guardian.

Every manager of an estate shall be responsible for any loss occasioned to the property by his wilful default or gross negligence.

46. Every manager of an estate shall receive from such estate such remuneration, by salary, commission, or otherwise, as shall from time to time be fixed and determined by the court with the assent of the Board.

47. All moneys which may be recovered from any manager under the provisions of his obligation shall be carried to the credit of the estate of the ward.

48. An establishment of necessary officers to act under the manager or sub-manager shall be fixed by the court in charge of the estate.

The Collector, after consultation with the manager, shall appoint the persons to be employed on such establishment, subject to the approval of the court.

49. The manager and all persons employed in the management of the estate of any ward shall be deemed to be officers in the pay of Government, in respect of their employment and remuneration, and every manager, sub-manager, or guardian under this Act, and every officer employed as hereinafter provided, shall be held to be a public accountant under the provisions of Act XII of 1850.

50. The court by which any manager or guardian has been appointed may, if it thinks fit, with the assent of the Board, remove such manager or guardian or other person, and may order the person so removed to make over, within a time fixed by the court, any property in his hands to such person as the court may direct to receive the same, and to account to such person for all moneys received and disbursed by such manager or guardian; and every such order may be enforced by the court by the imprisonment in the civil jail of the person disobeying the same, and by attachment of his property, and keeping it under attachment until the accounts or property have been delivered up.

51. The Collector in charge of any property of the ward may, if he thinks fit, remove any officer appointed by himself, and may order any officer so removed to deliver his accounts or any property in his hands, and such order shall be enforced in manner aforesaid, and the diet-money of every person imprisoned under this section shall be paid out of the rents and profits of the estate.

An appeal shall lie to the Board against every order for imprisonment made by the court.

52. Every manager, sub-manager, or guardian, who may be removed or otherwise cease to fill such office, shall, notwithstanding his removal or cesser of office, continue liable to account to the court for his receipts and disbursements during the period of his management or guardianship, or tenure of office.

53. If any present manager, sub-manager, or guardian, or past or present officer subordinate to a manager, sub-manager, or guardian, wilfully neglects or refuses to deliver his accounts or any property in his hands within such time as is fixed by the court, the court may impose on him a fine not exceeding five hundred rupees, and in addition to any other remedy for the recovery of such fine, every such fine shall be a demand recoverable as an arrear of revenue.

54. The manager appointed by the court shall have the care of the entire property, moveable or immoveable, of the ward, except estates or lands to which another manager may be appointed, or which are under the direct management of a Collector, the house wherein such ward may reside, the moveables wanted for his use, and the money allowed for the support of the ward and the members of his family entitled under Hindu law to maintenance.

55. All moneys received by any manager of an estate shall be applied by him in the first place in payment of the allowance fixed for the support of the ward and of all charges of management, and, subject thereto, in or towards the discharge of the instalments of Government revenue from time to time due in respect of such estate; and, subject to the approval of the Board, in payment of such charitable and other allowances as were paid out of the proceeds of the estate before it came under the management of the court, or such customary allowances or donations as the court may authorize to be paid.

56. If any attachment is issued from any civil court against any sum of money which may be in the hands of the Collector or manager, the payment of the charges of management and of all Government revenue which may for the time being be due from the estate of such ward shall have priority over such attachment; and no payment shall be made to the attaching creditor from any such sum until full provision has been made for the payment of such charges and revenue.

Nothing in this section shall be deemed to affect section 277 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

57. Every manager shall deliver a monthly account-current, accompanied with vouchers, of his receipts and disbursements to the Collector in charge of the estate, who shall audit the disbursements therein specified.

58. Whenever upon any such monthly account-current there is any surplus after making the several payments directed in section 55, such surplus shall, at the Collector's discretion, with the sanction of the court, be carried to the credit of the ward, or shall be applied in liquidation of any debt which may affect the property of the ward or any part thereof, and subject thereto, the same shall, if no such debts be outstanding, be expended by the manager, subject to the directions of the court, for the improvement of the lands of the ward, or otherwise for the benefit of the property under his charge.

Provided that the amount so expended shall not exceed ten per centum of the said surplus, unless, in the opinion of the court, subject to the express sanction of the Board and the Lieutenant-Governor, it is desirable for the protection and in the interest of the estate to expend an amount exceeding such percentage.

59. Whenever the court in charge of a ward shall think it unnecessary or unadvisable to appropriate any surplus receipts to the improvement of the lands already under the manager's charge, the same shall, by the direction and with the privity of the court, be applied in the purchase of other landed property, or at interest upon the security of promissory notes, debentures, stock, and other securities of the Government of India or of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland; bonds, debentures, and annuities charged by the Imperial Parliament on the revenues of India; stock or debentures of or shares in railway or other companies, the interest whereon shall have been guaranteed by the Secretary of State for India in Council;

debentures or other securities for money paid by or on behalf of any municipal body under the authority of any Act of a legislature established in Great Britain;

or such other securities, stocks, or shares, guaranteed by the Government of India and approved of by the Board, as to the court shall seem fit.

60. All title deeds and documents relating to any land purchased under the provisions aforesaid, and all such securities as aforesaid, shall be deposited in such public treasury as the court may direct; and the court shall obtain the treasurer's receipt for all deeds, documents, and papers when deposited in any such treasury, and shall transmit an attested copy thereof to the Collector in charge of the estate, to be delivered by him to the manager.

61. Every manager of an estate, and every guardian in charge of a ward, shall deliver any title deeds, or securities belonging to the estate or property of a ward under his charge, to the Collector in charge of such estate, and such Collector shall return a receipt for the same, and transmit such deeds and securities to the court in charge of the ward, or deposit them in his public treasury as above directed.

All interest or dividends which may become payable on Government or other securities or shares shall be paid to the manager, and shall be accounted for by him in his monthly account-current.

62. In addition to the monthly account-current required in section 57, the manager of every estate, at the expiration of every year, shall deliver to the Collector in charge of such estate an annual account of all moneys which have come to the hands of such manager during such year on account of such estate, or on account of any property of the ward of which such Collector may have charge, and of the application and disposal of all such moneys; and the said Collector shall audit the disbursements, and take order that the whole of the surplus receipts be duly appropriated in the manner specified in sections 58 and 59.

63. Whenever it appears to the court that the profits of the estate of any ward or of any other property of the ward are insufficient to provide for the expenses of a separate establishment for the management in conformity with sections 40 and 48, the court shall make such order as from the circumstances of the case may appear best calculated for providing for the security of the public revenue, and for the interests of the ward.

64. When portions of the same estate of any ward are situated in different districts of the same division, the monthly and annual accounts of all such estates or portions of an estate required to be furnished by the manager shall be rendered to the Collector in charge of the ward.

When the property of the ward consists of different estates or lands or parts of the same estate or land in different divisions, it shall be optional with the Board to order that the accounts for the lands in each district shall be submitted to the Collector of that district, or to the Collector in charge of the ward.

65. When two or more estates belonging to different wards are so situated that they can be conveniently superintended by one manager, the court may, if it thinks fit, entrust them, or so many of them as may seem convenient, to the management of the same manager.

66. When a guardian of a ward under the age of twenty-one has been appointed by will, such person shall be appointed guardian by the court, unless the Board, after a report received by the court, and after calling on him to show cause, shall consider him unfit.

67. No person who would be the next legal heir of a ward, or would otherwise be immediately interested in outliving such ward, shall be appointed to be his guardian:

but nothing in this section shall apply to the mother of a ward, or to a testamentary guardian appointed under section 66.

68. Every guardian shall be appointed in the manner hereinbefore provided for the appointment of managers:

provided that none but a female shall be appointed guardian of a female ward:

provided, also, that none but a person of the same religion shall, except in the case of a testamentary guardian, be appointed guardian of a female ward, preference being given to female relatives if any such be eligible.

Every guardian shall be subordinate to the court and to the Collector who are in charge of the person of the ward.

Except as provided in section 66, no guardian shall be appointed in any case in which the court may consider such appointment unnecessary.

69. A guardian is charged with the custody of the ward, and must look to his support, health, and education.

70. Any ward who may desert his home may be compelled by order of the court to return. But such order may be withheld by the court if it appears—

- (a) that the ward has been subjected to maltreatment at the hands of his guardian;
- (b) that the conduct of his guardian in other respects renders him unfit for the office, or
- (c) that the ward is on reasonable grounds unwilling to return and is old enough to form an intelligent preference on such a subject.

71. No guardian appointed by the court shall, without the leave of the court, remove its ward from the limits of its jurisdiction.

Any person wilfully contravening this prohibition shall be liable by order of the court to fine not exceeding one thousand rupees, or to imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or to both.

72. The court may empower any female ward herself to receive and disburse the allowance fixed for maintenance, and in such case no guardian shall be appointed, or the guardian, if already appointed, shall be removed.

73. The court may order reasonable remuneration to be paid from the allowance fixed for the maintenance of any ward to the guardian of such ward.

74. The guardian, prior to the receipt of his commission, shall give security for the due performance of his duty during the continuance of it, and shall execute an agreement with the Collector for the time being in charge of the ward in the form in schedule B hereto annexed. Provided that with the assent of the Board, such security may be dispensed with, and that no security shall be required from a testamentary guardian.

75. An establishment of necessary servants to act under the guardian shall be fixed by the court, and the expense thereof shall be defrayed from the allowance fixed for the support of the ward.

76. The right to the custody of the person of every ward not being an adult female is hereby vested in the person who for the time being may be guardian of such ward under this Act, or, in the absence of such person, in the Collector in charge of such ward.

But no guardian shall be appointed or continued for a female ward if she has an adult husband.

77. The guardian shall deliver a monthly account-current, accompanied by vouchers of his receipts and disbursements, to the Collector in charge of the ward, who shall audit the disbursements therein specified, and see that the receipts have been fairly and duly appropriated.

78. The guardian shall also deliver an annual account-current which shall be in like manner audited by such Collector, and if there shall be any surplus remaining in the hands of such guardian, which such Collector may think unnecessary for the guardian's expenses in the ensuing year, he shall cause the same to be paid into court to the credit of the ward, and the same shall be applied by the court for the increase of the property of the ward in manner hereinbefore provided for the application of the surplus of the income of such ward.

When a fixed allowance is given for the support of a ward, the court may exempt his guardian, if a female, from rendering such monthly or annual account-current.

79. Nothing in the preceding sections shall be held to interfere with the provisions of the said Act XXXV of 1858.

PART VIII.

Education of Wards under the age of twenty-one.

80. The general superintendence and control of the education of every ward under the age of twenty-one shall be vested in the court.

81. The court may direct that any such ward, if a male, shall reside either with or apart from his guardian at the sudder station of the district or at any other place approved of by the Board, and shall attend for the purposes of education, such school or college as to the Board may seem expedient, or be educated either at his own home or elsewhere by a private tutor; and may make such provision as may be necessary for the proper care and suitable maintenance of the said ward whilst attending such school or college.

82. All charges and expenses which may be incurred on account of any such ward under the provisions of this Act for college or school fees, or for other charges of tuition or education, or by reason of his residence in any place other than his own home, or otherwise, shall be defrayed from the profits of the property of such ward.

PART IX.

Debts of the Estates.

83. Every manager to whom the existence of Debts to be reported to court.

any debt payable out of any estate or out of any other property in his charge under this Act may become known, shall immediately report the same to the Collector, who shall without delay report to the court the nature and amount of such debt, and in such report shall state his opinion respecting the best mode of satisfying the same.

84. The court may, with the consent of the Power of sale and mortgage for the payment of debts.

Board, sell or mortgage any property of a ward for the purpose of liquidating any just debts due in respect of the property of such ward, or for the purpose of raising any money for the cost of any suit in which the ward may be a party, or for the purchase of any share of any property of which the ward may be a co-sharer, and which in the interest of the ward it may be deemed proper to acquire; and for the purpose of any such sale or mortgage, any conveyance executed by the Collector in charge of the ward, under the order of the court, shall be valid to pass the estate and inheritance, right, title, and interest in the property in such conveyance mentioned of such ward, and of every person whom such ward, if not disqualified, could have bound by a conveyance made, for the payment of the debts of the ancestor from whom such property descended.

85. If the property so ordered to be sold or mortgaged is part of an estate of which such ward is the sole proprietor, or if it is a share of an estate separated under the said Act XI of 1859, and if it appears to the court that it will be to the interest of such ward or of the Government that such part or share be formed into a separate estate prior to such sale or mortgage being effected, the court may direct the Collector, within whose jurisdiction such part or share is situated, to partition it off into a separate estate, and such partition shall be conducted in accordance with the law for the time being in force for the partition of estates.

When court may order property to be formed into a separate estate.

PART X.

Suits.

86. In every suit brought by or against any

Manager to be next friend or guardian in suits by or against ward.

ward in any court other than the High Court, he shall be therein described as a ward of court; and if he has a manager of his estate or estates as hereinbefore provided, such manager shall in such suit be named as next friend or guardian for the suit, and shall in such suit represent such ward, and no other person shall sue as next friend or be named as guardian for the suit by any civil court in which such suit may be pending.

87. The court may by an order nominate or

Court may substitute another person to be next friend or guardian for the suit.

substitute any other person to be next friend or guardian for any such suit; and upon receiving a copy of any such order of substitution, the court in which such suit is pending shall substitute the name of the next friend or guardian for the suit so appointed, for the name of the manager of the ward's property.

If the ward has no manager, the Collector in charge of such ward shall be named as next friend or guardian for the suit of such ward.

88. If in any suit instituted by or against a ward any civil court other than a High Court shall decree any costs against the manager as guardian or next friend, or against any other person nominated as guardian or next friend under the provisions of section 87 the court shall cause such costs to be paid out of any property of the ward which for the time being may be in its hands.

Payment of costs of manager.

89. Every process which may be issued out of any civil court other than the High Court against any ward, shall be served, through the court, upon the next friend or guardian for the suit of such ward, and upon the Collector in charge of the estate of such ward.

Process against wards to be served through court.

90. No suit shall be brought on behalf of Suits not to be brought on behalf of minors.

any ward unless the same be authorized by some order of the Collector under whose superintendence the estate of such ward may be, or, if the Lieutenant-Governor has, under section 14 declared the manager of the estate of such ward to be directly subordinate to the court or to the Board, then by some order of the court or the Board, as the case may be; provided that suits for arrears of rent may be brought on behalf of a ward if authorized by an order of the manager or sub-manager in whose charge the estate may be.

Nothing contained in this section shall apply to any suit instituted or depending in the High Court.

91. The court may order that any claim

Power to compromise suits by or against wards.

which may be made by or on behalf of or against any ward shall be referred to arbitration, and may authorize the adjustment of any such claim by any lawful agreement or compromise; and every such agreement or compromise shall have the same force and effect as if the ward were not subject to any disqualification, and be personally entered into such agreement or compromise; and for the purpose of any such agreement or compromise, any conveyance executed by the Collector under the orders of the court shall be valid to pass the estate and inheritance, right, title, and interest in the property therein comprised of the ward, and of every person whom such ward, if not disqualified, could have bound by a conveyance made for the payment of the debts of the ancestor from whom such property descended.

PART XI.

Adoption.

92. No adoption by any ward, and no written or verbal permission to adopt given by any ward, shall be valid without the consent of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, obtained either previously or subsequently to such adoption, or to the giving of such permission, on application made to him through the court and the Board.

Adoption by ward invalid without consent of Lieutenant-Governor.

PART XII.

Miscellaneous.

93. Farmers and others holding tenures in estates in charge of the court under the Collector (whether such tenures were created before the estate came under the charge of the court or by the Collector after the estate came under such charge) shall be subject to the same rules, regulations, and Acts as are applicable to other persons holding similar tenures and interests under Collectors of the land revenue; but when the farm is held from the manager, these Rules, regulations, and Acts shall not apply.

94. All arrears of rent due to the Collector from farmers and others holding tenures in estates in charge of the court which accrued before the estate came under the charge of the court, shall be deemed to be demands under section one of Bengal Act VII of 1868 (an Act to make further provision for the recovery of arrears of land revenue and public demands recoverable as arrears of land revenue), and shall be leviable as such.

The last preceding clause does not apply to arrears of rent enhanced after issue of notice under section thirteen of Act X of 1859, or under section fourteen of Bengal Act VI of 1869, but of which the enhancement has not been confirmed by any competent Court.

95. When a ward's property is managed wholly or in part under the system of farms held direct from the Collector, or is managed direct by the Collector, the Collector shall prepare and submit to the court the same accounts that are ordered to be prepared by the manager when the property is managed by a manager.

96. Whenever an estate ceases to belong to a disqualified proprietor, or the court deems it advisable to remove an estate from its superintendence and jurisdiction, the court shall make an order that the superintendence and jurisdiction of the court over such estate shall cease on a date not more than sixty and not less than fifteen days from the date of such order.

97. Immediately on issue of the order a copy of the same shall be posted up in the office of the court, and copies thereof shall be sent to the Collector in charge of the ward, and to every Collector in charge of any estate or property of such ward; and every such Collector shall forthwith, on receipt of such copy, notify the intended cessation of the court's charge by a notice posted up in such Collector's office, and in some conspicuous place in the estate.

98. When an estate is released from the superintendence of the court, a list in duplicate of the papers to be delivered, and of all immoveable and moveable property which may be in the custody or charge of the court or of any Collector or manager, shall be made by such officer of the court as the court may direct; and such papers and moveable property shall be given up to the late ward or other person who shall succeed to his estate, with one of the lists, on a receipt being affixed to the other, signed either by the late ward or the person who shall succeed to his estate, or by some person authorized to act on his behalf; and a complete account of the management of the property of the proprietor of such estate while under the superintendence of the court, shall be prepared by the manager or Collector (as the case may be) and submitted to the court, and a copy thereof given to the late ward, or to the person who shall succeed to his estate.

99. If on the death of any ward the succession to his property or any part thereof is in dispute, the court may either make over such property or part of such property to any person claiming such property, or continue the charge and management of such property or part of such property under the provisions of this Act, until the right of such claimant has been determined by the Collector under section fifty-five of Bengal Act VII of 1866, or by a competent court.

100. If a proprietor is declared disqualified and is afterwards restored, or if the estate of any disqualified proprietor legally devolves on, or comes into the possession of, any person not disqualified for the management of it, such proprietor or his heir or successor may sue any person professing to have acted under the authority of the court, for any acts done by them respectively whilst the estate was under the charge of the court in contravention of this or any other Act that may be hereafter enacted regarding disqualified proprietors and their estates, or in contravention of any order issued by the court, or for any breach of their respective trusts.

101. The Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal may order that the cost of superintendence of all estates under the charge of the court shall be defrayed from a general contribution to be levied from such estates in such proportion as the Board may from time to time direct.

102. In cases instituted under this Act the court shall be guided by the procedure prescribed in the Code of Civil Procedure in so far as the same shall be applicable and material; and any order made by the court may be enforced as if such order had been made in a suit.

103. The Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal may from time to time make rules consistent with the Act for the better fulfilment of its purposes. Such rules shall be published in the Calcutta Gazette, and shall thereupon have the force of law.

104. The powers and authorities vested by this Act in the Court of Wards shall be possessed and exercised subject to the control and supervision of the Board and of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, Court to be subject to Board and Lieutenant-Governor.

SCHEDULE A.—(See section 45.)

FORM OF AGREEMENT TO BE EXECUTED BY A MANAGER.

I, A. B., having voluntarily taken on myself the management of the estate of C., disqualified proprietor of D., do hereby engage with the Secretary of State in Council that I will manage the said estate diligently and faithfully for the said proprietor, and will use every means in my power to improve the same for his [her] benefit, and will act in every respect for his [her] interest in like manner as if the estate were my own. I also engage with the said Secretary of State in Council to observe in all respects the provisions regarding managers contained in Part VII of Act of 1878 of the Council of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, and that I will derive no personal advantage from the management beyond the remuneration granted to me as manager. In the event of any breach of trust, neglect, or omission as manager being proved against me, I bind myself, my heirs and representatives, to pay to the said Secretary of State in Council Rs. liquidated damages.

SCHEDULE B.—(See section 74.)

FORM OF AGREEMENT TO BE EXECUTED BY A GUARDIAN.

I, A. B., having voluntarily taken upon myself the guardianship of C., disqualified proprietor of D., do hereby agree with the Secretary of State in Council that I will execute the trust committed to me diligently and faithfully, and according to the provisions regarding guardians contained in Part VII of Act of 1878 of the Council of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, and that I will derive no advantage directly or indirectly from the ward's allowance beyond the remuneration granted me as guardian. In the event of any breach of trust, neglect, or omission being proved against me, I bind myself, my heirs and representatives, to pay to the said Secretary of State in Council, Rs. as liquidated damages.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

● THE object of this Bill is to re-enact, with such amendments as experience has shown to be desirable, the Court of Wards' Act of 1870. A similar Bill was passed by the Council last year, but did not receive the assent of the Governor-General. The clause to which the Governor-General took exception has been struck out of the present Bill, and some amendments suggested by the Government of India have been adopted. Some other sections have been altered in order to remove the obscurity which surrounded the respective duties of the Collector and the Court of Wards under the Act.

The 16th March 1878.

H. J. REYNOLDS.

FREDERICK CLARKE,

Asst. Secy to the Govt. of Bengal, Legislative Department.

THE following Bill was read in the Council of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 23rd March 1878, and was referred to a Select Committee who are to report thereon in three weeks:—

A Bill to provide for the cleansing and erection of Latrines in first-class Municipalities.

WHEREAS it is expedient that the Commissioners of first-class municipalities under Bengal Act V of 1876 should have power to levy a rate for the cleansing of public and private latrines, and also to erect latrines in bustees situated within the limits of such municipalities: It is enacted as follows:—

1. "The Commissioners" in this Act means the Commissioners of any first-class municipality under Bengal Act V of 1876.

Definition of "the Commissioners."

2. The Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal may, on the recommendation of the Commissioners at a meeting, by an order published as prescribed in section 365 of Bengal Act V of 1876, declare that from a date to be specified in such order the Commissioners will maintain an establishment for the cleansing of all public and private latrines within the limits of the municipality, and the Commissioners shall make suitable provision accordingly.

3. When such provision has been made, the Commissioners may levy a rate on the annual value of holdings within the limits of the municipality, to be fixed on such scale as the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal may direct;

But the rate shall not exceed three rupees where the valuation of the holding amounts to, or is less than, fifty rupees; and the rate on any one holding shall not exceed four hundred and eighty rupees; provided that on the commencement of this Act, the owners or occupiers of any holding are already under engagement to pay to the Commissioners an annual sum exceeding four hundred and eighty rupees for the cleansing of their premises, such sum may be levied from them by a rate fixed under this Act.

The proceeds of the rate shall be applied to the maintenance of the said establishment, and generally to carrying out the provisions of this Act.

4. The annual value of holdings from time to time determined under Bengal Act V of 1876 shall be deemed to be their annual value for the purposes of this Act; and the rate mentioned in the last preceding section shall be payable by the occupier for the time being of the holding in quarterly instalments, and shall be recoverable in the manner prescribed for the recovery of the rate on the value of holdings in the said Bengal Act V of 1876.

Every instalment of the said rate shall be deemed to be due on the first day of the quarter in respect of which such instalment is payable.

5. The Commissioners, at their discretion, may compound for any period not exceeding one year with any occupier of any premises used as a factory, dockyard, cooly dépôt, school, hospital, market, court-house, or other public place, for a certain sum to be paid by such occupier in lieu of such rate.

6. The Commissioners may, in lieu of the rate on holdings, levy a rate per head, to be fixed by the said Lieutenant-Governor, on the number of persons living within, or habitually resorting to, any such factory, dockyard, cooly dépôt, school, hospital, market, court-house, or other public place.

7. Any person who may be dissatisfied with the amount fixed as such composition, or with the amount fixed as such rate per head, may contest the same by appeal to a bench of not less than three Commissioners, whose decision shall be final.

8. Whoever refuses to pay any rate due under this Act, or, having compounded for the payment of a certain sum under section 4 of this Act, refuses to pay such sum, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding three times the amount payable by him, exclusive of the amount so payable.

9. The owner, lessee, or farmer of any bustee, or tenanted land within the limits of a first-class municipality, and containing more than one hundred huts or amounting to, or more than, ten beghas in extent, shall, on the requisition of the Commissioners, provide, free of rent or other charges, a sufficient site for the erection of a latrine for the use of the tenants of the said bustee or land. Such latrine shall be erected by the Commissioners in accordance with a plan and estimate approved by them at a meeting.

10. One-half of the cost of constructing such latrine shall be paid by the owner, lessee, or farmer of such bustee or land, and the other half by the Commissioners. The amount due from such owner, lessee, or farmer in respect of the cost shall be recoverable in the manner prescribed for the recovery of the rate on the value of holdings in Bengal Act V of 1876.

The cost of maintaining and keeping in repair such latrine shall be paid by the Commissioners.

11. Where there is a collection of bustees none of which separately contains one hundred huts, or is ten beghas in extent, the Commissioners may erect a latrine at such place within the bustees as they may think fit, and the cost of constructing the same shall be paid by the owners, lessees, and farmers of the several bustees in such proportion as the Commissioners at a meeting shall determine.

12. Any owner, lessee, or farmer of any one of such bustees may, with the consent of the Commissioners, erect at his own cost a latrine for the use of his own tenants in accordance with a plan to be approved by the Commissioners.

13. Whenever any site for a latrine is required, the Commissioners shall cause to be served upon the owner, lessee, or farmer of any bustee or tenanted land as aforesaid a notice specifying the site required, and requiring such owner, lessee, or farmer to remove any hut, enclosure, or other erection, or trees, from such site, and to make over the said site to the Commissioners within one month from the date of the notice.

14. If the said site be not made over to the Commissioners within the time mentioned in the notice, the Commissioners may enter upon such site and may remove therefrom any hut, enclosure, or other erection, or trees, and may proceed to construct the latrine which is required.

15. The Commissioners shall not require any person to remove, nor shall the Commissioners themselves remove, any masonry building standing in any bustee or tenanted land; nor shall any hut or fruit trees be removed under this Act if any open land be available within a convenient distance from the centre of such bustee or tenanted land.

16. The owner of any hut, enclosure, or other erection, or trees, which have been removed under this Act, shall be entitled to receive compensation for the same.

The amount of such compensation shall be determined by the Commissioners at a meeting.

One-half of the same shall be payable by the Commissioners, and the other half by the owner, lessee, or farmer of the bustee or tenanted land.

17. Except as provided in section 7 of this Act, any person who is dissatisfied with any order made under this Act may appeal to the Commissioners at a meeting, and the decision of a majority at such meeting shall be final.

18. The Commissioners may, by a notice in writing, require the owner or occupier of any holding to furnish, within a time to be specified in the notice, a list of the number of persons residing in such holding.

19. Whoever, being the owner or occupier of any holding, fails to forward such list within the time specified in such notice after being required in that behalf by the Commissioners, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding twenty rupees.

20. This Act shall come into force from the date on which it may be published in the Calcutta Gazette with the assent of the Governor-General.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The provisions of section 244 of Bengal Act IV of 1876 allow the Municipal Commissioners of Calcutta to undertake, by an establishment under their control, the performance of the duties usually performed by tollah mehters, but there is no similar provision in the Bengal Municipal Act V of 1876.

The Commissioners of the Suburban and Howrah Municipalities are desirous of legalizing in those municipalities the system of removing offensive matter by properly organised establishments under their control. The present Bill meets their wishes by empowering the Commissioners of any first class municipality at a meeting to introduce such a system, and to levy a rate for the payment of the necessary establishment. Provision is also made for the erection of latrines in native bustees.

SCHEDULE.

An Act to amend the law relating to Forests, the transit of forest-produce, and the duty leviable on timber.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the law relating to Forests, the transit of forest-produce and the duty leviable on timber; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

1. This Act may be called "The Indian Forest Act, 1878:"

It shall come into force at once in the territories respectively administered by the Governor of Bombay in Council, the Lieutenant-Governors of the Lower Provinces, the North-Western Provinces, and the Panjáb, (except the District of Hazára), and the Chief Commissioners of Oudh, the Central Provinces and Assam.

And any other Local Government may from time to time, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, extend, by notification in the local official Gazette, this Act to all or any of the territories for the time being under its administration.

On and from the date on which this Act comes into force in any of the said territories, the enactments mentioned in the schedule hereto annexed shall be repealed in such territories. But all rules made under or validated by any of the said enactments and in force at the date of such repeal shall, so far as they are consistent with this Act, be deemed to have been made and published hereunder.

2. In this Act, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context,—

"Forest-officer" means any person whom the Governor General in Council, or the Local Government or any officer empowered by the Governor General in Council or the Local Government in this behalf, may from time to time appoint by name, or as holding an office, to carry out all or any of the purposes of this Act, or to do anything required by this Act or any rule made under this Act to be done by a Forest-officer:

"Tree." "Tree" includes bamboos, stamps and brushwood:

"Timber" includes trees and bamboos when they have fallen or have been felled, and all wood, whether cut up, or fashioned or hollowed-out for cart-wheels, mortars, canoes or other purposes or not:

"Forest-produce" includes the following when found in, or brought from, a forest, that is to say,— minerals (including limestone and laterite), surface-soil, trees, timber, grass, peat, canes, creepers, reeds, leaves, moss, flowers, fruits, roots, juice, catechu, bark, honey, wax, lac, caoutchouc, gum, wood-oil, grass-oil, resin, varnish, silk-worms and cocoons, shells, skins, tusks, bones and horns:

"Forest-offence" means an offence punishable under this Act, or under any rule made under this Act:

"Cattle" includes elephants, camels, buffaloes, horses, mares, geldings, ponies, colts, fillies, mules, asses, pigs, rams, ewes, sheep, lambs, goats and kids:

"River" includes streams, canals, creeks and other channels, natural or artificial.

CHAPTER II.

OF RESERVED FORESTS.

3. The Local Government may from time to time constitute any forest-land or waste-land which is the property of Government, or over which the Government has proprietary rights, or to the whole or any part of the forest-produce of which the Government is entitled, a Reserved Forest in the manner hereinafter provided.

4. Whenever it is proposed to constitute any land a Reserved Forest, the Local Government may publish a notification in the local official Gazette—

(a) declaring that it is proposed to constitute such land a reserved forest;

(b) specifying the limits of such forest; and

(c) appointing an officer (hereinafter called "the Forest Settlement Officer") to inquire into and determine the existence, nature and extent of any rights alleged to exist in favour of any person in or over any land comprised within such limits, or in or over any forest-produce, and to deal with the same as provided in this chapter.

Explanation 1.—For the purpose of clause (b) of this section, it shall be sufficient to describe the limits of the forest by roads, rivers, ridges or other well-known or readily intelligible boundaries.

The officer appointed under clause (c) of this section shall ordinarily be a person not holding any forest-office except that of Forest Settlement Officer.

Nothing in this section shall prevent the Local Government from appointing any number of officers not exceeding three, not more than one of whom shall be a person holding any forest-office except as aforesaid, to perform the duties of a Forest Settlement Officer under this Act.

5. During the interval between the publication of such notification and the date fixed by the notification under section nineteen, no right shall be acquired in or over the land comprised in the notification, except by succession or under a grant or contract in writing made or entered into by or on behalf of Government or some person in whom such right was vested when the former notification was issued; and no fresh encroachings for cultivation or for any other purpose shall be made in such land.

6. When a notification has been issued under section four, the Forest Settlement Officer shall publish in the language of the country, in every town and village in the neighbourhood of the land comprised therein, a proclamation—

(a) specifying the limits of the proposed forest;

(b) explaining the consequences which, as herein-after provided, will ensue on the reservation of such forest; and

(c) fixing a period of not less than three months from the date of such proclamation, and requiring every person claiming any right mentioned in section four or five either to present to such officer within such period a written notice specifying, or to appear before him and state, the nature of such right and the amount and particulars of the compensation (if any) claimed in respect thereof.

7. The Forest Settlement Officer shall take down in writing all statements made under section six, and shall, at some convenient place, enquire into all claims duly preferred under that section, and the existence of any rights mentioned in section four or five and not claimed under section six, so far as the same may be ascertainable from the records of Government and the evidence of any persons likely to be acquainted with the same.

8. For the purposes of such enquiry, the Forest Settlement Officer may exercise the following powers, that is to say:—

(a) power to enter, by himself or any officer authorized by him for the purpose, upon any land, and to survey, demarcate, and make a map of the same; and

(b) the powers of a Civil Court in the trial of suits.

9. Rights in respect of which no claim has been preferred under section six, and of the existence of which no knowledge has been acquired by enquiry under section seven, shall be extinguished, unless before the notification under section nineteen is published the person claiming them satisfies the Forest Settlement Officer that he had sufficient cause for not preferring such claim within the period fixed under section six.

10. In the case of a claim to a right in or over any land, other than a right of way or pasture or to forest-produce or a watercourse, the Forest Settlement Officer shall pass an order admitting or rejecting the same in whole or in part.

If such claim is admitted in whole or in part, the Forest Settlement Officer shall either (1) exclude such land from the limits of the proposed Forest; or (2) come to an agreement with the owner thereof for the surrender of his rights; or (3) proceed to acquire such land in the manner provided by the Land Acquisition Act, 1870.

For the purpose of so acquiring such land—

(a) the Forest Settlement Officer shall be deemed to be a Collector proceeding under the Land Acquisition Act, 1870;

(b) the claimant shall be deemed to be a person interested and appearing before him in pursuance of a notice given under section one of that Act;

(c) the provisions of the preceding sections of that Act shall be deemed to have been complied with; and

(d) the Collector, with the consent of the claimant, or the Court, with the consent of both parties, may award compensation in land, or partly in land and partly in money.

11. In the case of a claim to rights of pasture or to forest-produce, the Forest Settlement Officer shall pass an order admitting or rejecting the same in whole or in part.

12. The Forest Settlement Officer, when passing any order under section eleven, shall record, so far as may be practicable,—

(a) the name, father's name, caste, residence and occupation of the person claiming the right;

(b) the designation, position and area of all fields or groups of fields (if any), and the designation and position of all buildings (if any), in respect of which the exercise of such rights is claimed.

13. If the Forest Settlement Officer admits in whole or in part any claim under section eleven, he shall also record the extent to which the claim is so admitted, specifying the number and description of the cattle which the claimant is from time to time entitled to graze in the forest, the season during which such pasture is permitted, the quantity of timber and other forest-produce which he is from time to time authorised to take or receive, or such other particulars as the case may require. He shall also record whether the timber or other forest-produce obtained by the exercise of the rights claimed may be sold or bartered.

14. After making such record, the Forest Settlement Officer shall, to the best of his ability, and having due regard to the maintenance of the Reserved Forest in respect of which the claim is made, pass such orders as will ensure the continued exercise of the rights so admitted. For this purpose, the Forest Settlement Officer may—

(a) set out some other forest-tract of sufficient extent, and in a locality reasonably convenient for the purposes of such claimants, and record an order conferring upon them a right of pasture or to forest-produce (as the case may be) to the extent so admitted; or

(b) so alter the limits of the proposed Forest as to exclude forest-land of sufficient extent, and in a locality reasonably convenient, for the purposes of the claimants; or

(c) record an order, continuing to such claimants a right of pasture or to forest-produce (as the case may be), to the extent so admitted, at such seasons, within such portions of the proposed Forest and under such rules as may from time to time be prescribed by the Local Government.

15. In case the Forest Settlement Officer finds it impossible, having due regard to the maintenance of the Reserved Forest, to make such settlement under section fourteen as shall ensure the continued exercise of the said rights to the extent so admitted, he shall (subject to such rules as the Local Government may from time to time prescribe in this behalf) commute such rights, either by the payment to such persons of a sum of money in lieu thereof, or by the grant of land, or in such other manner as he thinks fit.

16. Any person who has made a claim under this Act, or any Forest-officer or other person generally or specially empowered by the Local Government in this behalf, may, within three months from the date of the order passed on such claim by the Forest Settlement Officer under section ten, eleven, fourteen or fifteen, present an appeal from such order to such officer of the Revenue Department, of rank not lower than that of a Collector or Deputy Commissioner, as the Local Government may from time to time, by notification in the local official Gazette, appoint by name, or by holding an office, to hear appeals from such orders.

Provided that if the Local Government establishes (as it is hereby empowered to do) a Court (hereinafter called the Forest Court) composed of three persons to be appointed by the Local Government, such appeals shall be presented to such Court.

17. Every appeal under section sixteen shall be made by petition in writing, and may be delivered to the Forest Settlement Officer, who shall forward it without delay to the authority competent to hear the same.

If the appeal be to an officer appointed under section sixteen, it shall be heard in the manner prescribed for the time being for the hearing of appeals in matters relating to land-revenue.

If the appeal be to the Forest-court, the Court shall fix a day and a convenient place in the neighbourhood of the proposed forest for hearing the appeal, and shall give notice thereof to the parties, and shall hear such appeal accordingly.

The order passed thereon by such officer or Court, or by the majority of the members of such Court, shall be final, subject to revision by the Local Government.

18. The Local Government, or any person who has made a claim under this Act, may appoint any person to appear, plead and act on its or his behalf before the Forest Settlement Officer, or the appellate officer or Court, in the course of any inquiry or appeal under this Act.

19. When the following events have occurred (namely),—

(a) the period fixed under section six for preferring claims has elapsed, and all claims (if any) made within such period have been disposed of by the Forest Settlement Officer; and

(b) if such claims have been made, and the period limited by section sixteen for appealing from the orders passed on such claims has elapsed, and all appeals (if any) presented within such period have been disposed of by the appellate officer or Court; and

(c) all lands (if any) to be included in the proposed forest, which the Forest Settlement Officer has, under section ten, elected to acquire under the Land Acquisition Act, 1870, have become vested in the Government under section sixteen of that Act, the Local Government may publish a notification in the local official Gazette, specifying definitely, according to boundary-marks erected or otherwise, the limits of the forest which it is intended to reserve, and declaring the same to be reserved from a date fixed by such notification.

From the date so fixed, such forest shall be deemed to be a Reserved Forest.

20. The Forest-officer shall, before the date fixed by such notification, cause a translation thereof into the language of the country to be published in every town and village in the neighbourhood of the forest.

21. The Local Government may, within five years from the publication of any notification under section nineteen, revise any arrangement made under section fourteen or seventeen, and may, for this purpose, rescind or modify any order made under section fourteen or seventeen, and direct that any one of the proceedings specified in section fourteen be taken in lieu of any other of such proceedings, or that the rights admitted under section eleven be commuted under section fifteen.

22. No right of any description shall be acquired in or over a Reserved Forest, except by succession or under a grant or contract in writing made by or on behalf of the Government or of some person in whom such right was vested when the notification under section nineteen was issued.

23. Notwithstanding anything contained in section twenty-two, no right continued under section fourteen, clause (c), shall be alienated by way of grant, sale, lease, mortgage or otherwise, without the sanction of the Local Government; provided that when any such right is appendant to any land or house, it may be sold or otherwise alienated with such land or house.

No timber or other forest-produce obtained in exercise of any such right shall be sold or bartered except to such extent as may have been admitted in the order recorded under section thirteen.

24. The Forest-officer may from time to time with the previous sanction of the Local Government or of any officer duly authorized in that behalf, stop any public or private way or water-course in a Reserved Forest; provided, that a substitute for the way or water-course so stopped, which the Local Government deems to be reasonably convenient, already exists, or has been provided or constructed by the Forest-officer in lieu thereof.

25. Any person who—

- (a) makes any clearing prohibited by section five, or
- (b) sets fire to a Reserved Forest, or kindles any fire in such manner as to endanger the same; or who, in a Reserved Forest,
- (c) kindles, keeps or carries any fire except at such seasons as the Forest-officer may from time to time notify in this behalf;
- (d) trespasses or pastures cattle or permits cattle to trespass;

(e) causes any damage by negligence in felling any tree or cutting or dragging any timber ;

(f) fells, girdles, lops, taps or burns any tree, or strips-off the bark or leaves from, or otherwise damages, the same ;

(g) quarries stone, burns lime or charcoal, or collects, subjects to any manufacturing process or removes, any forest-produce ;

(h) clears or breaks up any land for cultivation, or any other purpose ; or,

(i) in contravention of any rules which the Local Government may from time to time prescribe, kills or catches elephants, hunts, shoots, fishes, poisons water, or sets traps or snares ;

shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine not exceeding five hundred rupees, or with both, in addition to such compensation for damage done to the forest as the convicting Court may direct to be paid.

Nothing in this section shall be deemed to prohibit (a) any act done by permission in writing of the Forest-officer, or under any rule made by the Local Government ; or (b) the exercise of any right continued under section fourteen, clause (c), or created by grant or contract in writing made by or on behalf of Government under section twenty-two.

Whenever fire is caused wilfully or by gross negligence in a Reserved Forest, the Local Government may (notwithstanding that any penalty has been inflicted under this section) direct that in such forest or any portion thereof the exercise of all rights of pasture or to forest-produce shall be suspended for such period as it thinks fit.

26. The Local Government may, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, by notification in the local official Gazette, direct that, from a date fixed by such notification, any forest or any portion thereof reserved under this Act shall cease to be a Reserved Forest.

From the date so fixed, such forest or portion shall cease to be reserved ; but the rights (if any) which have been extinguished therein shall not revive in consequence of such cessation.

CHAPTER III.

OF VILLAGE-FORESTS.

27. The Local Government may from time to time assign to any village-community the rights of Government in, or over any land which has been constituted a Reserved Forest, and may cancel such assignment. All forests so assigned shall be called Village forests.

The Local Government may from time to time make rules for regulating the management of Village-forests, prescribing the conditions under which the community to which any such assignment is made may be provided with timber or other forest-produce, or pasture, and their duties for the protection and improvement of such forest.

All provisions of this Act relating to Reserved Forests shall (so far as they are consistent with the provisions relating to Village-forests.

CHAPTER IV.

OF PROTECTED FORESTS.

28. The Local Government may from time to time, by notification in the local official Gazette, declare the provisions of this chapter applicable to any forest-land or waste-land which is not included in a Reserved Forest, but which is the property of Government, or over which the Government has proprietary rights, or to the whole or any part of the forest-produce of which the Government is entitled.

The land and waste-lands comprised in any such notification shall be called a "Protected Forest."

No such notification shall be made unless the nature and extent of the rights of Government and of private persons in or over the forest-land or waste-land comprised therein have been enquired into and recorded in a survey or settlement, or in such other manner as the Local Government thinks sufficient.

Every such record shall be presumed to be correct until the contrary is proved.

Provided that, if in the case of any forest-land or waste-land, the Local Government thinks that such enquiry and record are necessary, but that they will occupy such length of time as that the rights of Government will in the meantime be endangered, the Local Government may (pending such enquiry and record) declare such land to be a protected forest, but so as not to abridge or affect any existing rights of individuals or communities.

29. The Local Government may from time to time, by notification in the local official Gazette,—

(a) declare any class of trees in a protected forest, or any trees in any such forest, to be reserved from a date fixed by such notification ;

(b) declare that a portion of such forest be closed for such term not exceeding twenty years as the Local Government thinks fit, and that the rights of private persons (if any) over such portion shall be suspended during such term : provided that the remainder of such forest be sufficient, and in a locality reasonably convenient, for the due exercise of the rights suspended in the portion so closed ;

(c) prohibit, from a date fixed as aforesaid, the quarrying of stone, or the burning of lime or charcoal, or the collection or subjection to any manufacturing process, or removal, of any forest-produce, in any such forest, and the breaking up or clearing for cultivation, for building, for herding cattle or for any other purpose, any land in any such forest : and

(d) alter or cancel such declaration or prohibition.

30. The Collector or Deputy Commissioner of the district shall cause a translation into the language of the district, of every notification issued under section twenty-nine, to be affixed in a conspicuous place in every town and village in the neighbourhood of the forest comprised in the notification.

31. The Local Government may from time to time make rules to regulate the following matters:—

Power to make rules for protected forests.

(a) the cutting, sawing, conversion and removal of trees and timber, and the collection, manufacture and removal of forest-produce, from protected forests;

(b) the granting of licenses to the inhabitants of towns and villages in the vicinity of protected forests to take trees, timber or other forest-produce for their own use, and the production and return of such licenses by such persons;

(c) the granting of licenses to persons for cutting or removing trees or timber or other forest-produce from such forests for the purposes of trade, and the production and return of such licenses by such persons;

(d) the payments (if any) to be made by the persons mentioned in clauses (b) and (c) of this section, for permission to cut such trees, or to collect and remove such timber or other forest-produce;

(e) the other payments, if any, to be made by them in respect of such trees, timber and produce, and the places where such payments shall be made;

(f) the examination of forest-produce passing out of such forests;

(g) the clearing and breaking up of land for cultivation or other purposes in such forests;

(h) the protection from fire of timber lying in such forests and of trees reserved under section twenty-nine;

(i) the cutting of grass and pasturing of cattle in such forests;

(j) killing or catching elephants, hunting, shooting, fishing, poisoning water, and setting traps or snares in such forests;

(k) the protection and management of any portion of a forest closed under section twenty-nine;

(l) the exercise of rights referred to in section twenty-eight.

32. Any person who commits any of the following offences:—

(a) fells, girdles, lops, taps or burns any tree reserved under section twenty-nine, or strips off the bark or leaves from, or otherwise damages, any such tree;

(b) contrary to any prohibition under section twenty-nine, quarries any stone, or burns any lime or charcoal, or collects, subjects to any manufacturing process, or removes, any forest-produce;

(c) contrary to any prohibition under section twenty-nine, breaks up or clears for cultivation or any other purpose any land in any protected forest;

(d) sets fire to such forest, or kindles a fire without taking all reasonable precautions to prevent its spreading to any trees reserved under section twenty-nine, whether standing, fallen or felled, or to any closed portion of such forest;

(e) leaves burning any fire kindled by him in the vicinity of any such trees or closed portion;

(f) fells any tree or drags any timber so as to damage any tree reserved as aforesaid;

(g) permits cattle to damage any such tree;

(h) infringes any rule made under section thirty-one,

shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, or with both.

33. Nothing in this chapter shall be deemed to prohibit any act done with the permission in writing of the Forest-officer, or in accordance with rules made under section thirty-one, or (except as regards any portion of a forest closed under section twenty-nine) in the exercise of any right recorded under section twenty-eight.

CHAPTER V.

FORESTS UNDER CONSERVANCY ADMINISTRATION WHEN THIS ACT COMES INTO FORCE.

34. Within twelve months from the date on which this Act comes into force in the territories administered by any Local Government, such Government shall, after consideration of the rights of the Government and private persons in all forest-lands or waste-lands then under its executive control for purposes of Forest Conservancy, determine which of such lands (if any) can, according to justice, equity and good conscience, be classed as Reserved Forests, or Protected Forests under this Act, and declare, by notification in the local official Gazette, any lands so classed to be Reserved or Protected Forests, as the case may be:

Provided that such declaration shall not affect any rights of the Government or private persons to or over any land or forest-produce in any such forest, which have, previous to the date of such declaration, been enquired into, settled and recorded in a manner which the Local Government thinks sufficient:

Provided also that if any such rights have not on such date been so enquired into, settled and recorded, the Local Government shall direct that the same shall be enquired into, settled and recorded in the manner provided by this Act for Reserved or Protected Forests, as the case may be; and until such enquiry, settlement and record have been completed, no such declaration shall abridge or affect such rights.

CHAPTER VI.

OF THE CONTROL OVER FORESTS AND LANDS NOT BEING THE PROPERTY OF GOVERNMENT.

35. The Local Government may from time to time, by notification in the local official Gazette, regulate or prohibit in any forest or waste-land—

(a) the breaking up or clearing of land for cultivation;

(b) the pasturing of cattle;

(c) the firing or clearing of the vegetation; when such regulation or prohibition appears necessary for any of the following purposes:—

First.—For protection against storms, winds, rolling stones, floods and avalanches;

Second.—For the preservation of the soil on the ridges and slopes, and in the valleys, of hilly tracts, the prevention of landslides and of the formation of ravines and torrents, and the protection of land against erosion, or the deposit thereon of sand, stones or gravel;

Third.—For the maintenance of a water-supply in springs, rivers and tanks;

Fourth.—For the protection of roads, bridges, railways and other lines of communication;

Fifth.—For the preservation of the public health;

and may alter or cancel such notification.

The Local Government may, for any such purpose, construct at its own expense, in or upon any forest or waste-land, such work as it thinks fit:

Provided that no such notification shall be made or work begun until after the issue of a notice to the owner of such forest or land, calling on him to shew cause, within a reasonable period to be specified in such notice, why such notification should not be made or work constructed, and until his objections (if any) and any evidence he may produce in support of the same have been heard by an officer duly appointed in that behalf, and have been considered by the Local Government.

36. In case of neglect of, or wilful disobedience

Power to assume management of forests. to, any regulation or prohibition under section thirty five, or if the purposes of any work to be constructed under that section so require, the Local Government may, after notice in writing to the owner of such forest or land, and after considering his objections (if any), place the same under the control of a Forest-officer, and may declare that all or any of the provisions of this Act relating to Reserved Forests shall apply to such forest or land.

The nett profits (if any) arising from the management of such forest or land shall be paid to the said proprietor.

37. In any case under this chapter in which Expropriation of forests in certain cases. the Local Government considers that, in lieu of placing the forest or land under the control of a Forest-officer, the same should be acquired for public purposes, the Local Government may proceed to acquire it in the manner prescribed by the Land Acquisition Act, 1870.

The owner of any forest or land comprised in any notification under section thirty-five may, at any time not less than three or more than twelve years from the date thereof, require that such forest or land shall be acquired for public purposes, and the Local Government shall acquire such forest or land accordingly.

38. The owner of any land or, if there be more

Protection of forests at request of owners. than one owner thereof, the owners of shares therein amounting in the aggregate to at least two-thirds thereof may, with a view to the formation or conservation of forests thereon, represent in writing to the Collector or Deputy Commissioner their desire—

(a) that such land be managed on their behalf by the Forest-officer as a Reserved or a Protected Forest on such terms as may be mutually agreed upon; or

(b) that all or any of the provisions of this Act be applied to such land.

In either case, the Local Government may, by notification in the local official Gazette, apply to such land such provisions of this Act as it thinks suitable to the circumstances thereof and as may be desired by the applicant.

Any such notification may be altered or cancelled by a like notification.

CHAPTER VII.

OF THE DUTY ON TIMBER.

39. The Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, may levy a duty in such manner, at such places, and at such rates, as it may from time to time prescribe by notification in the local official Gazette on all timber—

(a) which is produced in British India, and in respect of which the Government has any right;

(b) which is brought from any place beyond the frontier of British India.

In every case in which such duty is directed to be levied ad valorem, the Local Government may, with the like sanction, from time to time, by like notification, the value on which such duty shall be assessed.

All duties on timber, which, at the time when this Act comes into force in any territory, are levied therein under the authority of the Local Government, shall be deemed to be and to have been duly levied under the provisions of this Act.

40. Nothing in this chapter shall be deemed to limit the amount (if any) to purchase-money or chargeable as purchase-money or royalty on any timber or other forest-produce, although the same is levied on such timber or produce while in transit, in the same manner as duty is levied.

CHAPTER VIII.

OF THE CONTROL OF TIMBER AND OTHER FOREST-PRODUCE IN TRANSIT.

41. The control of all rivers and their banks as regards the floating of timber, as well as the control of all timber and other forest-produce in transit by land or water, is vested in the Local Government, and it may from time to time make rules to regulate the transit of all timber and other forest-produce.

Such rules may (among other matters)—

(a) prescribe the routes by which alone timber and other forest-produce may be imported, exported or moved, into, from, or within, British India;

(b) prohibit the import and export or moving of such timber or other produce without a pass from an officer duly authorized to issue the same, or otherwise than in accordance with the conditions of such pass;

(c) provide for the issue, production and return of such passes and for the payment of fees therefor;

(d) provide for the stoppage, reporting, examination and marking of timber or other forest-produce in transit, in respect of which there is reason to believe that any money is payable to Government on account of the price thereof, or on account of any duty, fee, royalty or charge due thereon, or to which it is desirable for the purposes of this Act to affix a mark;

(e) provide for the establishment and regulation of depôts to which such timber or other produce

shall be taken by those in charge of it for examination, or for the payment of such money, or in order that such marks may be affixed to it, and the conditions under which such timber or other produce shall be brought to, stored at, and removed from, such depôt ;

(f) prohibit the closing up or obstructing of the channel or banks of any river used for the transit of timber or other forest-produce, and the throwing of grass, brushwood, branches and leaves into any such river, or any act which may cause such river to be closed or obstructed ;

(g) provide for the prevention and removal of any obstruction of the channel or banks of any such river, and for recovering the cost of such prevention or removal from the person whose acts or negligence necessitated the same ;

(h) prohibit absolutely or subject to conditions, within specified local limits, the establishment of saw-pits, the converting, cutting, burning, concealing or marking of timber, the altering or effacing of any marks on the same, and the possession or carrying of marking-hammers or other implements used for marking timber ;

(i) regulate the use of property-marks for timber, and the registration of such marks ; prescribe the time for which such registration shall hold good ; limit the number of such marks that may be registered by any one person, and provide for the levy of fees for such registration.

42. The Local Government may by such rules prescribe as penalties for the infringement thereof imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, or both.

Double penalties may be inflicted in cases where the offence is committed after sunset and before sunrise, or after preparation for resistance to lawful authority, or if the offender has been previously convicted of a like offence.

43. The Government shall not be responsible for any loss or damage which may occur in respect of any timber or other forest-produce while at a depôt established under a rule made under section forty-one, or while detained elsewhere for the purposes of this Act ; and no Forest-officer shall be responsible for any such loss or damage unless he causes such loss or damage negligently, maliciously or fraudulently.

44. In case of any accident or emergency involving danger to any property at any such depôt, every person employed at such depôt, whether by the Government or by any private person, shall render assistance to any Forest-officer or Police-officer demanding his aid in averting such danger and securing such property from damage or loss.

CHAPTER IX.

OF THE COLLECTION OF DRIFT AND STRANDED TIMBER.

45. All timber found adrift, beached, stranded, or sunk ;

Certain kinds of timber to be deemed property of Government until this thereto proved, and may be collected accordingly.

all wood or timber bearing marks which have not been registered under section forty-one, or on which the marks have been obliterated, altered or defaced by fire or otherwise, and in such areas as the Local Government directs, all unmarked wood and timber, shall be deemed to be the property of Government unless and until any person establishes his right and title thereto, as provided in this chapter.

Such timber may be collected by any Forest-officer or other person entitled to collect the same by virtue of any rule made under section fifty-one, and may be brought to such depôts as the Forest-officer may from time to time notify as depôts for the reception of drift-timber.

The Local Government may, by notification in the local official Gazette, exempt any class of timber from the provisions of this section, and withdraw such exemption.

46. Public notice shall from time to time be given by the Forest-officer, of timber collected under section forty-five. Such notice shall contain a description of the timber, and shall require any person claiming the same to present to such officer, within a period not less than two months from the date of such notice, a written statement of such claim.

47. When any such statement is presented as aforesaid, the Forest-officer may, after making such enquiry as he thinks fit, either reject the claim after recording his reasons for so doing, or deliver the timber to the claimant.

If such timber is claimed by more than one person, the Forest-officer may either deliver the same to any of such persons whom he deems entitled thereto, or may refer the claimants to the Civil Courts, and retain the timber pending the receipt of an order from any such Court for its disposal.

Any person whose claim has been rejected under this section may, within two months from the date of such rejection, institute a suit to recover possession of the timber claimed by him ; but no person shall recover any compensation or costs against the Government, or against any Forest-officer, on account of such rejection, or the detention or removal of any timber, or the delivery thereof to any other person under this section.

No such timber shall be subject to process of any Civil, Criminal, or Revenue Court until it has been delivered, or a suit has been brought, as provided in this section.

48. If no such statement is presented as aforesaid, or if the claimant omits to prefer his claim in the manner and within the period prescribed by the notice issued under section forty-six, or, on such claim having been so preferred by him and having been rejected, omits to institute a suit to recover possession of such timber within the further period limited by section forty-seven, the ownership of such timber shall vest in the Government, or when such timber has been delivered to another person under section forty-seven, in such other person, free from all encumbrances.

49. The Government shall not be responsible for any loss or damage which may occur in respect of any timber collected under section forty-five, and no Forest-officer shall be responsible for any such loss or damage, unless he causes such loss or damage negligently, maliciously or fraudulently.

50. No person shall be entitled to recover possession of any timber collected or delivered as aforesaid until he has paid to the Forest-officer or other person entitled to receive it such sum on account thereof as may be due under any rule made in pursuance of section fifty-one.

Payments to be made by claimant before timber is delivered to him.

51. The Local Government may from time to time make rules to regulate the following matters (namely) :—

Power to make rules and prescribe penalties.

(a) the salving, collection and disposal of all timber mentioned in section forty-five;

(b) the use and registration of boats used in salving and collecting timber;

(c) the amounts to be paid for salving, collecting, moving, storing and disposing of such timber;

(d) the use and registration of hammers and other instruments to be used for marking such timber.

The Local Government may from time to time prescribe, as penalties for the infringement of any rules made under this section, imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, or both.

CHAPTER X.

PENALTIES AND PROCEDURE.

52. When there is reason to believe that a forest-offence has been committed in respect of any forest-produce, such produce, together seizes any property on pretence of seizing property liable to confiscation under this Act, shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, or with both.

62. Whoever, with intent to cause damage or injury to the public or to any person, or to cause wrongful gain as defined in the Indian Penal Code,—

Penalty for counterfeiting or defacing marks on trees and timber and for altering boundary-marks.

(a) knowingly counterfeits upon any timber or standing tree a mark used by Forest-officers to indicate that such timber or tree is the property of the Government or of some person, or that it may lawfully be cut or removed by some person; or

(b) alters, defaces or obliterates any mark placed on a tree or on timber by or under the authority of a Forest-officer; or shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to two years, or with fine, or with both.

63. Any Forest-officer or Police-officer may, without orders from a Magistrate and without a warrant, arrest any person against whom a reasonable suspicion exists of his having been concerned in any forest-offence punishable with imprisonment for one month or upwards.

Every officer making an arrest under this section shall without unnecessary delay take or send the person arrested before the Magistrate having jurisdiction in the case.

Nothing in this section shall be deemed to authorize such arrest for any act which is an offence under chapter IV of this Act, unless such act has been prohibited under section twenty-nine clause (c).

64. Every Forest-officer and Police-officer shall prevent, and may interfere for the purpose of preventing, the commission of any forest-offence.

Power to prevent commission of offence.

65. The Magistrate of the District, and any Magistrate of the first class specially empowered in this behalf by the Local Government, may try summarily, under the Code of Criminal Procedure, any forest-offence punishable only with imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months, or fine not exceeding five hundred rupees, or both.

Power to try offences summarily.

66. Nothing in this Act shall be deemed to prevent any person from being prosecuted under any other law for any act or omission which constitutes an offence against this Act or the rules made under it, or from being liable under such other law to any higher punishment or penalty than that provided by the rules made under this Act: Provided that no person shall be punished twice for the same offence.

67. The Local Government may from time to time, by notification in the local official Gazette, empower any Forest-officer by name, or as holding an office, to accept from any person against whom a reasonable suspicion exists that he has committed any forest-offence other than an offence under section sixty-one or section sixty-

(a) power to enter upon any land and to survey, demarcate and make a map of the same;

(b) the powers of a Civil Court to compel the attendance of witnesses and the production of documents;

(c) power to issue a search-warrant under the Code of Criminal Procedure;

(d) power to hold an enquiry into forest-offences, and, in the course of such enquiry, to receive and record evidence.

Local Government may invest Forest-officers with certain powers.

Any evidence recorded under clause (d) of this section shall be admissible in any subsequent trial before a Magistrate, provided that it has been taken in the presence of the accused person.

72. All Forest-officers shall be deemed to be public servants within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code.

Forest-officers deemed public servants.

73. No suit shall lie against any public servant for anything done by him in good faith under this Act.

Indemnity for acts done in good faith.

74. Except with the permission in writing of the Local Government, no Forest-officer shall, as principal or agent, trade in timber or other forest-produce, or be or become interested in any lease of any forest or in any contract for working any forest, whether in British or Foreign territory.

Forest-officers not to trade.

CHAPTER XIII.

SUBSIDIARY RULES.

75. The Local Government may from time to time make rules.

Additional powers to make rules.

(a) to prescribe and limit the powers and duties of any Forest-officer under this Act;

(b) to regulate the rewards to be paid to officers and informers out of the proceeds of fines and confiscations under this Act;

(c) for the preservation, reproduction and disposal of trees and timber belonging to Government, but grown on lands belonging to or in the occupation of private persons; and

(d) generally to carry out the provisions of this Act.

76. Any person breaking any rule under this Act, for the breach of which no special penalty is provided, shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to one month, or fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, or both.

Penalties for breach of rules.

77. All rules made by the Local Government under this Act shall be published in the local official Gazette, and shall thereupon, so far as they are consistent with this Act, have the force of law.

Rules when to have force of law.

Provided that no rule made under section twenty-seven, thirty-one or forty-one shall be so published without the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council.

CHAPTER XIV.

MISCELLANEOUS.

78. Every person who exercises any right in a Reserve or Protected Forest, or who is permitted to take any forest-produce from, or to cut and remove timber or to pasture cattle in, such forest, and every person who is employed by any such person in such forest, and every person in any village contiguous to such forest, who is employed by the Government, or who receives emoluments from the Government for services to be performed to the community, shall be bound to furnish without unnecessary delay to the nearest Forest-officer or Police-officer any information he may possess respecting the commission of, or intention to commit, any forest-offence, and shall assist any Forest-officer or Police-officer demanding his aid

Persons bound to assist Forest-officer and Police-officers.

(a) in extinguishing any fire occurring in such forest;

(b) in preventing any fire which may occur in the vicinity of such forest from spreading to such forest;

(c) in preventing the commission in such forest of any forest-offence; and

(d) when there is reason to believe that any such offence has been committed in such forest, in discovering and arresting the offender;

79. If the Government and any person be jointly interested in any forest or waste-land, or in the joint property of Government and other persons, the produce thereof, the Local Government may from time to time either

(a) undertake the management of such forest, waste-land or produce, according to such person for his interest in the same; or

(b) issue such regulations for the management of the forest, waste-land or produce by the person so jointly interested as it deems necessary for the management thereof and the interests of all parties therein.

When the Local Government undertakes, under this section, the management of any forest, waste-land or produce, it may from time to time, by notification in the local official Gazette, declare that any of the provisions contained in chapters II and IV of this Act shall apply to such forest, waste-land or produce, and thereupon such provisions shall apply accordingly.

80. If any person be entitled to a share in the produce of any forest which is the property of Government or over which the Government has proprietary rights, or to any part of the forest-produce of which the Government is entitled, upon the condition of duly performing any service connected with such forest, such share shall be liable to confiscation in the event of the fact being established to the satisfaction of the Local Government that such service is no longer so performed: Provided that no such share shall be confiscated until the person entitled thereto, and the evidence (if any) which he may produce in proof of the due performance of such service, have been heard by an officer duly appointed in that behalf by the Local Government.

Failure to perform service for which a share in produce of Government forest is enjoyed.

81. All money payable to the Government under this Act, or under any rule made under this Act, or on account of the price of any forest-produce, or of expenses incurred in the execution of this Act in respect of such produce, may, if not paid when due, be recovered under the law for the time being in force as if it were an

Recovery of money due to Government.

82. When any such money is payable for or in respect of any forest-produce, the amount thereof shall be deemed to be a first charge on such produce, and such produce may be taken possession of by a Forest-officer until such amount has been paid.

If such amount is not paid when due, the Forest-officer may sell such produce by public auction, and the proceeds of the sale shall be applied first in discharging such amount.

The surplus (if any), if not claimed within two months from the date of the sale by the person entitled thereto, shall be forfeited to Her Majesty.

83. Whenever it appears to the Local Government that any land is required for any of the purposes of this Act, such land shall be deemed to be needed for a public purpose within the meaning of the Land Acquisition Act, 1870, section four.

- C. Form of Bond for removal of Spirit from licensed Distillery.

An Act to consolidate and amend the law relating to the levy of Sea Customs-duties.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the law relating to the levy of Sea Customs-duties; It is enacted as follows:—

Preamble.

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

1. This Act may be called "The Sea Customs Act, 1878."
- It extends to the whole of British India, and shall come into force on the first day of April 1878.
2. The Acts mentioned in the first schedule hereto annexed are repealed to the extent specified therein.
- Repeal of enactments.

All references to any of the said Acts, in Acts subsequently thereto, shall be read as if made to the corresponding provision of this Act.

All appointments, rules, regulations, declarations, exemptions, and delegations made, conferred, forms and conditions prescribed, fines, fees, rates, and periods fixed, and notifications, instructions, directions, prohibitions, licenses and licenses issued, under any Act hereby repealed shall, if the same are in force at the time when this Act comes into force, be deemed to have been made, conferred, prescribed, fixed, and issued under this Act, in so far as they are consistent herewith.

3. In this Act, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context—
- Interpretation.

(a) "Chief Customs-Authority" denotes the person authorized to exercise, subject to the Local Government, the chief control in matters relating to Sea-customs in any place in which this Act operates:

(b) "Chief Customs-Officer" denotes the Chief Executive Officer of Sea-customs for any Port to which this Act applies:

(c) "Customs-collector" includes every officer of Customs for the time being in separate charge of a Custom-house, or duly authorized to perform all, or any special, duties of an officer so in charge:

(d) "Customs-port" means any Port except Aden declared under section 11 to be a Port for the shipment and landing of goods:

(e) "Foreign Port" means Aden or any place beyond the limits of British India:

(f) "Vessel" includes any thing made for the conveyance by water of human beings or property:

(g) "Coasting vessel" denotes any vessel proceeding from one Customs-port to another Customs-port, whether touching at any intermediate Foreign Port or not: or proceeding from or to a Customs port to or from a place declared to be a port under section 12:

(h) "Master" when used in relation to any vessel means any person, except a Pilot or Harbour Master, having command or charge of such vessel:

(i) "Warehousing port" means any Customs-port declared under section 14 to be a warehousing port:

(j) "Warehouse" denotes any place appointed or licensed under section 15 or section 16.

4. When any person is expressly or impliedly Agent of owner of goods to be deemed owner for certain purposes, or any goods to be his agent in respect of such goods for all or any of the purposes of this Act, and such authorization is approved by the Customs-collector, such person shall, for such purposes, be deemed to be the owner of such goods.

5. Anything which a Master is required or empowered to do under this Act may, with the express or implied consent of such Master and the approval of the Customs-collector, be done by a ship's agent.

CHAPTER II.

APPOINTMENT AND POWERS OF OFFICERS, &c.

6. The Local Government of every place in which duties of Sea-customs are leviable, may appoint such persons as it thinks fit to be officers of Customs, and to exercise the powers conferred, and to perform the duties imposed, by this Act on such officers.

Every person so appointed may be suspended or dismissed by the Local Government which appointed him.

7. The Local Government may delegate to any officer of Customs any of the powers vested in it by the foregoing clause of section 6.

Every person appointed in exercise of such delegated power may be suspended or dismissed by the officer who appointed him.

8. At any place for which there is no Custom-house, the Collector of the District and the officers subordinate to him shall, unless the Local Government otherwise directs, perform all duties imposed by this Act on a Customs-collector and other officers of Customs.

9. The Chief Customs-Authority may from time to time, with the sanction of the Local Government, make rules consistent with this Act

(a) prescribing and limiting the powers and duties of officers of Customs,

(b) regulating the delegation of their duties by such officers; and

(c) generally to carry out the provisions of this Act.

10. No Chief Customs-Authority or Chief Customs-Officer, and no other officer of Customs whom such Chief Authority or Chief Officer deems it necessary to exempt on grounds of public duty, shall be compelled to serve on any jury or inquest, or as an assessor.

CHAPTER III.

APPOINTMENT OF PORTS, WHARVES, CUSTOM-HOUSES, WAREHOUSES AND BOARDING AND LANDING-STATIONS.

11. The Local Government may from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette,

(a) declare the places within the territories administered by it which alone shall be Ports for the shipment and landing of goods;

(b) declare the limits of such Ports;

(c) appoint proper places therein to be Wharves for the landing and shipping of goods, or of particular classes of goods;

(d) declare the limits of any such Wharf;

(e) alter the name of any such Port or Wharf; and

(f) declare what shall, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be a Custom-house, and the limits thereof.

12. The Local Government may also from time to time in like manner declare places to be Ports for the carrying on of coasting trade with Customs-ports, or with any specified Customs-port, and for no other purpose.

13. The Governor General in Council may from time to time direct, by notification in the Gazette of India, that all goods of any specified class of goods imported from or exported to any Foreign Port to or from a Customs-port shall, with such limitations and on such conditions (if any) as he thinks fit be treated for any of the purposes of this Act as goods imported from or exported to a Customs-port as the case may be.

14. The Local Government may from time to time declare, by notification in the official Gazette, that any Customs-port shall be a Warehousing Port for the purposes of this Act.

15. At any Warehousing Port, the Chief Customs-Authority may from time to time appoint public warehouses wherein dutiable goods may be deposited without payment of duty on the first importation thereof, and may cancel such appointment.

16. At any Warehousing Port, the Chief Customs-Officer may from time to time license private warehouses wherein dutiable goods may be deposited as aforesaid.

Every application for a license for a private warehouse shall be in writing, and shall be drawn up in such form as is from time to time prescribed by the Chief Customs-Authority, and shall be signed by the applicant.

Every license granted under this section may be cancelled on conviction of the licensee of an offence under this Act relating to warehouses, unless it is otherwise provided in the license, or on the expiry of one month's notice in writing given to the licensee by the Chief Customs-Officer.

17. The Chief Customs-Authority may from time to time appoint, in or near any Customs-port, stations or limits at or within which vessels arriving at, or departing from, such Port shall bring to for the boarding or landing of officers of Customs, and may, unless separate provision therefor has been made under the Indian Ports Act, 1875, direct at what particular place in any such Port vessels, not brought into Port by pilots, shall anchor or moor.

CHAPTER IV.

PROHIBITIONS AND RESTRICTIONS OF IMPORTATION AND EXPORTATION.

18. No goods specified in the following clauses shall be brought, whether by land or sea, into British India:—

(a) any book printed in infringement of any law in force in British India on the subject of copyright, when the proprietor of such copyright, or his agent, has given to the Chief Customs-Authority a notice in writing that such copyright subsists, and a statement of the date on which it will expire:

(b) counterfeit coin: or coin which purports to be Queen's coin of India, or to be coin made under the Native Coinage Act, 1876, but which is not of the established standard in weight or fineness:

(c) any obscene book, pamphlet, paper, drawing painting, representation, figure or article:

(d) articles bearing any names, brands or marks being, or purporting to be, the names, brands or marks of manufacturers resident in the United Kingdom or British India, and not made by such manufacturers.

19. The Governor General in Council may from time to time, by notification in the Gazette of India, prohibit or restrict the bringing or taking by sea or by land of any specified description into or out of British India or any specified part of British India.

CHAPTER V.

LEVY OF AND EXEMPTION FROM, CUSTOMS-DUTIES.

20. Except as herein after provided, Customs-duties shall be levied at such rates as may be prescribed by or under any law for the time being in force, on—

(a) goods imported or exported by sea into or from any Customs-port or from or to any Foreign Port;

(b) opium, salt or dried fish imported by sea from any Customs-port to any other Customs-port;

(c) goods brought from any Foreign Port to any Customs-port, and without payment of duty, there transhipped for, or thence carried to, and imported at any other Customs-port;

(d) goods brought in bond from one Customs-port to another:

Provided that no such duties shall be levied on goods belonging to the Government.

21. Except as otherwise expressly provided by any law for the time being in force, goods whereof any article is liable to duty under this Act forms a part or ingredient shall be chargeable with the full duty which would be payable on such goods if they were entirely composed of such article, or if composed of more than one article liable to duty then with the full duty which would be payable on such goods if they were entirely composed of the article charged with the highest rate of duty.

22. The Governor General in Council may from time to time, by notification in the Gazette of India, fix, for the purpose of levying duties, tariff-values of any goods exported or imported by sea on which Customs-duties are by law imposed, and alter any such values fixed by any Tariff Act for the time being in force.

23. The Governor General in Council may from time to time, by notification in the Gazette of India, exempt from Customs-duties any goods imported into, or exported from, British India, or into or from any specified Port therein, from the whole or any part of the Customs-duties leviable on such goods.

The Local Government may, by special order in each case, exempt from the payment of duty, under the circumstances of an exceptional nature, to be stated in such order any goods on which Customs-duties are payable.

24. The Customs-collector may, subject to any general rules relating to the landing and shipping of passengers' baggage and the passing of the same through the Customs-house, which may be made under section 75, and free of duty any baggage in actual use, and for this purpose may determine, subject to any such rules, whether any goods shall be baggage in actual use, or as goods subject to duty.

25. If goods produced or manufactured in British India be imported into any Customs-port from any Foreign Port, such goods shall be liable to all the duties, conditions and restrictions (if any) to which goods of the like kind and value not so produced or manufactured are liable on the first importation thereof:

Provided that, if such importation takes place within three years after the exportation of such goods, and it is proved to the satisfaction of the Customs-collector that the property in such goods has continued in the person by whom, or on whose account, they were exported, the goods may be admitted without payment of duty.

26. Any goods produced or manufactured in British India which have been exported therefrom, and on the exportation of which any drawback or excise has been received shall, on being imported into any Customs-port, be subject, unless the Chief Customs-Authority in any particular case otherwise directs by special order, to payment of excise duty, at the rate to which goods of the like kind and quality are liable at such port.

27. All goods derelict, jetsam, flotsam and wreck, brought or coming into any place in British India shall be subject to the same duties, and to any, to which goods of the like kind are for the time being subject on importation at any Customs-port and shall in other respects be dealt with as if they were imported from a foreign port, unless it be shown to the satisfaction of the Customs-collector that such goods are the produce or manufacture of any place, from which they are entitled to be admitted duty-free.

28. Provisions and stores produced or manufactured in British India, required for use on board of any vessel proceeding to any Foreign Port, may be shipped free of duty, whether of customs or excise, in such quantities as the Customs-collector determines with reference to the tonnage of the vessel, the number of the crew and passengers, and the length of the voyage on which the vessel is about to depart.

Provided that no rice shall be so shipped on any vessel going on a voyage of less than thirty days probable duration.

29. On the importation into, or exportation from, any Customs-port of any goods, whether liable to duty or not, the owner of such goods shall, in his bill of entry or shipping-bill, as the case may be, state the real value, quantity, and description of such goods to the best of his knowledge and belief, and shall subscribe a declaration of the truth of such statement at the foot of such bill.

In case of doubt, the Customs-collector may require any such owner to produce any invoice, broker's note, policy of insurance or other document, whereby the real value, quantity, or description of any such goods can be ascertained, to produce the same, and to furnish any information relating to such value, quantity, or description which it is in his power to furnish. And thereupon such person shall produce such document and furnish such information:

Provided that, if the owner makes and subscribes a declaration before the Customs-collector to the effect that he is unable, from want of full information, to state the real value or contents of any case, package or parcel of goods, then the Customs-collector shall permit him, previous to the entry thereof, (1) to open such case, package or parcel, and examine the contents in presence of an officer of Customs, or (2) to deposit such case, package or parcel in a public warehouse appointed under section 15 without warehousing the same, pending the production of such information.

30. For the purposes of this Act the real value shall be deemed to be—

(a) the wholesale cash-price, less trade-discount, for which goods of the like kind and quality are sold, or are capable of being sold, at the time and place of importation or exportation as the case may be, without any abatement or deduction whatever, except (in the case of goods imported) of the amount of the duties payable on the importation thereof: or,

(b) where such price is not ascertainable, the cost at which goods of the like kind and quality could be delivered at such place without any abatement or deduction except as aforesaid.

31. Goods chargeable with duty upon the examination of value thereof, but for which a specific value is not fixed by law for the purpose of levying duties thereon, shall, without unnecessary delay, be examined by an officer of Customs. If it appears that the real value of such goods is correctly stated in the bill of entry or shipping-bill, the goods shall be assessed in accordance therewith.

32. If it appears that such goods are properly chargeable with a higher rate or amount of duty than that to which they would be subject according to the value thereof as stated in the bill of entry or shipping-bill, such officer may detain such goods.

In every such case the detaining officer shall forthwith give notice in writing to the owner of the goods of their detention, and of the value thereof as estimated by him; and the Customs-collector shall, within two clear working days after such detention, or within such reasonable period as may with the consent of the parties be arranged, determine either to deliver such goods on payment of duty charged according to the entry of such owner, or to retain the same for the use of Government.

If the goods be retained for the use of Government, the Customs-collector shall cause the full amount stated in the bill as their real value to be paid to the owner in full satisfaction for such goods, in the same manner as if they had been transferred by ordinary sale, and shall, after due notice in the local official Gazette, or some local newspaper and without unnecessary delay, cause them to be put up to public auction in wholesale lots for cash on delivery.

If the Customs-collector deems the highest offer made at such sale to be inadequate, he may either adjourn the sale to some other day, to be notified as aforesaid, or buy in the goods, and without unnecessary delay dispose of them for the benefit of Government.

If the proceeds arising from such sale exceed the sum paid to the owner, together with (in the case of goods imported) the duty to which the goods are liable and all charges incurred by Government in connection with them, a portion not exceeding one-half of the overplus shall, at the discretion of the Chief Officer of Customs, be payable to the officer who detected the undervaluation of the goods.

Nothing in this section shall prevent the Chief Officer of Customs, when he has reason to believe that any such undervaluation was solely the result of accident or error, from permitting the owner of the goods, on his application for that purpose, to amend such entry, on payment of such increased rate of duties on the excess of the amended over the original valuation, or on such other terms as the Chief Officer of Customs may determine.

33. If, on the first examination of any such goods under section 31, the owner thereof states in writing that such goods are, in consequence of damage sustained before delivery of the bill of entry, of value less than that stated in such bill, the Customs-collector, on being satisfied of the fact, may allow abatement of duty accordingly.

The reduced duty to be levied on such goods may be ascertained by either of the following methods, at the option of the owner—

(a) the real value of such goods may be fixed on appraisement by an officer of Customs and the duty may be assessed on the value so fixed; or

(b) the goods may, after due notice in the local official Gazette or some local newspaper, be sold by public auction at such time (within thirty days from the date of delivery of the bill of entry), and at such place, as the Customs-collector appoints; and the duty may be assessed on the gross amount realized by such sale, without any abatement or deduction, except (in the case of goods imported) of so much as represents the duties payable on the importation thereof.

34. When any goods, the value of which has been fixed by law for the purpose of levying duties thereon, have, before delivery of the bill-of-entry, deteriorated to the extent of more than one-tenth of their value, the duty on such goods shall if the owner thereof so desires be assessed ad valorem.

The real value of such goods shall be ascertained as provided in section 33, and the duty shall be assessed thereon.

35. No abatement of duty on account of damage shall be allowed on wines, spirit or beer, or on any other articles on which duties are levied on quantity and not on value.

36. Except as provided in section 34, no amendment of a bill of entry or shipping-bill relating to goods assessed for duty on the declared value, quantity, or description thereof shall be allowed after such goods have been removed from the Custom-house.

37. The rate of duty and the tariff valuation (if applicable to any goods imported) shall be the rate and valuation in force on the date on which the bill of entry thereof is delivered to the Customs-collector under section 36.

Provided that when such rate or valuation has been raised after the grant of port-clearance at the port of shipment, the rate and valuation applicable to such goods shall be the rate and valuation in force on the date of such grant.

Provided also that if such goods are warehoused under section 115 of this Act, the rate and valuation applicable thereto shall be the rate and valuation in force at the time when application is made to clear such goods for home consumption.

Explanation.—A bill of entry shall for the purposes of this section be deemed to be delivered when it is first presented to the proper officer of Customs.

38. The rate of duty and tariff valuation (if any) applicable to any goods exported shall be the rate and valuation in force when a shipping-bill of such goods is delivered under section 137.

39. When Customs-duty has been levied through inadvertence, error, collusion or mistake on the part of officers of Customs, or through mis-statement of the real value, quantity, or description on the part of the owner, or when any such duty, or charge after having been levied, has been erroneously refunded, the person chargeable with the duty or charge so short-levied, or to whom such refund has erroneously been made, shall pay the deficiency or return him in excess, on demand being made within the month from the date of the first assessment or making of the refund; and the Customs-collector may refuse to pass any goods belonging to such person until the said deficiency or excess is paid or repaid.

40. No Customs-duties or charges which have been paid, and of which repayment, wholly or in part, is claimed in consequence of the same having been paid through inadvertence, error or misconception, shall be returned, unless such claim is made within three months from the date of such payment.

No refund of charges erroneously levied or paid, unless claimed within three months.

41. The Customs-collector may, if he thinks fit, instead of requiring payment of Customs-duties and charges due from any mercantile firm or public body, at the time such duties and charges are payable under this Act, keep with such firm or body an account current of such duties and charges. Such account shall be settled at intervals not exceeding one month, and such firm or body shall make a deposit or furnish security sufficient in the opinion of the Customs-collector to cover the amount which may at any time be due from them in respect of such duties and charges.

Power to give credit for and keep account current of duties and charges.

CHAPTER VI.

DRAWBACK.

42. When any goods, capable of being easily identified, which have been imported by sea into any Customs-port from any Foreign Port, and upon which duties of Customs have been paid on importation, are re-exported by sea from such Customs-port to any Foreign Port, or as provisions or stores for use on board a ship proceeding to a Foreign Port, seven-eighths of such duties shall, except as otherwise hereinafter provided, be repaid as drawback:

Drawback allowable on re-export.

Provided that, in every such case, the goods be identified to the satisfaction of the Customs-collector at such Customs-port, and that the re-export be made within two years from the date of importation, as shown by the records of the Custom-house, or within such extended term as the Chief Customs-Authority, on sufficient cause being shown, in any case determines.

Conditions for grant of drawback.

43. When any goods having been charged with import-duty at one Customs-port and thence exported to another, are re-exported by sea as aforesaid, drawback shall be allowed on such goods as if they had been so re-exported from the former port.

Drawback on goods exported to Customs-port and thence to Foreign Port.

Provided that, in every such case, the goods be identified to the satisfaction of the officer in charge of the Custom-house at the Port of final exportation, and that such final exportation be made within three years from the date on which they were first imported into British India.

Proviso.

44. A drawback of the whole of the Customs-duties shall be allowed on wine and spirit intended for the consumption of any officer of Her Majesty's Navy, on board of any of Her Majesty's ships in actual service, unless such wine and spirit have been warehoused without payment of duty on the first entry thereof.

Drawback of duties on wine and spirit allowed for officers of Navy.

The quantity of wine and spirit on which drawback may be so allowed in any one year for the use of such officers shall not exceed the quantities hereinafter allowed for each such officer respectively; that is to say—

	Gals.
For every Admiral ...	1,200
Vice-Admiral ...	1,050

45. Every person clearing and claiming drawback for wine or spirit, as provided in section 44, shall state in the shipping bill the name of the officer for whom such wine or spirit is intended, and of the ship in which he serves, as well as the place and date of the last supply for which drawback was allowed.

Persons entering such wine or spirit for drawback to declare name and rank of officer claiming same.

All such wine and spirit shall be delivered into the charge of the proper officers of Customs at the Port of shipment, to be shipped under their receipt; and when the officer commanding the ship has certified the receipt of such wine and spirit into his charge, and any such officer of Customs has certified the shipment, the drawback shall be paid to the person entitled to receive the same.

46. The Customs-collector may permit the transfer of any such wine or spirit from one Naval officer to another, to another Naval officer or board of the same, or of any other such vessel, as part of his authorized quantity;

Transfer of wine or spirit from one Naval officer to another.

or may permit the transshipment of any such wine or spirit from one vessel to another for the use of the same Naval officer;

or may permit the transshipment of any such wine or spirit from one vessel to another for the use of the same Naval officer;

or the re-landing and warehousing of any such wine or spirit for future re-shipment.

or the re-landing and warehousing of any such wine or spirit for future re-shipment.

The Customs-collector may also receive back the duties for any such wine or spirit, and allow the same to be cleared for home-consumption.

47. Provisions and stores for the use of Her Majesty's Navy or of any officer thereof which are subject to duty may, in like manner, be transferred, transhipped or reloaded and warehoused, free of duty; and where duties have been paid on any such provisions or stores required for shipment, drawback of such duties, whether of customs or excise, shall be allowed on receipt of an application in writing from the officer commanding the ship for which they are intended, or from some other officer duly authorized to make such application.

Provisions and stores for Her Majesty's Navy.

48. The provisions of sections 44, 45, 46 and 47 as to officers of Her Majesty's Navy apply also to officers of Her Majesty's Indian Marine and Marine-survey on board of any of the ships of such Marine or Survey proceeding to any port out of India, and the rules prescribed by section 47 as to provisions and stores for the use of Her Majesty's Navy apply also to provisions and stores for the use of such Marine or Survey.

Indian Marine and Marine-survey.

49. The Governor General in Council may from time to time, by notification in the Gazette of India, Power to declare what goods are identifiable,

(a) declare what goods shall, for the purpose of this chapter, be deemed to be capable of being easily identified; and

(b) prohibit the payment of drawback upon the re-exportation of goods to any specified Foreign Port in India.
and may prohibit drawback in case of specified Foreign Port.

50. Notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, no drawback shall be allowed—
When no drawback is allowed.

(a) upon goods not included in the export-manifest, or

(b) where the goods to be exported are of less value than the amount of drawback claimed, or

(c) where the claim is for drawback amounting, in respect of any single shipment, to less than five rupees, and the Customs-collector thinks fit to reject it, or

(d) on salt, salted fish, or opium.

51. No drawback shall be allowed unless the claim to receive such drawback be made and established at the time of re-export.
Time to claim drawback.

No such payment of drawback shall be made until the vessel carrying the goods has put out to sea, or unless payment be demanded within months from the date of entry for shipment.
When payment made.

52. Every person, or his duly authorized agent, claiming drawback on any goods duly exported, shall make and subscribe a declaration that such goods have been actually exported, and have not been re-landed and are not intended to be re-landed at any Customs-port; and that such person was at the time of entry outwards and shipment, and continues to be, entitled to drawback thereon.
Declaration by parties claiming drawback.

CHAPTER VII.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE OF VESSELS.

Arrival and entry of vessel inwards.

53. The Local Government may, by notification in the local official Gazette, fix a place in any river or Port, beyond which no vessel arriving shall pass until a manifest has been delivered to the Pilot, officer of Customs or other person duly authorized to receive the same.
Power to fix places beyond which inward-bound vessels are not to proceed until manifest delivered.

If, in any river or Port wherein a place has been fixed by the Local Government under this section, the Master of any vessel arriving remains outside or below the place so fixed, such Master shall, nevertheless, within twenty-four hours after the vessel anchors, deliver a manifest to the Pilot, officer of Customs or other person authorized to receive the same.
Delivery of manifest when vessel anchors below place so fixed.

54. If any vessel arrives at any Customs-port in which a place has not been so fixed, the Master of such vessel shall, within twenty-four hours after such vessel has anchored within the limits of the Port, deliver a manifest to the Pilot, officer of Customs or other person authorized to receive the same.
Delivery of manifest where no place has been so fixed.

55. Every manifest shall be signed by the Master, shall specify all goods imported in such vessel, showing separately all goods (if any) intended to be landed, transhipped or taken on to another Port, and all ships' stores intended for consumption in Port or on the homeward voyage, and shall contain such further particulars, and be made out in such form, as the Chief Customs-Authority may from time to time direct.
Signature and contents of manifest.

The Customs-collector shall permit the Master to amend any obvious error in the manifest, or to supply any omission which in the opinion of such Collector results from accident or inadvertence, by furnishing an amended or supplementary manifest, Amendment of errors in manifest.

and may, if he thinks fit, levy thereon such fee as the Chief Customs-Authority from time to time directs.

Except as herein provided, no import manifest shall be amended.

56. The person receiving a manifest under section 53 shall counter-sign the same and enter thereon such particulars as the Chief Customs-Authority from time to time directs in this behalf.
Duty of person receiving manifest.

57. No vessel arriving at any Customs-port shall be allowed to break bulk until a manifest has been delivered as hereinbefore provided; nor until a copy of such manifest, together with an application for entry of such vessel inwards, has been presented by the Master to the Customs-collector, and an order has been given thereon for such entry.
Bulk not to be broken until manifest, &c., delivered, and vessel entered inwards.

58. The Master shall, if required so to do by the Customs-collector at the time of presenting such application, deliver to the Customs-collector the bill of lading or a copy thereof for every part of the cargo laden on board, and any port-clearance, cockett or other paper granted in respect of such vessel at the place from which she is stated to have come, and shall answer all such questions relating to the vessel, cargo, crew and voyage as are put to him by such officer.
Master, if required, to deliver bill of lading, &c., to Customs-collector.

The Customs-collector may, if any requisition or question made or put to him under this section is not complied with or answered, refuse to grant such application.

59. Notwithstanding anything contained in section 57, the Customs-collector may grant, prior to receipt of the manifest, and to the entry inwards of the vessel, a special pass permitting bulk to be broken.
Special pass for breaking bulk.

The granting of such pass shall be subject to such rules as may from time to time be made by the Chief Customs-Authority.

60. Notwithstanding anything contained in Manifest, &c., any by section 53, 54, 55 or 58, delivered by ship's agent, the Customs-collector may accept from the ship's agent in lieu of the Master delivery of the manifest or of any other document required by those sections to be delivered by the Master.

Entry outwards, port-clearance and departure of vessels.

61. No vessel shall take on board any part of her export-cargo, until a written application for entry of such vessel outwards subscribed by the Master of such vessel, has been made to the Customs-collector or before an order has been given thereon by such officer for such entry.

Every application made under this section shall specify the name, tonnage, and national character of the vessel, the name of the Master, and the name of every place for which cargo is to be shipped.

62. No vessel, whether laden or in ballast, shall depart from any Customs-port until a port-clearance has been granted by the Customs-collector or other officer duly authorized to grant the same.

And no Pilot shall take charge of a vessel proceeding to sea, unless the Master of such vessel produces a port-clearance.

63. Every application for port-clearance shall be made by the Master at least twenty-four hours before the intended departure of the vessel.

The Master shall, at the time of applying for port-clearance—

 (a) deliver to the Customs-collector a manifest in duplicate in such form as may from time to time be prescribed by the Chief Customs-Authority, signed by such Master, specifying all goods to be exported in the vessel, and showing separately all goods and stores entered in the import manifest, and not landed or consumed on board or transhipped;

(b) deliver to the Customs-collector such shipping bills or other documents as such Customs-collector acting under the general instructions of such Chief Customs-Authority, requires; and

(c) answer to the proper officer of Customs such questions touching the departure and destination of the vessel as are demanded of him.

The provisions of section 53 relating to the amendment of import-manifests shall mutatis mutandis apply also to export-manifests delivered under this section.

64. The Customs-collector may refuse port-clearance to any vessel until

(a) the provisions of section 53 are complied with;

(b) all Port-dues and other charges and penalties due by such vessel, or by the owner or Master thereof, and all duties payable in respect of any goods shipped thereon have been duly paid, or their payment secured by such guarantee, or by a deposit at such rate as such Customs-collector directs;

(c) the ship's agent (if any) delivers to the Customs-collector a declaration in writing to the effect that he will be liable for any penalty imposed under section 167, No. 17, and furnishes security for the discharge of the same;

(d) the ship's agent (if any) delivers to the Customs-collector a declaration in writing to the effect that such agent is answerable for the discharge of all claims for damage or short delivery which may be established by the owner of any goods comprised in the import-cargo in respect of such goods.

A ship's agent delivering a declaration under clause (c) of this section shall be liable to all penalties which might be imposed on the Master under section 167, No. 17, and a ship's agent delivering a declaration under clause (d) of this section shall be bound to discharge all claims referred to in such declaration.

65. When the Customs-collector is satisfied that the provisions of section 61 and if necessary of clauses (b) and (c) and (d) of section 64 have been complied with, he shall grant a port-clearance to the Master, and shall return at the same time to such Master one copy of the manifest duly countersigned by the proper officer of Customs.

66. Notwithstanding anything contained in sections 61 and 65, the Customs-collector may subject to such rules as the Chief Customs-Authority may from time to time prescribe, grant a port-clearance to the Master when the ship's agent furnishes such security as the Customs-collector deems sufficient for duly delivering, within five days from the date of such grant, the manifest and other documents specified in section 61.

CHAPTER VIII.

GENERAL PROVISIONS AFFECTING VESSELS IN PORT.

67. The Customs-collector at any Customs-port may at any time detain on board his discretion one or more officers of Customs to board any vessel in or arriving at such Port.

Every officer of Customs so sent shall remain on board of such vessel by day and by night unless or until the Customs-collector otherwise orders.

68. Whenever an officer of Customs is so deputed on board of any vessel, the Master of such vessel shall be bound to receive on board such officer and one servant of such officer, and to provide such officer and servant with suitable shelter and accommodation, and likewise with a due allowance of fresh water, and with the means of cooking on board.

69. Every officer of Customs so deputed shall have free access to every part of the vessel, and may fasten down any hatchway or entrance to the hold, and mark any goods before landing, and lock up, seal, mark, or otherwise secure any goods on board of such vessel.

If any box, place or closed receptacle in any Power to authorize such vessel be locked, and search and opening of the key be withheld, such locks. officer shall report the same to the Customs-collector, who may thereupon issue to the officer on board, or to any other officer under his authority, a written order to search.

On production of such order, the officer bearing the same may require that any such box, place or closed receptacle be opened in his presence; and, if it be not opened upon his requisition, he may break open the same.

70. Unless with the written permission of the Goods not to be ship- Customs-collector or in ac- ped, discharged or water- cordance with a general per- borne except in presence mision granted under sec- tion 74, no goods, other than passengers' baggage, or ballast urgently required to be shipped for the vessel's safety, shall be shipped or waterborne to be shipped or discharged from any vessel in any Customs-port, except in the presence of an officer of Customs.

71. When an officer of Customs is deputed

Period allowed for discharge and shipment of cargo. under section 67 to remain on board a vessel, the tonnage of which does not exceed six hundred tons, a period of thirty working days, reckoned from the date on which he boards such vessel, or such additional period as the Customs-collector directs, shall be allowed for the discharge of import-cargo and the shipment of export-cargo on board of such vessel.

One additional day shall, in like manner, be allowed for every fifty tons in excess of six hundred.

No charge shall be made for the services of a single officer of Customs for such allowed number of working days, or for the services of several such officers (if available) for respective periods not exceeding the aggregate such allowed number of working days.

If the period occupied in the discharge and shipment of cargo be in excess of thirty working days, together with the additional period (if any) allowed under this section, the vessel shall be charged with the expense of the officer of Customs at a rate not exceeding five rupees per diem (Sundays and holidays excepted) for such excess period.

In calculating any period allowed, or any charge

Allowance for period made, under this section, the during which vessel is period (if any) during which laid up. a vessel after the completion of the discharge of import-cargo, and before commencing the shipment of export-cargo, is laid up by the withdrawal of the officer of Customs upon application from the Master, shall be deducted.

72. Except with the written permission of the Goods not to be landed, Customs-collector, no goods, other than passengers' baggage, shall in any Customs-port be discharged from any vessel, or be shipped or water-borne to be shipped—

(a) on any Sunday or on any holiday or day in which the discharge or shipping of cargo, as the case may be, is prohibited by the Chief Customs-Authority;

(b) on any day, except between such hours as such authority from time to time appoints by notification in the official Gazette.

73. No goods shall in any Customs-port be

Goods not to be ship- landed at any place other ped, &c. except at wharfs. than a wharf or other place duly appointed for that purpose, and unless with the written permission of the Customs-collector or when a general permission has been granted under section 74, no goods shall in any Customs-port be shipped or water-borne to be shipped from any place other than a wharf or other place duly appointed for that purpose.

74. Notwithstanding anything contained in Power to exempt from section 70 or 73, the Chief sections 70 and 73. Customs-Authority may, by notification in the local official Gazette, give general permission for goods to be shipped or water-borne to be shipped in any Customs-port from all or any places not duly appointed as wharves, and without the presence or authority of an officer of Customs.

75. The Chief Customs-Authority may from

Power to make rules time to time make rules for regarding baggage and the landing and shipping of units. passengers' baggage and the passing of the same through the Customs-house; and for the loading, shipping and clearing of parcels forwarded by Her Majesty's or other mails, or by other regular packets and passenger vessels.

When any baggage or parcels is or are made loading fees. over to an officer of customs for the purpose of being landed a fee of such amount as the Local Government from time to time directs shall be chargeable thereon, as compensation for the expense and trouble incurred in landing and depositing the same in the Custom-house.

76. When any goods are water-borne for the Boat-note. purpose of being landed from any vessel and warehoused or cleared for home-consumption, or of being shipped for exportation on board of any vessel, there shall be sent, with each boat-load or other separate despatch, a boat-note specifying the number of packages so sent and the marks and numbers or other description thereof.

Each boat-note for goods to be landed shall be signed by an officer of the vessel, and likewise by the officer of Customs on board, if any such officer be on board, and shall be delivered on arrival to any officer of Customs authorized to receive the same.

Each boat-note for goods to be shipped shall be signed by the proper officer of Customs, and, if an officer of Customs is on board of the vessel on which such goods are to be shipped, shall be delivered to such officer. If no such officer be on board, every such boat-note shall be delivered to the Master of the vessel, or to an officer of the vessel appointed by him to receive it.

The officer of Customs who receives any boat-note of goods landed, and the officer of Customs, Master, or other officer, as the case may be, who receives any boat-note of goods shipped, shall sign the same and note thereon such particulars as the Chief Customs-Authority may from time to time, direct.

The Local Government may from time to time by notification in the local official Gazette, suspend the operation of this section in any Customs-port or part thereof.

77. All goods water-borne for the purpose of being landed or shipped shall be landed or shipped without any unnecessary delay.

Goods water-borne to be forthwith landed or shipped.

78. Except in cases of imminent danger no goods shall be discharged into or loaded in any boat for the purpose of being landed or shipped shall be transhipped into any other boat without the permission of an officer of Customs.

Such goods not to be transhipped without permission.

79. The Local Government may declare with regard to any Customs-port, by notification in the local official Gazette, that after a date therein specified, no boat not duly licensed and registered shall be allowed to ply as a cargo-boat for the landing and shipping of merchandize within the limits of such Port.

Power to prohibit plying of unlicensed cargo-boats.

In any Port with regard to which such notification has been issued, the Chief Officer of Customs or other officer whom the Local Government appoints in this behalf, may, subject to such rules and on payment of such fees as the Local Government from time to time prescribes by notification in the local official Gazette, issue licenses for and register cargo boats. Such officer may also, subject to rules so prescribed, cancel any license so issued.

Issue of licenses and registration of cargo-boats.

80. The Customs-collector may, whenever he thinks fit, require that goods stowed in bulk, and brought by sea or intended for exportation, shall be weighed or measured on board-ship before landing or after shipment, and may levy duty according to the result of such weighing or measurement.

Power to require goods to be weighed or measured on board before landing or after shipment.

CHAPTER IX.

OF DISCHARGE OF CARGO AND ENTRY INWARDS OF GOODS.

81. When an order for entry inwards of any vessel which has arrived in any Customs-port, or a special pass permitting such vessel to break bulk, has been given, the discharge of the cargo of such vessel may be proceeded with.

Discharge of cargo may commence on receipt of the permission.

82. Except as otherwise provided in this Act, no goods shall be allowed to leave any such vessel, unless they are entered in the original manifest of such vessel, or in an amended or supplementary manifest received under section 55.

Goods not to leave ship, unless entered in manifest.

83. If the owner of any goods (except such as have been shown in the import-manifest as not to be landed) does not land such goods within such period as is specified in the bill of lading of such goods, or if no period is so specified within such number of working days, not exceeding fifteen, after the entry

Procedure in respect of goods not landed within time allowed.

of the vessel importing the same, as the Local Government from time to time appoints by notification in the official Gazette, or if the cargo of any vessel, with the exception of only a small quantity of goods, has been discharged previously to the expiration of the period so specified or appointed, as this case may be,— the Master of such vessel or, on his application, the proper officer of Customs, may then carry such goods to the Custom-house, there to remain for entry.

The Customs-collector shall thereupon take charge of and grant receipts for such goods;

and if notice in writing has been given by the Master that the goods are to remain subject to a lien for freight, primage, general average, or other charges of a stated amount, the Customs-collector shall hold such goods until he receives notice in writing that the said charges are paid.

84. At any time after the arrival of any vessel, the Customs-collector may, with the consent of the Master of such vessel, cause any small package or parcel of goods to be carried to the Custom-house, there to remain for entry, in charge of the officers of Customs, during the remainder of the working days allowed under this Act for the landing of such package or parcel.

Power to land small parcels.

If any package or parcel so carried to the Custom-house remains unclaimed on the expiration of the number of working days so allowed for its landing, or at the time of the clearance outwards of the vessel from which it was landed, the Master may give such notice as is provided in section 83, and the officer in charge of the Custom-house shall thereupon hold such package or parcel as provided in that section.

Notice regarding unclaimed packages.

85. Notwithstanding anything contained in sections 83 and 84 the Customs-collector in any Customs-port to which the Local Government, by notification in the local official Gazette, declares this section to be applicable, may permit the Master of any vessel immediately on receipt of an order under section 57 or special pass under section 59, to discharge the cargo of such vessel or any portion thereof into the custody of the ship's agents if willing to receive the same, for the purpose of landing the same forthwith—Power to permit immediate discharge.

(a) at the Custom-house or any specified landing-place or wharf; or

(b) at any landing-place or wharf belonging to any Port Commissioners, Port Trust or other public body or company;

Any ship's agent so receiving such cargo or portion shall be bound to discharge all claims for damage or short delivery which may be established in respect of the same by the owner thereof, and shall be entitled to recover from such owner his charges for service rendered, but not for commission or the like, where any agent for the landing of such cargo or portion has been previously appointed by the owner and such appointment unrevoked.

The Customs-collector shall take charge of a goods discharged under clause (a) of this section and otherwise proceed in relation thereto as provided in sections 83 and 85.

A public body or company at whose landing place or wharf any goods are discharged under clause (4) of this section, shall not permit the same to be removed without an order in writing from the Customs-collector.

86. The owner of any goods imported shall on the landing thereof from the importing ship, make entry of such goods for home consumption or warehousing by delivering to the Customs-collector a bill of entry thereof in duplicate, in such form and containing such particulars, in addition to the particulars specified in section 85, as may, from time to time, be prescribed by the Chief Customs-Authority.

The particulars of such entry shall correspond with the particulars given of the same goods in the manifest of the ship.

87. On the delivery of such bill the duty (if any) leviable on such goods shall be assessed, and the owner of such goods may then proceed to clear the same for home-consumption, or warehouse them, subject to the provisions hereinafter contained.

88. If any goods are not entered and cleared for home-consumption, or warehoused, within four months from the date of entry of the vessel, such goods may, after due notice to the owner, if his address can be ascertained, and in the Local Gazette, be sold by public auction, and the proceeds thereof shall be applied, first, to the payment of freight, primage and general average, if the goods are held by the Customs collector subject to such charges under notice given under section 84, 84A or 85; next, to the payment of the duties which would be leviable on such goods if they were then cleared for home-consumption, and next to the payment of the other charges (if any) payable to the Customs-collector in respect of the same.

The surplus, if any, shall be paid to the owner of such goods, on his application for the same; provided that such application be made within one year from the date of the goods, or that sufficient cause be shown for not making it within such period.

If any goods of which the Customs-collector has taken charge under section 83, 84 or 85 be of a perishable nature, the Customs-collector may at any time direct the sale thereof, and shall apply the proceeds in like manner.

Provided that, where any goods liable to be sold under this section are arms, ammunition or military stores, they may be sold or otherwise disposed of at such place (whether within or without British India), and in such manner, as the Local Government may from time to time direct.

Provided also, that nothing in this section shall authorize the removal for home-consumption of any dutiable goods without payment of duties of customs thereon.

CHAPTER X.

DECLARATION OF GOODS FOR HOME-CONSUMPTION.

89. When the owner of any goods entered for home-consumption, and (if such goods be liable to duty) assessed under section 82, has paid the import duty (if any) assessed on such goods and any charges payable under this Act in respect of the same, the Customs-officer may make an order clearing the same; and such order shall be sufficient authority for the removal of such goods by the owner.

CHAPTER XI.

WAREHOUSING.

Of the admission of goods into warehouses.

90. When any dutiable goods have been entered for warehousing and assessed under section 87, the owner of such goods may apply for leave to deposit the same in any warehouse appointed or licensed under this Act.

91. Every such application shall be in writing signed by the applicant, and shall be in such form as is from time to time prescribed by the Chief Customs-Authority.

92. When any such application has been made in respect of any goods, the owner of the goods to which it relates shall execute a bond, binding himself, in a penalty of twice the amount of duty assessed under section 87 on such goods,

(a) to observe all rules prescribed by this Act in respect of such goods;

(b) to pay, on demand, all duties and charges claimable on account of such goods under this Act, together with interest on the same from the date of demand, at such rate not exceeding six per cent. per annum as is for the time being fixed by the Chief Customs-Authority; and

(c) to discharge all penalties incurred for violation of the provisions of this Act in respect of such goods.

Every such bond shall be in the form marked A hereto annexed, or, when such form is inapplicable or insufficient, in such other form as, from time to time prescribed by the Chief Customs-Authority, and shall relate to the cargo or portion of the cargo of one vessel only.

93. When the provisions of sections 81 and 92 have been complied with in respect of any goods, such goods shall be forwarded in charge of an officer of customs to the warehouse in which they are to be deposited.

A pass shall be sent with the goods specifying the name of the importing vessel and of the bond, the marks, numbers and contents of each package, and the warehouse or place in the warehouse wherein they are to be deposited.

94. On receipt of the goods the pass shall be examined by the warehouse-keeper, and shall be returned to the Customs-collector.

No package, butt, cask or bag shall be admitted into any warehouse unless it has the marks and numbers specified in and thereon correspond with the pass for its admission.

If the goods be found to correspond with the pass, the warehouse-keeper shall certify to the effect on the pass, and the warehousing of such goods shall be deemed to have been completed.

If the goods do not so correspond, the fact shall be reported by the warehouse-keeper for the orders of the Customs-collector, and the goods shall either be returned to the Custom-house in charge of an officer of Customs or kept in deposit pending such orders, as the warehouse-keeper deems most convenient.

If the quantity or value of any goods has been erroneously stated in the bill of entry, the error may be rectified at any time before the warehousing of the goods is completed, and not subsequently.

95. Except as provided in section 100, all goods shall be warehoused in the packages, butts, casks or hogsheads in which they have been imported.

96. Whenever any goods are lodged in a public warehouse or a licensed private warehouse, the warehouse-keeper, or, in the case of the Bengal Bonded Warehouse Association, the Secretary of the said Association, shall deliver a warrant signed by him as such to the person lodging the goods.

Such warrant shall be in the Form B hereto annexed, and shall be transferable by endorsement; and the endorsee shall be entitled to receive the goods specified in such warrant on the same terms as those on which the person who originally lodged the goods would have been entitled to receive the same.

The Local Government may by notification in the local official Gazette exempt salt and salted fish from the operation of this section and may in like manner cancel such exemption.

Rules relating to goods in a warehouse.

97. The Customs-collector or any officer deputed by him for the purpose, shall have access to any private warehouse licensed under this Act.

98. The Customs-collector may at any time by order in writing direct that any goods or packages lodged in any warehouse shall be opened, weighed or otherwise examined; and after any goods have been so opened or examined, may cause the same to be sealed or marked in such manner as he thinks fit.

When any goods have been so sealed and marked after examination, they shall not be again opened without the permission of the Customs-collector; and when any such goods have been opened with such permission, the packages shall, if he thinks fit, be again sealed or marked as before.

99. Any owner of goods lodged in a warehouse shall, at any time within the hours of business, have access to his goods in presence of an officer of Customs, and an officer of Customs shall, upon application for the purpose being made in writing to the Customs-collector, be deputed to accompany such owner.

When an officer of Customs is specially employed to accompany such meet the expense thereby incurred shall, if the Customs-collector so require, be paid by such owner to the Customs-collector, and such sum shall, if the Customs-collector so direct, be paid in advance.

100. With the sanction of the Customs-collector, and after such notice given, and under such rules and conditions as the Chief Customs-Authority from time to time prescribes, any owner of goods may, either before or after warehousing the same,—

(a) sort, separate, pack and repack the goods and make such alterations therein as may be necessary for the preservation, sale, shipment or disposal thereof (such goods to be repacked in the packages in which they were imported, or in such other packages as the Customs-collector permits);

(b) fill up any casks of wine, spirit or beer from any casks of the same secured in the same warehouse;

(c) mix any wines or spirit of the same sort secured in the same warehouse, erasing from the cask all import-brands, unless the whole of the wine or spirit so mixed be of the same brand;

(d) bottle off wine or spirit from any casks;

(e) take such samples of goods as may be allowed by the Customs-collector with or without entry for home consumption, and with or without payment of duty, except such as may eventually become payable on a deficiency of the original quantity.

After any such goods have been so separated and repacked in proper or approved packages, the Customs-collector may, at the request of the owner of such goods, cause or permit any refuse, damaged, or surplus goods remaining after such separation or repacking (or, at the like request, any goods which may not be worth the duty) to be destroyed, and may remit the duty payable thereon.

101. If goods be lodged in a public warehouse, the owner shall pay monthly, on receiving a bill or written demand for the same from the Customs-collector or other officer deputed by him in that behalf, rent and warehouse-dues at such rates as the Chief Customs-Authority or such officer of customs as such Authority from time to time appoints in this behalf may fix.

A table of the rates of rent and warehouse-dues so fixed shall be placed in a conspicuous part of such warehouse.

If any bill for rent or warehouse-dues presented under this section is not discharged within ten days from the date of presentation, the Customs-collector may, in the discharge of such demand (any transfer or assignment of the goods notwithstanding) cause to be sold by public auction, after due notice in the local official Gazette, such sufficient portion of the goods as he may select.

Out of the proceeds of such sale the Customs-collector shall first satisfy the demand for the discharge of which the sale was ordered, and shall then pay over the surplus (if any) to the owner of the goods:

Provided that the application for such surplus be made within one year from the date of the sale of the goods, or that sufficient cause be shown for not making it within such period.

102. No warehoused goods shall be taken out of enter into a bond, with one sufficient surety, in a sum equal at least to the duty chargeable on such goods, for the due arrival and rewarehousing thereof at the Port of destination within such time as the Chief Customs-Authority directs.

Such bond may be taken by the proper officer, either at the Port of removal or at the Port of destination, as best suits the convenience of the owner.

If such bond is taken at the Port of destination, a certificate thereof, signed by the proper officer of such Port, shall, at the time of the removal of such goods, be produced to the proper officer at the Port of removal; and such bond shall not be discharged unless such goods are produced to the proper officer, and duly re-warehoused at the Port of destination within the time allowed for such removal, or are otherwise accounted for to the satisfaction of such officer; nor until the full duty due upon any deficiency of such goods, not so accounted for, has been paid.

107. The Chief Customs-Authority may permit

in respect of any goods shall, unless the Chief Officer of Customs in any case deems a fresh bond to be necessary, continue in force, notwithstanding the subsequent removal of such goods to another warehouse or warehousing port.

Clearance for home-consumption or shipment.

110. Any owner of goods warehoused may, at any time within three years from the date of the bond executed under section 92 in respect of such goods, clear such goods for home-consumption by paying (a) the duty assessed on such goods under section 87, or where the duty on such goods is altered under the provisions hereinafter contained, such altered duty; and (b) all rent, penalties, interest and other charges payable to the Customs-collector in respect of such goods.

111. Any owner of goods warehoused may, at any time within three years from the date of the bond executed under section 92, in respect of such goods clear such goods for shipment to a Foreign Port on payment of all rent, penalties, interest and other charges payable as aforesaid and without payment of import duty on the same :

Provided that the Governor General in Council may prohibit the shipment for exportation to any specified foreign port of warehoused goods in respect of which payment of drawback or transshipment has been prohibited under section 49 or 134 respectively.

112. Provisions and stores warehoused at the time of importation may within the said period of three years be shipped without payment of duty for use on board of any vessel proceeding to a Foreign Port.

Clearance of same for shipment as provisions, &c., on vessels proceeding to Foreign Ports.

113. Application to clear goods from any warehouse for home-consumption or for shipment shall be made in such form as the Chief Customs-Authority from time to time prescribes.

Form of application for clearance of goods.

Such application shall ordinarily be made to the Customs-collector at least twenty-four hours before it is intended so to clear such goods.

Application when to be made.

114. If any goods upon which duties are levied wine, spirit, beer or salt from any warehouse for home consumption that there exists a deficiency not otherwise accounted for to the satisfaction of the Customs-collector, an allowance on account of allage and wastage shall be made in adjusting the duties thereon, as follows (namely),

(a) upon wine, spirit and beer in cask to an extent not exceeding the rates specified below, or such other rates as may from time to time be prescribed in this behalf by the Local Government and notified in the official Gazette :

For any time not exceeding	6 months	...	24 per cent.
Exceeding 6 months and not exceeding	12 "	...	5 "
Exceeding 12 months and not exceeding	18 "	...	7 1/2 "
Exceeding 18 months and not exceeding	2 years	...	10 "
Exceeding 2 years and not exceeding	3 "	...	12 "

(b) in the case of salt warehoused in a public ware house, only the amount actually cleared shall be charged with Customs-duties ;

(c) in the case of salt warehoused in a private ware house, wastage shall be allowed at such rate as may be prescribed from time to time by the Local Government and notified in the local official Gazette.

117. When any wine, spirit, beer or salt lodged in a warehouse is found to be deficient at the time of the delivery therefrom, and such deficiency is proved to be due solely to allage or wastage, the Chief Customs-Authority may direct, in respect of any such article, that allowance be made in any special case for a rate of allage or wastage exceeding that contemplated in section 116.

Of the forfeiture and discharge of the bond.

118. If any warehoused goods are removed from the warehouse in contravention of section 102, or if any such goods have not been removed from the warehouse at the expiration of the time during which such goods are permitted by section 103 to remain in such warehouse ; or if any goods in respect of which a bond has been executed under section 92 and which have not been cleared for home-consumption, or shipment or removed under this Act, are lost or destroyed otherwise than as provided in section 100 or as mentioned in section 122, or are not accounted for to the satisfaction of the Customs-collector, or if any such goods have been taken under section 100 as samples without payment of duty, the Customs-collector may thereupon demand, and the owner of such goods shall forthwith pay, the full amount of duty chargeable on such goods, together with all rent, penalty, interest and other charges payable to the Customs-collector on account of the same.

When goods are improperly removed from warehouses or allowed to remain beyond time fixed.

immediately, the Customs-collector may forthwith either proceed upon the goods entered under section 92, or cause such portion as he thinks fit of the goods (if any) in the warehouse on account of which the amount is due to be detained with a view to the recovery of the demand ;

and if the demand be not discharged within ten days from the date of such detention (due notice thereof being given to the owner), the goods so detained may be sold by public auction duly advertised in the local official Gazette.

The net proceeds of any sale so made of goods so detained shall be written off upon the bond in discharge thereof to the amount received, and if any surplus be obtained from such sale, beyond the amount of the demand, such surplus shall be paid to the owner of the goods : Provided that application for the same be made within one year from the sale, or that sufficient cause be shown for not making the application within such period.

No transfer or assignment of the goods shall prevent the Customs-collector from proceeding against such goods in the manner above provided, for any amount due thereon.

120. When any warehoused goods are taken out of any warehouse, the Customs-collector shall cause the fact to be noted on the back of the bond.

Every note so made shall specify the quantity and description of such goods, the purposes for which they have been removed, the date of removal, the name of the person removing them, the number and date of the shipping bill under which they have been taken away if removed for exportation by sea, or of the bill of entry if removed for home-consumption, and the amount of duty paid (if any).

121. A register shall be kept of all bonds entered into for Customs-

Register of bonds. duties on warehoused goods, and entry shall be made in such register of all particulars required by section 120 to be specified.

When such register shows that the whole of the goods covered by any bond have been cleared for home-consumption or shipment, or otherwise duly accounted for, and when all amounts due on account of such goods have been paid, the Customs-collector shall cancel such bond as discharged in full, and shall on demand deliver it, so cancelled, to the person who has executed or who is entitled to receive it.

Cancellation and return of bonds.

Miscellaneous.

122. If any goods in respect of which a bond has been executed under section 92 and which have not been cleared for home consumption are lost or destroyed by unavoidable accident or delay, the Chief Customs-Authority may in its discretion remit the duties due thereon,

Power to remit duties on warehoused goods lost or destroyed; Provided that, if any such goods be so lost or destroyed in a private warehouse, notice thereof be given to the Customs-collector within forty-eight hours after the discovery of such loss or destruction.

123. The warehouse-keeper in respect of goods lodged in a public warehouse and the licensee in respect of goods lodged in a private warehouse shall be responsible for their due reception and delivery therefrom, and for their safe custody while deposited therein, according to the quantity, weight or gauge reported by the Customs-house officer who has assessed such goods, all advance being made, if necessary, for ullage and wastage as provided in sections 116 and 117.

Warehouse-keeper answerable for weight and gauge. Provided that no owner of goods shall be entitled to claim from the Customs-collector, or from any keeper of a public warehouse, compensation for any loss or damage occurring to such goods while they are being passed into or out of such warehouse, or while they remain therein, unless it be proved that such loss or damage was occasioned by the wilful act or neglect of the warehouse-keeper or of an officer of Customs.

124. Every public warehouse shall be under the lock and key of a warehouse-keeper appointed by the Chief Officer of Customs.

125. The Chief Customs-Authority, or such officer of customs as such Authority from time to time appoints in this behalf, may from time to time determine in what division of any public warehouse, and in what manner, and on what terms, any goods may be deposited, and what sort of goods may be deposited in any such warehouse.

126. The expenses of carriage, packing and stowage of goods on their reception into or removal from a public warehouse shall, if paid by the Customs-collector or by the warehouse-keeper, be chargeable on the goods, and be defrayed by, and recoverable from, the owner, in the manner provided in section 119.

Expenses of carriage, packing, &c., to be borne by owners.

127. All the provisions of this Act, relating to private warehouses, shall be applicable to the warehouses wherein the Bengal Bonded Warehouse Association receives bonded goods.

CHAPTER XII.

TRANSHIPMENT.

128. In the Ports of Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, Kárwár, Karachi, Aden, Rangoon, Maulmain, Akyab, Chittagong, and such other ports as the Government in Council may, from time to time, by notification in the Gazette of India, direct in this behalf, the Customs-collector may, on application of the owner of any goods imported into such Port, and specially and distinctly manifested at the time of importation as for transshipment to some other Customs or Foreign Port, grant leave to tranship the same without payment of the duty, (if any) leviable, at the Port of transshipment, and without any security or bond for the due arrival and entry of the goods at the Port of destination.

In any Customs-port other than a Port in which the preceding clause may for the time being be in force, the Customs-collector may, on application by the owner of any goods so imported and manifested, grant leave for transshipment without payment of the duty (if any) leviable at such Port; provided that, where the goods so transhipped are dutiable, and are to be removed to some other Customs-port, the applicant shall enter into a bond, with such security as may be required of him, in a sum equal at least to the duty chargeable on such goods, for the due arrival and entry thereof at the Port of destination within such time as such Customs-collector directs.

129. An officer of Customs shall, in every case, be deputed free of charge to superintend the removal of transhipped goods from vessel to vessel.

Superintendence of transshipment.

130. The powers conferred on the Customs-collector by section 128 shall be exercised, and the transshipment shall be performed, subject to such rules as may from time to time be made by the Local Government.

Subsidiary rules as to transshipment.

No rules made under this section shall come into force until after the expiry of such reasonable time from the date of the publication of the same as the Local Government may in each case appoint in this behalf.

131. All goods transhipped under the second clause of section 128 for removal to a Customs-port shall on their arrival at such Port be entered in like manner as goods are entered on the first importation thereof, and under the laws and rules, in so far as such laws and rules can be made applicable, which regulate the entry of such last-mentioned goods.

Entry and warehousing, on arrival, of goods transhipped under section 128, clause 2.

132. If two or more vessels belonging wholly or in part to the same owner be at any Customs-port at the same time, any provisions and stores in use or ordinarily shipped for use on board may, at the discretion of the Customs-collector, be transhipped from one such vessel to any other such vessel without payment of import-duty.

133. A transshipment-fee on any goods or class of goods transhipped under this Act, may be levied at such rates, on each bale or package, or according to weight, measurement, quantity, or number, and under such rules as the Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor-General in Council, may from time to time by notification in the local official Gazette prescribe for each port.

134. The Governor General in Council may from Power to prohibit transshipment.

time to time, by notification in the local official Gazette, prohibit, at any specified

Port, or at all Ports, the transshipment of any specified class of goods, generally or specially destined for any specified ports, or prescribe any special mode of transshipping any specified class of goods.

135. Except as provided in this Act, no goods shall be transhipped at any Port or

No goods to be shipped, &c., without entry outwards of vessel.

Customs-collector, no goods other than passengers' baggage, or ballast urgently required for a vessel's safety shall be shipped or water-borne to be shipped in any vessel in a Customs-port until an order has been obtained under section 61 for entry outwards of such vessel.

When such order has been obtained, the export cargo of such vessel may be shipped, subject to the provisions next hereinafter contained.

137. Unless the Chief Customs-Authority shall, Clearance for shipment.

in the case of any Customs-port or wharf, or of any class of goods, otherwise direct by notification in the local official Gazette, no goods, except passengers' baggage, shall be shipped or water-borne to be shipped for exportation, until—

(a) the owner has delivered to the Customs-collector, or other proper officer, a shipping-bill of such goods in duplicate in such form and containing such particulars in addition to those specified in section 29 as may from time to time be prescribed by the Chief Customs-Authority;

(b) such owner has paid the duties (if any) payable on such goods; and

(c) such bill has been passed by the Customs-collector.

138. Before any warehoused goods or goods

Bond required in certain cases before exportation.

subject to excise-duties, or goods entitled to drawback of Customs-duties on exportation or goods exportable only under particular rules or restrictions, are permitted to be exported, the owner shall, if required so to do, give security by bond in such sum, not exceeding twice the duty leviable on such goods, as the Customs-collector directs, with one sufficient surety, that such goods shall be duly shipped, exported and landed at the place for which they are entered outwards, or shall be otherwise accounted for to the satisfaction of such officer.

139. When goods are cleared for shipment on a shipping-bill presented after port-clearance has been granted, the Customs-collector may, if he thinks fit, levy, in addition to any duty to which such goods are ordinarily liable, a charge not exceeding—

(a) in the case of goods liable to duties on fixed tariff valuations, one per cent. on the tariff value;

(b) in the case of all other goods, one per cent. on the market value.

Nothing in this section shall apply to any shipment of treasure or opium.

140. If any goods mentioned in a shipping-bill are not shipped, or manifest be not shipped, or re-landed, and return of duty is required, the owner shall, before the expiration of five clear working days after the vessel on which such goods were intended to be shipped, or from which they were re-landed, has left the Port, give information in writing to the Customs-collector of the shipment or re-landing to the Customs-collector.

Upon an application being made to the Customs-collector, any duty levied upon goods not shipped, or upon goods shipped and afterwards re-landed, shall be refunded to the person on whose behalf such duty was paid: Provided that no such refund shall be allowed unless information has been given as above required.

141. If, after having cleared from any Customs-port any vessel, without having discharged her cargo, returns to such Port, or puts into any other Customs-port, any owner of goods in such vessel, if he desires to land or tranship the same or any portion thereof for re-export, may, with the consent of the Master, apply to the Customs-collector in that behalf.

The Customs-collector, if he grant the application, shall thereupon send an officer of Customs to watch the vessel, and to take charge of such goods during such re-landing, or transshipment.

Such goods shall not be allowed to be transhipped or re-exported free of duty by reason of the previous settlement of duty at the time of first export, unless they are lodged and remain until the time of re-export, under the custody of an officer of Customs, in a place appointed by the Customs-collector, or are transhipped under such custody.

All expenses attending such custody shall be borne by the owner.

142. In either of the cases mentioned in section 141, the Master of the vessel may enter such vessel inwards, and any owner of goods therein may, with the consent of the Master, land the same under the rules herein contained for the importation of goods.

In every such case, any export-duty levied shall be refunded to, and any amount paid in drawback shall be recovered from, such owner.

143. The Customs-collector may, on application by the Master of any vessel, which is obliged before completing her voyage to put into any Customs-port for repairs, permit him to land the cargo, or any portion thereof, and to place it in the custody of an officer of Customs during such repairs, and to re-ship and export the same free of duty.

All expenses attending such custody shall be borne by the Master.

CHAPTER XIV.

SPIRIT.

Exportation of spirit under bond for excise-duty.

144. The Chief Customs-Authority may from time to time make rules prescribing the conditions on which spirit manufactured in British India may be removed from any distillery for exportation without payment of excise-duty.

The person so removing any such spirit shall execute a bond, with one or more sureties, in the form and to the effect hereunto annexed, or (when such form is inadequate or insufficient) in such other form as the said Authority from time to time prescribe, conditioned that such duty shall be paid on all such spirit as is

(a) not exported within four months from the date of the bond, or

(b) exported to a Customs-port unless the payment of excise-duty as provided by this chapter in respect thereof at the port of destination is within six months from the date of the bond proved to the satisfaction of the proper officer.

The Chief Officer of Customs of the port of exportation may, on sufficient cause shown, extend for a further term not exceeding four months the period allowed for the exportation of any such spirit, or for the production of such proof that duty has been paid.

145. Spirit intended for exportation under bond for the excise-duty shall be taken from the distillery direct to the Customs-house, under passes to be granted for that purpose by the officers of Excise.

146. Spirit brought to the Custom-house for exportation under bond for the excise-duty shall, previous to shipment, be gauged and proved by an officer of Customs, and the quantity of spirit for which credit is to be given in the settlement of any bond shall be determined in the same manner.

147. Excise-duty shall be recoverable previous to shipment upon the excess over the quantity ascertained by gauge and proof at the Custom-house, less an allowance for ullage and wastage at such rates as are from time to time prescribed by the Local Government and notified in the local official Gazette.

148. Spirit exported under bond for excise-duty from any Customs-port to any other Customs-port, shall be charged at the Port of importation with excise-duty at the ordinary rate to which spirit of the like kind and strength is liable at such Port.

149. Spirit brought to the Custom-house for exportation under bond for the excise-duty may, on payment of such duty, be removed for local consumption under passes to be granted for that purpose by the officers of Excise.

Of lit for every such payment shall be given in discharge of the bond to which it relates.

Drawback of excise-duty on export of spirit.
The drawback of excise-duty paid on spirit manufactured in British India and exported to any Foreign Port under the provisions of section 138, shall be allowed by the Customs-collector at the Port of exportation:

Provided that the exportation be made within one year from the date of payment of such excise-duty, and that the spirit, when brought to the Custom-house, be accompanied by a pass in which such payment is certified.

Such drawback shall be regulated by the strength and quantity of such spirit as ascertained by gauge and proof by an officer of customs.

Miscellaneous.

151. If spirit manufactured in British India upon which excise-duty has been paid is exported from one Customs port to another, and the rate of local excise-duty at the port of importation is higher than that already paid upon such spirit, a differential duty shall be charged thereon, at such rate as the Local Government at such Port may by notification in the local official Gazette from time to time prescribe.

152. Rum-shrub, cordial, and other such liquor prepared in a licensed distillery under the supervision of the surveyor or officer in charge of the distillery, shall be charged with excise-duty under this Act according to the quantity of spirit used in its preparation as ascertained by such surveyor or officer.

The provisions of this Act respecting spirit, except such as relate to gauge and proof, shall apply to such liquor.

153. No drawback shall be allowed for any spirit on which duty has been paid, nor shall the duty due on any spirit under bond be remitted, unless the spirit is shipped from the Customs-house, and in a vessel whereon an officer of Customs has been appointed to superintend the receipt of export-cargo.

154. No spirit shipped for exportation shall be re-landed without a special pass from an officer of Excise, in addition to any permission of an officer of Customs which may be required by the law for the time being in force.

155. When by any law for the time being in force a special duty is imposed on spirit rendered unfit for human consumption, the Local Government may from time to time make rules for ascertaining and determining what spirit imported into British India shall be deemed to have been effectually and permanently so rendered unfit and for causing such spirit to be so rendered, if necessary, by their own officers, and at the expense of the person importing the same, before the Customs-duties leviable thereon are levied.

In the absence of any such rules, or if any dispute arises as to their applicability, the Chief Customs-Officer shall decide what spirit is subject to the said special duty, and his decision shall be final.

CHAPTER XV. COASTING TRADE.

156. Except as hereinafter provided, nothing in Chapters VII, IX, X, and part of XIII inapplicable to coasting trade, sections 136, 139 and 141-143 inclusive of this Act shall apply to coasting vessels or to goods imported or exported in such vessels.

157. The Local Government may, from time to time, make rules consistent with the provisions of this Chapter,

(a) extending any provision of the Chapters and Sections mentioned in section 156 with or without modification to any coasting vessels or to any goods imported or exported in such vessels;

(b) exempting any such vessels or goods from any of the other provisions of this Act except those contained in this Chapter;

(c) prescribing the conditions on which goods, or any specified class of goods, may be (1) carried in a coasting vessel, whether shipped at a Foreign Port, or at a Customs-port, or at a place declared under section 12 to be a port; (2) shipped in a coasting vessel before all dutiable goods and goods brought in such vessel from a Foreign Port have been unladen;

(d) prohibiting the conveyance of any specified class of goods generally, or to or between specified Ports in a coasting vessel.

158. Before any coasting vessel departs from the port of lading or when there are more ports of lading than one, the first port of lading, the Master shall fill in, sign and deliver to the

Customs-collector a manifest in duplicate containing a true specification of all goods to be carried in such vessel, in such form, and accompanied by such shipping-bills or other documents as may from time to time be prescribed by the Chief Customs-Authority.

If the Customs-collector sees no objection to the departure of the vessel, he shall retain the duplicate and return the original manifest dated and signed by him together with its accompaniments; and such manifest shall be the port-clearance of the vessel unless, under the general orders of the Chief Customs-Authority, a separate port-clearance be prescribed.

159. Within twenty-four hours after the arrival of any coasting vessel at any Customs-port, whether intermediate or final, and before any goods are there discharged, the manifest, together with the other documents referred to in section 158, shall be delivered to the Customs-collector, who shall note on the manifest the date of delivery.

If the vessel has touched at any Foreign Port between such Port of arrival and her last proceeding Customs-port of departure, the Master shall append to the manifest a declaration to that effect, and shall also indicate on the manifest the portions (if any) of the cargo therein described which have been discharged, and subjoin thereto a true specification of all goods shipped at such Port.

If the Customs-port of arrival be an intermediate Port, and a portion only of the cargo is to be discharged thereat, the Master shall likewise so deliver an extract from the manifest signed by him relating to such portion, and the Customs-collector shall, after verifying such extract, return to the Master the original manifest and all documents accompanying it except those relating to such portion.

If in any case the manifest actually on board any coasting vessel on her arrival at any Customs-port does not, owing to short-shipment, or for any other cause, correspond with the specification thereof in the manifest returned to the Master under the second clause of section 158, such Master shall, before delivery of such manifest under this section, note thereon the particulars of the difference.

The Customs-collector, when satisfied with the manifest and other documents, shall grant an order to break bulk.

160. Before any coasting vessel departs from any Customs-port at which she has touched during her voyage, the Master shall deliver the original manifest to the Customs-collector, after indicating thereon the portions (if any) of the cargo therein described which have been discharged, and subjoining thereto a true specification of all goods shipped at such Port. He shall also deliver a duplicate, signed by him, of the specification so subjoined.

If the Customs-collector sees no objection to the departure of the vessel, he shall proceed as prescribed in the second clause of section 158.

161. The Customs-collector may, for sufficient reason, refuse port-clearance to any coasting vessel declared to be bound to, or about touch at, any Customs-port, unless the owner or Master gives a bond with such security as the Customs-collector deems sufficient for the production to the Customs-collector of a certificate from the proper officer of the Port to which such vessel is said to be bound, of her arrival at such Port within a reasonable time to be prescribed in each case by the Customs-collector.

162. When permission has been granted by the Customs-collector for the discharge of cargo from any coasting vessel—

(a) if the vessel has not touched at any intermediate Foreign Port in the course of her voyage, and has not on board any dutiable goods, the cargo may be forthwith landed and removed by the owner, without entry thereof at the Custom-house and clearance for home-consumption, but subject to such general check and control as the Chief Customs-Authority may from time to time by rules prescribe;

(b) if the vessel has so touched at any such Port, or has on board any such goods, such vessel shall be subject to all the provisions of Chapter VII of this Act relating to vessels arriving and such goods, and until such goods have been duly discharged all other goods on board shall be subject to the provisions of Chapter IX of this Act relating to goods imported.

163. If any of the goods on board of any coasting vessel be subject to any excise-duty, they shall not be unladen without the permission of the officer of Excise.

164. Notwithstanding anything contained in the Customs Act, 1859, the Chief Customs-Authority may authorize the Customs-collector to grant a general pass, on any conditions which such Authority thinks expedient, for the lading and clearance, and for the entry and unlading, of any coasting steam-vessel at any Ports of despatch or destination, or at any intermediate Ports at which she touches for the purpose of receiving goods or passengers.

Such pass shall be valid throughout British India, or for such Ports only as may be specified therein.

Any such general pass may be revoked by order of the Chief Customs-Authority by whom the grant thereof was authorized, by notice in writing under the hand of such Authority, delivered to the Master or to the owner of such steam-vessel, or to any of the crew on board.

165. The Chief Customs-Authority may direct that the Master of any coasting vessel which is square-rigged or propelled by steam shall keep, or cause to be kept, a cargo-book, stating the name of the Master, the vessel, the Port to which she belongs, and the Port to which on each voyage she is bound.

At every Port of lading such Master shall enter, or cause to be entered, in such book the name of such Port, and an account of all goods there taken on board of such vessel, with a description of the packages, and the quantities and descriptions of the goods contained therein or stowed loose, and the names of the respective shippers and consignees, in so far as such particulars are known to him.

At every Port of discharge of any such goods such Master shall enter, or cause to be entered, in such book the respective days on which such goods or any of them are delivered out of such vessel.

The respective times of departure from every Port of lading, and of arrival at every Port of discharge, shall in like manner be duly entered.

Such Master shall, on demand, produce his cargo-book for the inspection of any officer of Customs, and such officer shall be at liberty to make any note or remark therein.

The Chief Customs-Authority may, in the case of any vessel the Master whereof has been directed to keep a cargo-book under this section, dispense with the manifest required under sections 158, 159 and 160.

166. Any duly empowered officer of Customs may go on board of any coasting vessel in any Port or place in British India, and may at any period of a voyage search any such vessel and examine all goods on board, and all goods then lading or unlading, and may demand the production of any document, which ought to be on board of any such vessel.

The Customs-collector may further require that any such document belonging to any coasting vessel then in Port shall be brought to him for inspection.

CHAPTER XVI.

63.—If, contrary to any such rules, any coasting vessel touches at any Foreign Port, or deviates from her voyage, unless forced by unavoidable circumstances; or if the Master of any such vessel which has touched at a Foreign Port fails to declare the same in writing to the Customs-collector at the Customs-port at which such vessel afterwards first arrives,	159	the Master of such vessel shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees; and if any goods liable to export duty have been landed from, or any goods liable to import duty have been shipped in, such vessel at such Foreign Port such Master shall further be liable to a penalty not exceeding three times the duty which would have been leviable on such goods if they had been exported from or imported at a Customs Port to or from Foreign Port, as the case may be.
64.—If in the case of any coasting vessel any of the provisions of section 158, 159 or 160 are not complied with,	158, 159 & 160	the Master of such vessel shall in each such case be liable to a penalty not exceeding five hundred rupees.
65.—If the person executing any bond given under section 161 fail to produce the certificate mentioned in the same section, or to show sufficient reason for its non-production,	161	such person shall be bound to pay a penalty equal to double the amount of Customs-duties which would have been chargeable on the export-cargo of the vessel had such vessel been bound to be bound to a Foreign Port.
66.—If the Master of any coasting vessel violates any of the conditions under which a general pass for such vessel has been granted,	161	such Master shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees.
67.—If any Master of a coasting vessel contravenes any of the provisions of section 165,	165	such Master shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five hundred rupees.
68.—If upon examination, any package entered in the cargo-book required by section 165, as containing dutiable goods, is found not to contain such goods; or if any package is found to contain dutiable goods not entered, or not entered as such, in such book,	165	such package, with its contents, shall be liable to confiscation.
69.—If the Master of any coasting vessel required under section 165 to keep a cargo book fails correctly to keep, or to cause to be kept, such book, or to produce the same on demand; or if at any time there be found on board of any such vessel any goods not entered in such book as laden, or any goods noted as delivered; or if any goods entered as laden and not noted as delivered, be not on board,	165	such Master shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five hundred rupees.
70.—If, contrary to the provisions of this or any other law for the time being in force relating to the Customs, any goods are laden on board of any vessel in any Customs-port and carried coastwise; or	Chapter XV.	such goods shall be liable to confiscation, and the Master of such vessel shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five hundred rupees.

OFFENCES AND PENALTIES—contd.

Offences.	Section of this Act to which offence has reference.	Penalties.
if any goods which have been brought coastwise are so unladen in any such Port; or if any goods are found on board of any coasting vessel without being entered in the manifest or cargo book or both (as the case may be) of such vessel,
71.—If the Master of any coasting vessel refuses to bring any document to the Customs-collector when so required under section 166,	166	such Master shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding two hundred rupees.
72.—If any person makes or signs, or uses, any declaration or document used in the transaction of any business relating to the Customs, knowing such declaration or document to be false in any particular; or counterfeits, falsifies or fraudulently alters or destroys any such document, or any seal, signature, initials or other mark, made or impressed by any officer of Customs in the transaction of any business relating to the Customs; or being required under this Act to produce any document, refuses or neglects to produce such document; or being required under this Act to answer any question put to him by an officer of Customs, does not truly answer such question,	General	such person shall, on conviction of any such offence before a Magistrate, be liable to a fine not exceeding one thousand rupees.
73.—If any person on board of any vessel or boat in any Customs-port, or who has landed from any such vessel or boat, upon being asked by any such officer whether he has dutiable or prohibited goods about his person or in his possession, declares that he has not, and if any such goods are, after such denial, found about his person, or in his possession,	General	such goods shall be liable to confiscation, and such person shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding three times the value of such goods.
74.—If any officer of Customs requires any person to be searched for dutiable or prohibited goods, or to be detained, without having reasonable ground to believe that he has such goods about his person, or has been guilty of an offence relating to the Customs,	169	such officer shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be liable to a fine not exceeding five hundred rupees.
75.—If any officer of Customs, or other person duly employed for the prevention of smuggling, is guilty of a wilful breach of the provisions of this Act,	General	such officer or person shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be liable to simple imprisonment for any term not exceeding two years, or to fine, or to both.
76.—If any officer of Customs, or other person duly employed for the prevention of smuggling, practises, or attempts to practise, any fraud for the purpose of injuring the Customs-revenue, or abets or connives at any such fraud, or any attempt to practise any such fraud,	General	Ditto ditto.

OFFENCES AND PENALTIES—contd.

Offences.	Section of this Act to which offence has reference.	Penalties.
77.—If any Police-officer, whose duty it is, under section 180, to send a written notice or cause goods to be conveyed to a Custom-house, neglects so to do,	180	such officer shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be liable to a penalty not exceeding one hundred rupees.
78.—If any person intentionally obstructs any officer of Customs or other person duly employed for the prevention of smuggling, in the exercise of any powers given under this Act to such officer or person,	General	such person shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be liable to imprisonment for any term not exceeding six months, or to a fine not exceeding one thousand rupees, or to both.
79.—If any officer of customs except in the discharge in good faith of his duty as such officer, discloses any particulars learned by him in his official capacity in respect of any goods, or shows any samples delivered to him in such capacity, or if any officer of Customs except as permitted by this Act, parts with the possession of any samples delivered to him in his official capacity.	195	he shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand rupees.
80.—If any person, without the approval of the Customs-collector under section 202, acts as an agent for the transaction of business as therein mentioned,	202	such person shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five hundred rupees.

Nothing in the second column of the above schedule shall be deemed to imply any law.

168. The confiscation of any goods under this Act includes any package in which they are found, and all the other contents thereof.

Packages and contents included in confiscation of goods.

Every vessel, cart or other means of conveyance, and every horse or other animal used in the removal of any goods liable to confiscation under this Act shall in like manner be liable to confiscation.

Also conveyances and animals used in removal.

The confiscation of any vessel under this Act includes her tackle, apparel and furniture.

Tackle, &c., included in confiscation of vessels.

CHAPTER XVII.

PROCEDURE RELATING TO OFFENCES, APPEALS, &c.

169. Any officer of Customs duly employed in the prevention of smuggling may search any person on board of any vessel in any Port in British India, or any person who has landed from any vessel:

Power to search on reasonable suspicion.

Provided that such officer has reason to believe that such person has dutiable or prohibited goods secreted about his person.

170. When any officer of Customs is about to search any person under the provisions of section 169, such person may require the said officer to take him, previous to search, before the nearest Magistrate or Customs-collector.

Persons may, before search, require to be taken before Magistrate or Customs-collector.

If such requisition be made, the officer of Customs may detain the person making it until he can bring him before the nearest Magistrate or Customs-collector.

The Magistrate or Customs-collector before whom any person is so brought shall, if he see no reasonable ground for search, forthwith discharge such person; but if otherwise, shall direct that the search be made.

A female shall not be searched by any but a female.

171. Any duly empowered officer of Customs or other person duly employed for the prevention of smuggling, may stop and search for smuggled goods any vessel, cart or other means of conveyance; provided that he has reason to believe that smuggled goods are contained therein.

Power to stop vessels, carts, &c., and search for goods on reasonable suspicion.

172. Any Magistrate may, on application by a Customs-collector, stating his belief that dutiable or prohibited goods are secreted in any place within the local limits of the jurisdiction of such Magistrate, issue a warrant to search for such goods.

Power to issue search-warrants.

Such warrant shall be executed in the same way, and shall have the same effect, as a search-warrant issued under the law relating to Criminal Procedure.

173. Any person against whom a reasonable suspicion exists that he has been guilty of an offence under this Act, may be arrested in any place, either upon land or water, by any officer of Customs or other person duly employed for the prevention of smuggling:

Persons reasonably suspected may be arrested.

174. Every person arrested on the ground that he has been guilty of an offence under this Act, shall forthwith be taken before the nearest Magistrate or Customs-collector.

175. When any such person is taken before a Magistrate, such Magistrate may, if he thinks fit, either commit him to gaol or order him to be kept in the custody of the Police for such time as is necessary to enable such Magistrate to communicate with the proper officers of Customs:

Provided that any person so arrested, committed, or kept shall be released on giving security to the satisfaction of the Magistrate to appear at such time and place as such Magistrate appoints in this behalf.

176. If any person liable to be arrested under this Act, is not arrested at the time of committing the offence for which he is so liable, or after arrest, makes his escape, he may at any time afterwards be arrested and taken before a Magistrate, to be dealt with as if he had been arrested at the time of committing such offence.

177. When any person employed on the crew of any of the ships of Her Majesty's Navy, Indian Marine or Marine Survey is arrested under this Act, the arresting officer shall forthwith give notice thereof to the commanding officer of the ship, who shall thereupon place such person in security on board of such ship, until the arresting officer has obtained a warrant from a Magistrate for bringing up such person to be dealt with according to law.

The Magistrate shall grant such warrant upon complaint made to him by the arresting officer, stating the offence for which the person is detained.

178. Any thing liable to confiscation under this Act may be seized in any place, either upon land or water, by any officer of Customs or other person duly employed for the prevention of smuggling.

179. All things seized on the ground that they are liable to confiscation under this Act shall, as soon as conveniently may be, be delivered into the care of any Customs officer authorized to receive the same.

If there be no such officer at hand, all such things shall be carried to and deposited at the Custom-house nearest to the place of seizure.

If there be no Custom-house within a convenient distance, such things shall be deposited at the nearest place appointed by the Chief Customs-Authority for the deposit of things seized.

180. When any things liable to confiscation under this Act are seized by any Police-officer on suspicion that they have been stolen, he may carry them to any Police-station or Court at which a complaint connected with the stealing or receiving of such things has been made, or an enquiry connected with such stealing or receiving is in progress, and there detain such things until the dismissal of such complaint or the conclusion of such enquiry or of any trial thence resulting:

In every such case the Police-officer seizing the things shall send written notice of their seizure and detention to the nearest Custom-house; and immediately after the dismissal of the complaint or the conclusion of the enquiry or trial, he shall cause such things to be conveyed to, and deposited at, the nearest Custom-house, to be there proceeded against according to law.

181. When any thing is or seized, or any person is arrested, under this Act, the officer or other person making such seizure or arrest shall, on demand of the person in charge of the thing so seized, or of the person so arrested, give him a statement in writing of the reason for such seizure or arrest.

182. In every case except the cases mentioned in section 167, Nos. 26, 72 and 74 to 76 both inclusive, in which, under this Act, anything is liable to confiscation or to increased rates of duty; or any person is liable to a penalty, such confiscation, increased rate of duty or penalty may be adjudged—

(a) without limit, by a Deputy Commissioner or Deputy Collector of Customs, or a Customs-collector;

(b) up to confiscation of goods not exceeding two hundred and fifty rupees in value, and imposition of penalty or increased duty not exceeding one-hundred rupees by an Assistant Commissioner or Assistant Collector of Customs;

(c) up to confiscation of goods not exceeding fifty rupees in value, and imposition of penalty or increased duty not exceeding ten rupees, by such other subordinate officers of Customs as the Local Government may, from time to time, empower in that behalf in virtue of their office:

Provided that the Local Government may, in the case of any officer, performing the duties of a Customs-collector, limit his powers to those indicated in clause (b) or in clause (c) of this section, and may confer on any officer by name, or in virtue of his office, the powers indicated in clauses (a), (b) or (c) of this section.

183. Whenever confiscation is authorized by this Act, the officer adjudging it shall give the owner of the goods an option to pay in lieu of confiscation such fine as the officer thinks fit.

184. When anything is confiscated under section 182, such thing shall thereupon vest in Her Majesty.

The officer adjudging confiscation shall take and hold possession of the thing confiscated, and every officer of Police, on the requisition of such officer, shall assist him in taking and holding such possession.

185. If any vessel actually departs without a port-clearance, or after failing to bring-to when required at any station appointed under section 17, the penalty to which the Master of such vessel is liable may be adjudged by the Chief Customs Officer of any Customs-port to which such vessel proceeds, or in which she is, and in the case of Aden, by such officer as the Governor of Bombay in Council appoints in this behalf.

A certificate of such departure or failure to bring-to when required, purporting to be signed by the Chief Customs Officer of the Port from which the vessel is stated to have so departed, shall be prima facie proof of the fact so certified.

186. The award of any confiscation, penalty or increased rate of duty under this Act by an officer of Customs shall not prevent the infliction of any punishment to which the person affected thereby is liable under any other law.

187. All offences against this Act, other than those cognizable under section 182 by officers of Customs may be tried summarily by a Magistrate.

188. Any person deeming himself aggrieved by any decision or order passed by an officer of customs under this Act may, within three months from the date of such decision or order, appeal therefrom to the Chief Customs-Authority, or, in such cases as the Local Government directs, to any officer of Customs not inferior in rank to a Customs Collector and empowered in that behalf by name or in virtue of his office by the Local Government.

Such authority or officer may thereupon make such further enquiry and pass such order as he thinks fit, confirming, altering or annulling the decision or order appealed against:

Provided that no such order in appeal shall have the effect of subjecting any person to any greater confiscation, penalty or rate of duty than has been adjudged against him in the original decision or order.

Every order passed in appeal under this section shall, subject to the power of revision conferred by section 191, be final.

189. Where the decision or order appealed against relates to any duty or penalty leviable in respect of any goods, the owner of such goods, if desirous of appealing against such decision or order, shall, pending the appeal, deposit in the hands of the Customs-collector at the Port where the dispute arises the amount demanded by the officer passing such decision or order.

When delivery of such goods to the owner thereof is withheld merely by reason of such amount not being paid, the Customs-collector shall upon such deposit being made cause such goods to be delivered to such owner.

If upon any such appeal it is decided that the whole or any portion of such amount was not leviable in respect of such goods, the Customs-collector shall return such amount or portion (as the case may be) to the owner of such goods on demand by such owner.

190. If, upon consideration of the circumstances under which any penalty, increased rate of duty or confiscation has been adjudged under this Act by an officer of Customs, the Chief Customs-Authority is of opinion that such penalty, increased rate or confiscation ought to be remitted in whole or in part, or commuted, such Authority may remit the same or any portion thereof, or may, with the consent of the owner of any goods ordered to be confiscated, commute the order of confiscation to a penalty not exceeding the value of such goods.

191. The Local Government may on the application of any person aggrieved by any decision or order passed under this Act by any officer of Customs or Chief Customs-Authority, and from which no appeal lies, reverse or modify such decision or order.

192. When any fine, penalty or increased rate of duty is leviable under this Act, the goods in respect of which such fine, penalty or rate is leviable shall not be removed by the owner until such fine, penalty or rate is paid.

If any person has become liable to any such fine, penalty or rate in respect of any goods, the Customs-collector may detain any other goods belonging to such person passing through the Custom-house until such fine, penalty or rate is paid.

193. When a penalty or increased rate of duty is adjudged against any person under this Act by any officer of Customs, such officer, if such penalty or increased rate be not paid, may levy the same by sale of any goods of the said person which may be in his charge, or in the charge of any other officer of Customs.

When an officer of Customs who has adjudged a penalty or increased rate of duty against any person under this Act is unable to realize the unpaid amount thereof from such goods, such officer may notify in writing to any Magistrate within the local limits of whose jurisdiction such person or any goods belonging to him may be, the name and residence of the said person and the amount of penalty or increased rate of duty unrecovered; and such Magistrate shall thereupon proceed to enforce payment of the said amount in like manner as if such penalty or increased rate had been a fine inflicted by himself.

CHAPTER XVIII.

MISCELLANEOUS.

194. Any officer of Customs may open any package, and examine any goods brought by sea to, or shipped or brought for shipment at, any Customs-port.

195. The Customs-collector may, on the entry or clearance of any goods, or at any time while such goods are being passed through the Custom-house, take samples of such goods, for examination or for ascertaining the value thereof on which duties are payable, or for any other necessary purpose.

Every such sample shall, if practicable, be at the option of the owner either restored to him, or sold and the proceeds accounted for to him.

196. The unshipping, carrying, shipping and landing of all goods,

Owner to pay expense incidental to compliance with Customs-law.

and the bringing of them to the proper place for examination or weighing, and the putting of them into and out of the scales, and the opening, unpacking, bulking, sorting, lotting, marking and numbering of goods, where such operations are necessary or permitted, and the removing of goods to, and the placing of them in, the proper place of deposit, shall be performed by or at the expense of the owner of such goods.

197. No owner of goods shall be entitled to claim

No compensation for loss or injury except on proof of neglect or wilful act.

from any officer of Customs compensation for any loss or damage occurring to such goods at any time while they remain or are lawfully detained in any Custom-house, or on any Custom-house wharf, or under charge of any officer of Customs, unless it be proved that such loss or damage was occasioned by the neglect or wilful act of such officer of Customs.

198. No proceeding other than a suit shall be

Act without giving to such person a month's previous notice in writing of the intended proceeding, and of the cause thereof; or after the expiration of three months from the Limitation. accrual of such cause.

199. The Chief Customs-Authority may from time to time fix the period

Wharfage-fees.

after the expiration of which goods left on any Custom-house wharf, or other authorized landing place or part of the Custom-house premises, shall be subject to payment of fees, and the amount of such fees.

200. A duplicate of any certificate, manifest,

Duplicates of documents may be granted on payment of fee.

bill or other Custom-house document may, on payment of a fee not exceeding ten rupees, be furnished, at the discretion of the Customs-collector, to any person applying for the same, if the Customs-collector is satisfied that no fraud has been committed or is intended by the applicant.

201. Except in the cases provided for by sections

Amendment of documents.

36, 55, 63 and 94, the Customs-collector may in his discretion, upon payment of one rupee, authorize any document, after it has been entered and recorded in the Custom-house, to be amended.

202. No person shall act as an agent

Custom-house agents.

for the transaction of any business relating to the entrance or clearance of any vessel, or the import or export of goods or baggage, shall so act in any Custom-house, unless such authorization is approved by the Customs-collector.

Such officer may require any person so authorized to give a bond with sufficient security, in any sum not exceeding five thousand rupees, for his faithful behaviour as regards the Custom-house regulations and officers.

Such officer may, in case of misbehaviour of the person so authorized, suspend or withdraw such approval, but an appeal against every such suspension or withdrawal shall lie to the Chief Customs-Authority, whose decision thereon shall be final.

Every appeal under this section shall be made within one month of the suspension or withdrawal.

203. When any person applies to any officer

Agent to produce authority if required.

of Customs for permission to transact any specified business with him on behalf of any other person, such officer may require the applicant to produce a written authority from the person on whose behalf such business is to be transacted, and in default of the production of such authority may refuse such permission.

The clerk, servant, or agent, of any person or mercantile firm, may transact business generally at the Custom-house on behalf of such person or firm: Provided that the Customs-collector may refuse to recognize such clerk, servant or agent unless such person or a member of such firm identifies such clerk, servant or agent to the Customs-collector as empowered to transact such business, and deposits with the Customs-collector an authority in writing duly signed, authorizing such clerk, servant or agent to transact such business on behalf of such person or firm.

204. All rules made under this Act shall be

D. FITZPATRICK,
Secy. to the Govt. of India.

(Second Publication.)

The following Act of the Governor General of India in Council received the assent of His Excellency the Governor General on the 14th March 1878, and is, together with the Statement of Objects and Reasons, hereby promulgated for general information:—

ACT No. IX OF 1878.

An Act for the better Control of Publications in Oriental languages.

WHEREAS certain publications in oriental languages printed or circulated in British India have of late contained matter likely to excite disaffection to the Government established by law in British India, or antipathy between persons of different races, castes, religions, or sects in British India, or have been used as means of intimidation or extortion:

And whereas such publications are read by and disseminated amongst large numbers of ignorant and unintelligent persons, and are thus likely to have an influence which they otherwise would not possess; and whereas it is accordingly necessary for the maintenance of the public tranquillity and for the security of Her Majesty's subjects and others to confer on the executive Government power to control the printing and circulation of such publications: It is hereby enacted as follows:—

1. This section and sections eleven to sixteen both inclusive apply to the whole of British India; the other sections of this Act apply only to those parts of British India to which they may from time to time be extended by the Governor General in Council by a notification in the Gazette of India.

Interpretation clause. 2. In this Act—

'Newspaper' means any periodical work containing public news, or communications on public news, printed wholly or partially in any oriental language, and includes two or more copies of a newspaper bearing the same name, whether published on the same day or on different days, and also includes any series of newspapers, whether printed on one day or different days, or with one name or with different names; and

'Print,' 'printed' and 'printer' apply not only to printing, but also to lithography, engraving and photography.

3. Any Magistrate of a district or Commissioner of Police in a Presidency town, within the local limits of whose jurisdiction any newspaper is printed or published, may, with the previous sanction of the Local Government and subject to the provisions of section five, call upon the printer and publisher of such newspaper to enter into a joint and several bond, or when the printer and publisher of such newspaper are the same person, call upon such person to enter into a bond, with himself or himself, as the case may be, in such sum as the Local Government thinks fit, not to—

(a) print or publish in such newspaper any words, signs, or visible representations, likely to excite disaffection to the Government established by law in British India or antipathy between any persons of different races, castes, religions, or sects in British India; or

- (b) use or attempt to use such newspaper

for the purpose of putting any person in fear or causing annoyance to him and thereby inducing him to deliver to any person any property or valuable security, or anything signed or sealed which may be converted into a valuable security, or to give any gratification to any person, or for the purpose of holding out any threat of injury to a public servant, or to any person in whom they or he believe or believes that public servant to be interested, and thereby inducing that public servant to do any act, or to forbear or delay to do any act, connected with the exercise of his public functions.

EXPLANATION.—"Valuable security," "gratification" and "public servant" are used in this section in the senses in which they are respectively used in the Indian Penal Code.

4. When any bond is executed under section three, the said Magistrate or Commissioner may further require the obligor or obligors of the same to deposit the amount thereof in money or the equivalent thereof in securities of the Government of India; and the money or securities so deposited shall, subject to the provisions hereinafter contained, remain so deposited until fifteen days after the person or persons depositing the same has or have made and subscribed a declaration under Act No. XXV of 1867, section eight.

When such person or persons has or have subscribed such a declaration, and fifteen days have elapsed from the date of subscribing the same, he or they may apply to the said Magistrate or Commissioner for the restoration of the said money or securities, and thereupon such money or securities shall, subject to the provisions hereinafter contained, be restored to such person or persons.

5. When any publisher or printer is called upon by a Magistrate or Commissioner of Police to execute a bond under this Act in respect of any newspaper, the publisher of such newspaper may deliver to such Magistrate or Commissioner an undertaking in writing to the effect that no words, signs, or visible representations shall, during the year next following the date of such undertaking, be printed or published in such newspaper which have not previously been submitted to such officer as the Local Government may appoint in this behalf, by name or in virtue of his office, or which on being so submitted have been objected to by such officer.

When such undertaking has been so delivered, no such bond or deposit shall be required from the publisher or printer of such newspaper during the said year.

6. Whenever it appears to the Local Government that any newspaper printed or published in the territories under its administration, contains any words, signs, or visible representations of the nature described in section three, clause (a), or that any such newspaper has been used or attempted to be used for any purpose described in the same section, clause (b), such Local Government may cause a notice in the form in the schedule hereto annexed, or to the like effect, to be published in the local official Gazette.

7. A true copy of such notice shall be fixed on some conspicuous part of the premises described in the declaration made in respect of the newspaper under the said Act No. XXV of 1867, section five, and the copy so fixed shall be deemed to have been duly served on the printer and publisher of such paper.

8. If after the publication of such notice and the service thereof, the newspaper in respect of which it has been issued contains any words, signs, or visible representations of the nature described in section three, clause (a), or is used, or attempted to be used, for any purpose described in the same section, clause (b), all printing presses, engines, machinery, types, lithographic stones, paper, and other implements, utensils, plant, and materials used or employed, or intended to be used or employed, in or for the purpose of printing or publishing such newspaper, or found in or about any premises where such newspaper is printed or published, and

all copies of such newspaper wherever found, and

any money or securities which the printer or publisher of such newspaper may have deposited under the provisions of section three, shall be liable to be forfeited to Her Majesty.

Provided that the publisher of any newspaper may, on the publication of a notice in respect thereof under section six, and before anything has become liable to forfeiture under this section in respect of such newspaper, deliver to the Magistrate of the District or to the Commissioner of Police in a Presidency town, within the local limits of whose jurisdiction such newspaper is published, an undertaking in writing of the nature specified in section five, and, if such Magistrate or Commissioner accepts such undertaking, nothing shall become liable to forfeiture under this section between the date on which such undertaking is so accepted and the end of the period for which it is given.

9. Whenever it appears to the Local Government that any money or security deposited under this Act in respect of any newspaper is liable to be forfeited under section eight, such Local Government may, by a notification in the local official Gazette, declare such money or security to be forfeited;

And whenever it appears to the Local Government that any implements, utensils, plant or materials used or employed or intended to be used or employed in or for the purpose of printing or publishing any newspaper, or which is or are in or about any premises where such newspaper is printed or published, or any copies of any newspaper, is or are liable to be forfeited under that section,

the Local Government may declare such implements, utensils, plant, materials or copies to be forfeited and may by warrant issued by its authority under the hand of any Magistrate, empower any person to seize and take away such implements, utensils, plant, materials, and copies wherever found, and to enter upon any premises

(a) where the newspaper specified in such warrant is printed or published, or

(b) where any such implements, utensils, plant, or materials may be or may be reasonably suspected to be, or

(c) where any copy of such newspaper is sold, distributed, published, or publicly exhibited, or reasonably suspected to be sold, distributed, published, or publicly exhibited, or kept for sale, distribution, publication, or public exhibition, or reasonably suspected to be so kept,

and search for such implements, utensils, plant, materials, and copies.

Every warrant issued under this section, so far as relates to a search, shall be executed in manner provided for the execution of search-warrants under the law relating to criminal procedure for the time being in force.

10. When any book, pamphlet, placard, broadsheet, or other document printed wholly or partially in any oriental language in British India contains any words, signs, or visible representations which are of the nature described in section three, clause (a),

or when any such book, pamphlet, placard, broadsheet, or other document has been used or attempted to be used for any purpose described in the same section, clause (b), all printing presses, engines, machinery, types, lithographic stones, paper, and other implements, utensils, plant, and materials used or employed in or for the purpose of printing or publishing such book, pamphlet, placard, broadsheet, or other document, or found in or about any premises where the same is printed or published, and all copies of such book, pamphlet, placard, broadsheet or other document, shall be liable to be forfeited to Her Majesty.

Whenever it appears to the Local Government that anything is liable to be forfeited under this section, the Local Government may declare such thing to be forfeited and may direct any Magistrate to issue a warrant in respect of the same, and thereupon to search for, seize, and taken away in manner provided by section nine.

The Local Government may, upon good cause shown, cancel any forfeiture under this section.

11. When any newspaper printed elsewhere

Copies of newspaper printed elsewhere, and brought into British India, liable to forfeiture in certain cases.

than in British India contains any words, signs, or visible representations of the nature described in section three, clause (a), or is used or attempted to be used for any purpose described in the same section, clause (b), all copies of such newspaper, brought into British India, shall be liable to be forfeited to Her Majesty.

12. Whenever it appears to the Local Government that any copies of any newspaper in any of the territories under its administration are liable to be forfeited under section eleven, such Local Government may declare all copies of such newspaper wherever found to be forfeited and may by warrant issued by its authority under the hand of any Magistrate, empower any person to seize and take away all copies of such newspaper wherever found, and to enter upon any premises where any copy of such newspaper is sold, distributed, published, or publicly exhibited, or reasonably suspected to be sold, distributed, published, or publicly exhibited, or kept for sale, distribution, publication, or public exhibition, or reasonably suspected to be so kept ; and search for all copies of such newspaper. Every warrant issued under this section shall, so far as relates to a search, be executed in manner provided for the execution of search-warrants under the law relating to criminal procedure for the time being in force.

13. Any person feeling aggrieved by the issue of any notification under section nine or by any declaration made or anything done in the execution of a warrant issued under that section, or under section ten or section twelve, may, within three months from the date of the notification or declaration or the doing of the thing complained of (as the case may be), appeal to the Governor General in Council ; and the Governor General in Council shall take such appeal into consideration, and the order passed by him thereon shall be final and conclusive.

Appeal to the Governor General in Council.

Power to exclude from British India, newspapers, books, &c., printed out of British India. 14. The Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, direct that any newspapers printed at any place beyond the limits of British India, or any books, pamphlets, placards, broadsheets, or other documents printed wholly or partially in any oriental language at any such place, shall not be brought into, or circulated, distributed, or publicly exhibited, or sold, or kept for circulation, distribution, public exhibition, or sale, in British India.

Whoever, in contravention of any direction under this section, brings any such newspaper, book, pamphlet, placard, broadsheet, or other document into British India, or circulates, distributes, publishes, exhibits, or sells the same, or keeps the same for circulation, distribution, exhibition, or sale, shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine, or with both ;

and all copies of any such newspaper, pamphlet, placard, broadsheet, or other document found in British India shall be forfeited to Her Majesty.

Whenever it appears to any Magistrate of a district or to any Commissioner of Police in a Presidency town that anything within the local limits of his jurisdiction is forfeited under this section, he may issue a warrant to search for and seize the same, and such warrant shall be executed in manner provided for the execution of search-warrants under the law relating to criminal procedure for the time being in force.

15. When any declaration has been made under section nine, section ten, or section twelve, in respect of any newspaper, book, pamphlet, placard, broadsheet, or other document, or any notification has been issued in respect of the same under section fourteen, any officer of the Postal Department empowered in this behalf by the Governor General in Council, by name or in virtue of his office, may search or cause search to be made for any copies of the same in the custody of that Department, and shall deliver all such copies found to such officer as the Governor General in Council may appoint in this behalf by name or in virtue of his office.

Power of postal authorities to seize newspapers, books, &c.

16. Every notification and declaration of forfeiture purporting to be issued or made under this Act shall, as against all persons, be conclusive evidence that the forfeiture therein referred to has taken place ; and no proceeding purporting to be taken under this Act, or in execution of a warrant issued under this Act, shall be called in question by any Court of civil or criminal jurisdiction ; and no Civil or Criminal proceeding shall be instituted against any person for anything purporting to be done under this Act or in execution of any such warrant, or for the recovery of any property purporting to be seized under this Act.

Jurisdiction barred.

17. Any publisher or printer of a newspaper required to execute a bond or make a deposit under section three or section four, and publishing or printing such newspaper without having complied with such requisition, shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine, or with both.

18. When any publisher of a newspaper has given an undertaking under section five or section eight, and during the period for which such undertaking is given, any words, signs, or visible representations which have not been submitted to the officer appointed under section five, or which on being so submitted have been objected to by him, are printed or published in such newspaper, such publisher and the printer of such newspaper, shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine, or with both.

19. Any portion of this Act which has been extended to any part of British India under section one shall cease to be in force in such part whenever the Governor General in Council, by notification in the Gazette of India, so directs, but may be again extended to such part by a like notification.

20. Nothing herein contained shall be deemed to prevent any person from being prosecuted under any other law for any act or omission which constitutes an offence against this Act.

Operation of other laws not barred.

SCHEDULE.

FORM OF NOTICE UNDER SECTION 6.

WHEREAS a certain newspaper (state name of newspaper) contains words, signs or visible representations (as the case may be) of the nature described in section 3, clause (a), of Act No. IX of 1878 [or is used for a purpose mentioned in section 3 of Act No. IX of 1878, clause (b), or Whereas an attempt has been made to use a certain newspaper (state name of newspaper) for a purpose, &c.]

This is to give notice to all whom it may concern, and to give all such persons warning, according to the provisions of section 6 of the said Act No. IX of 1878.

This day of 187 . A. B.

Secretary to { the Government of the Chief Commissioner of

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

1. The main object of this Bill is to place newspapers which are published in the vernacular languages of India under better control, and to furnish the Government with more effective means than are provided by the existing law, of punishing and repressing seditious writings which are calculated to produce disaffection towards the Government in the minds of the ignorant and unenlightened masses. Another object is to prevent unscrupulous native editors using their papers as a means of intimidation or extortion.

2. As regards the latter of these objects, it is enough to state that the Government is informed on reliable authority that certain vernacular papers have from time to time been used as a means of intimidating, and extorting money from, our feudatories and native employees. As regards the former and more important object, a fuller statement of the reasons which have led to the introduction of this Bill seems desirable.

3. That a section of the vernacular Press has of late years assumed an attitude of fixed hostility to the Government; that it does not confine itself to criticising particular measures or the acts of individual officers on their merits, but attacks the very existence of British rule in India; and that the evil has been steadily growing and has now attained a magnitude which calls for the application of some strong means of repression, are facts patent to all who read the native papers.

4. The necessity for immediate action has been pressed on the Government of India from many quarters; and those most competent to form an opinion on such a point have advised that the existing law does not furnish a sufficient remedy, and that fresh legislation is accordingly necessary.

5. The only question has been as to the form which such legislation should assume, or, to speak more precisely, whether the object in view could be attained by any mere amendment of the general criminal law, or whether some measure of a special nature is required.

The Government of India have come to the conclusion that a special measure is necessary, and they have been led to this conclusion chiefly by two considerations:

6. In the first place, the object in view is simply to repress an evil which is altogether of a special and limited nature, and for the existence of which a small and strictly defined class of persons is answerable. It is not in any way necessary for that object to expand the general law relating to State offences, or to render that law more stringent. To do so would be to inflict an unmerited hardship on a large number of Her Majesty's subjects.

7. Secondly (and this seems to put the necessity of a special law, as distinguished from any mere amendment of the general law, beyond a doubt), the ordinary criminal law confines itself to imposing penalties for offences already committed, whereas the particular offence to be dealt with here is of such a nature that it is not enough that it should be punished when committed. Its commission must be prevented, and this can be done only under a special procedure devised expressly for that purpose.

8. The Bill now introduced is restricted in its operation to publications in oriental languages. Its chief provisions will take effect only in those parts of British India to which they may be specially extended by the Governor General in Council, and will cease to have effect in those parts whenever the Governor General in Council so directs.

9. The system of check it establishes in the case of newspapers in oriental languages published in British India is as follows:

First.—The Magistrate may, with the previous sanction of the Local Government, require the printer or publisher of any such newspaper to enter into a bond binding himself not to print or publish in such newspaper anything likely to excite feelings of disaffection to the Government or antipathy between persons of different races, castes, religions or sects, and not to use such paper for purposes of extortion. The Magistrate may further require the amount of this bond to be deposited in money or securities.

Secondly.—If any newspaper (whether a bond has been taken in respect of it or not) at any time contains any matter of the description just mentioned, and is used for purposes of extortion, the Local Government may warn such newspaper by a notification in the Gazette, and if, in spite of such warning, the offence is repeated, the Local Government may then issue its warrant to seize the plant, &c., of such newspaper, and when a deposit has been made may declare such deposit forfeited.

Thirdly.—As the provisions regarding the deposit of security and the forfeiture of the deposit would, perhaps, be found to press unduly on some of the less wealthy newspaper proprietors, clauses have been inserted enabling the publisher of a newspaper to take his paper out of the operation of this portion of the Act for such time as he pleases by undertaking to submit his proofs to an officer appointed by the Government before publication, and to publish nothing which such officer objects to.

Any publisher may, if he chooses, do this at the time when he is called upon to deposit security; and if he does so, no security can be demanded from him.

Again, if he does not choose to avail himself of this provision at that stage, he may subsequently, in the event of a warning being issued against him, offer such an undertaking, and if the Magistrate accepts it, the proceedings are at an end.

10. As regards books, pamphlets, &c., printed in British India, containing matter of the description above referred to or used for purposes of extortion, the Bill gives the Local Government a power to seize them and the presses at which they are printed.

11. Newspapers and books published out of British India but circulated in British India remain. And in regard to them the Bill provides—first, that if they contain matter of the nature already referred to or are used for purposes of extortion, the Local Government may seize them; and secondly, that the Governor General in Council may prohibit their importation altogether.

12. The only other points calling for special notice are that an appeal is given to the Governor General in Council against anything done by a Local Government or any inferior authority; that declarations of forfeitures and other proceedings under the Act are made final and conclusive, subject only to such appeal; and that penalties are provided for printing or publishing a newspaper without executing a bond or making a deposit after such bond or deposit has been required, and for breach of an undertaking to submit proofs to a Government officer.

THE FIRST SCHEDULE.

THE SECOND SCHEDULE.

An Act to consolidate and amend the law relating to Arms, Ammunition and Military Stores.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the law relating to arms, ammunition and military stores; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Preamble.

I.—Preliminary.

1. This Act may be called "The Indian Arms Act, 1878"; and it extends to the whole of British India.

Short title.

Local extent.

Savings.

But nothing herein contained shall apply to—

(a) arms, ammunition or military stores on board any sea-going vessel and forming part of her ordinary armament or equipment, or

(b) the manufacture, conversion, sale, import, export, transport, bearing or possession of arms, ammunition or military stores by order of the Government, or by a public servant or a volunteer enrolled under the Indian Volunteers Act, 1869, in the course of his duty as such public servant or volunteer.

2. This Act shall come into force on such day as the Governor General in Council by notification in the Gazette of India appoints.

Commencement.

3. On and from that day the enactments mentioned in the first schedule hereto annexed shall be repealed to the extent specified in the third column of the said schedule. But all authorities and permissions given, licenses and exemptions granted, orders and appointments made, notifications published, and rules, conditions, and forms prescribed under any enactment hereby repealed shall be deemed to be respectively given, granted, made, published and prescribed under this Act.

Repeal of enactments.

And all such authorities, permissions, licences and exemptions shall, except as otherwise provided by this Act, continue in force for the periods for which they may have been given or granted respectively, or, where no such period is expressly fixed, for one year from the date on which this Act comes into force, and shall then cease to have effect.

4. In this Act unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context—

Interpretation-clause.

"Cannon" includes also all howitzers, mortars wall pieces, mitrailleuses and other ordnance and machine-guns, all parts of the same, and all carriages, platforms and appliances for mounting, transporting and serving the same:

"Arms" includes fire-arms, bayonets, swords, daggers, spears, spear-heads and bows and arrows, also cannon and parts of arms, and machinery for manufacturing arms:

"Ammunition" includes also all articles specially designed for torpedo service and submarine mining, rockets, gun-cotton, dynamite, lithofracteur and other explosive or fulminating material, gunflints, gunwads, percussion caps, fuses, and friction tubes, all parts of ammunition and all machinery for manufacturing ammunition, but does not include lead, sulphur or saltpetre:

"Military stores" in any section of this Act as applied to any part of British India means any military stores to which the Governor General in Council may from time to time by notification in the Gazette of India specially extend such section in such part, and includes also all lead, sulphur, saltpetre and other material to which the Governor General in Council may from time to time so extend such section.

"License" means a license granted under this Act, and "licensed" means holding such license:

II.—Manufacture, Conversion and Sale.

5. No person shall manufacture, convert, or sell, or keep, offer or expose for sale, any arms, ammunition or military stores except under a license and in the manner and to the extent permitted thereby.

Unlicensed manufacture, conversion and sale prohibited.

Nothing herein contained shall prevent any person from selling any arms or ammunition which he lawfully possesses for his own private use to any person who is not by any enactment for the time being in force prohibited from possessing the same; but every person so selling arms or ammunition to any person other than a person entitled to possess the same by reason of an exemption under section twenty-seven of this Act shall, without unnecessary delay, give to the Magistrate of the district or to the officer in charge of the nearest police-station notice of the sale, and of the purchaser's name and address.

III.—Import, Export and Transport.

6. No person shall bring or take by sea or by land into or out of Unlicensed importation and exportation prohibited.

British India any arms, ammunition or military stores except under a license and in the manner and to the extent permitted by such license.

Nothing in the first clause of this section extends to arms (other than cannon) or ammunition imported or exported in reasonable quantities for his own private use by any person lawfully entitled to possess such arms or ammunition; but the Collector of Customs or any other officer empowered by the Local Government in this behalf by name or in virtue of his office may at any time detain such arms or ammunition until he receives the orders of the Local Government thereon.

Explanation.—Arms, ammunition and military stores taken from one part of British India to another by sea or across intervening territory not being part of British India are taken out of and brought into British India within the meaning of this section.

7. Notwithstanding anything contained in the Sanction of local Government required to warehousing of arms, &c.

Sea-customs Act, 1878, no arms, ammunition or military stores shall be deposited in any warehouse licensed under section 16 of that Act without the sanction of the Local Government.

8. In lieu of the duties imposed by the Indian

Levy of duties on arms, &c., imported by sea.

Tariff Act, 1875, upon the articles mentioned in the second schedule hereto annexed when imported by sea, there shall be levied and collected, in every part of British India, upon the same articles the duties specified in the same schedule:

Provided that no duty in excess of ten per cent. ad valorem shall be levied upon any of the said articles imported in reasonable quantity for his own private use by any person lawfully entitled to possess the same:

Provided also that when any articles which have been otherwise imported and upon which duty has been levied or is leviable under this section are purchased retail from the importer by a person lawfully entitled as aforesaid, in reasonable quantity for his own private use, the importer may apply to the Customs-collector for a refund or remission (as the case may be) of so much of the duty thereon as is in excess of ten per cent. ad valorem; and if such collector is satisfied as to the identity of the articles, and that such importer is in other respects entitled to such refund or remission, he shall grant the same accordingly.

9. The Governor General in Council may from time to time by notification in the Gazette of India direct that duties not exceeding those specified in the second schedule hereto annexed shall be levied upon any articles mentioned in that schedule and brought by land into any part of British India, and may in like manner cancel any such notification.

10. The Governor General in Council may from time to time by notification in the Gazette of India—
Power to prohibit transport.
 (a) regulate or prohibit the transport of any description of arms, ammunition or military stores over the whole of British India or any part thereof, either altogether or except under a license and to the extent and in the manner permitted by such license, and

(b) cancel any such notification.

Explanation.—Arms, ammunition or military stores transhipped at a port in British India are transported within the meaning of this section.

11. The Local Government with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council may, at any places along the boundary line between British India and Foreign territory and at such distance within such line as it deems expedient, establish searching posts at which all vessels, carts and baggage animals and all boxes, bales and packages in transit may be stopped and searched for arms, ammunition and military stores by any officer empowered by such Government in this behalf by name or in virtue of his office.

12. When any person is found carrying or conveying any arms, ammunition or military stores, who is not covered by a license or not in such manner or under such circumstances as to afford just grounds of suspicion that the same are being carried by him with intent to use them, or that the same may be used, for any unlawful purpose, any person may without warrant apprehend him and take such arms, ammunition or military stores from him.

Any person so apprehended and any arms, ammunition or military stores so taken by a person not being a Magistrate or Police-officer shall be delivered over as soon as possible to a Police-officer.

All persons apprehended by, or delivered to, a Police-officer and all arms and ammunition seized by or delivered to any such officer under this section shall be taken without unnecessary delay before a Magistrate.

IV.—Going armed and possessing Arms, &c.

13. No person shall go armed with any arms except under a license and to the extent and in the manner permitted thereby.

Any person so going armed without a license or in contravention of its provisions may be disarmed by any Magistrate, Police-officer or other person empowered by the Local Government in this behalf by name or by virtue of his office.

14. No person shall have in his possession or under his control any cannon or fire-arms, or any ammunition or military stores except under a license and in the manner and to the extent permitted thereby.

During the three months next following the date on which this Act comes into force nothing in the former part of this section shall apply to the possession by any person of any fire-arms, ammunition or military stores in any place to which section 32, clause 2, of Act No. XXXI of 1860 does not apply at such date.

Any person having within the said period of three months any fire-arms, ammunition or military stores in his possession in any such place may, and any person having at the expiry of the same period any fire arms, ammunition or military stores in his possession in any such place without a license shall, deposit the same with the officer in charge of the nearest police-station.

If the owner of any thing deposited under this section does not within the year next following the date on which this Act comes into force, obtain a license authorizing him to possess such thing and apply for delivery of the same, such thing shall be forfeited to Her Majesty.

15. In any place to which section 32, clause 2 of Act No. XXXI of 1860, applies at the time this Act comes into force or to which the Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, may by notification in the local official Gazette specially extend this section, no person shall have in his possession any arms of any description except under a license and in the manner and to the extent permitted thereby.

16. Any person possessing arms, ammunition or military stores, the possession whereof by him has, in consequence of the cancellation or expiry of a license or by the issue of a notification under section fifteen become unlawful, shall deposit the same without unnecessary delay with the officer in charge of the nearest police-station.

If the owner of any thing deposited under this section does not within three years from the date on which such thing is so deposited produce a license authorising him to possess the same and apply for delivery of the same, such thing shall be forfeited to Her Majesty.

V.—Licenses.

17. The Governor General in Council may from time to time, by notification Power to make rules as to licenses.

in the Gazette of India, make rules to determine the officers by whom, the form in which,

and the terms and conditions on and subject to which, any license shall be granted; and may by such rules among other matters—

(a) fix the period for which such license shall continue in force;

(b) fix a fee payable by stamp or otherwise in respect of any such license granted in a place to which section 32, clause 2, of Act No. XXXI of 1860 applies at the time this Act comes into force, or in respect of any such license other than a license for possession granted in any other place;

(c) direct that the holder of any such license other than a license for possession shall keep a record or account in such form as the Local Government may prescribe of anything done under such license, and exhibit such record or account when called upon by an officer of Government to do so;

(d) empower any officer of Government to enter and inspect any premises in which arms, ammunition or military stores are manufactured or kept by any person holding a license of the description referred to in section five or section six;

(e) direct that any such person shall exhibit the entire stock of arms, ammunition and military stores in his possession or under his control to any officer of Government so empowered, and

(f) require the person holding any license or acting under any license to produce the same, and to produce or account for the arms, ammunition or military stores covered by the same when called upon by an officer of Government so to do.

Cancelling and suspension of license.

18. Any license may be cancelled or suspended—

(a) by the officer by whom the same was granted, or by any authority to which he may be subordinate, or by any Magistrate of a district or commissioner of police in a presidency town, within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the holder of such license may be, when, for reasons to be recorded in writing, such officer, authority, Magistrate or commissioner deems it necessary for the security of the public peace to cancel or suspend such license; or

(b) by any Judge or Magistrate before whom the holder of such license is convicted of an offence against this Act, or against the rules made under this Act; and the Local Government may at its discretion by a notification in the local official Gazette cancel or suspend all or any licenses throughout the whole or any portion of the territories under its administration.

VI.—Penalties.

For breach of sections 5, 6, 10, 13 to 17.

(h) intentionally fails to exhibit anything which by a rule made under section seventeen, clause (e), he is required to exhibit; or shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to three years, or with fine, or with both.

(i) fails to deposit arms, ammunition or military stores, as required by section fourteen or section sixteen;

20. Whoever does any act mentioned in clause

For secret breaches of sections 5, 6, 10, 14 and 15. (a), (c), (d) or (f) of section nineteen, in such manner as to indicate an intention that such act may not be known to any public servant as defined in the Indian Penal Code, or to any person employed upon a Railway or to the servant of any public carrier, and whoever, on any search being made under section twenty-five, conceals or attempts to conceal any arms, ammunition or military stores, shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to seven years, or with fine, or with both.

21. Whoever, in violation of a condition subject to which a license has

For breach of license. been granted, does or omits to do any act shall, when the doing or omitting to do such act is not punishable under section nineteen or section twenty, be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, or with both.

22. Whoever knowingly purchases any arms,

For knowingly purchasing arms, &c., from an unlicensed person. ammunition or military stores from any person not licensed or authorized under the proviso to section five to sell the same; or delivers any arms, ammunition or military stores

For delivering arms, &c., into the possession of any person not authorized to possess them. into the possession of any person without previously ascertaining that such person is legally authorized to possess the same, shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, or with both.

23. Any person violating any rule made under this Act, and for the violation of which no penalty is provided by this Act, shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to one month, or with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees, or with both.

24. When any person is convicted of an offence punishable under this Act committed by him in respect of any arms, ammunition or military stores, it shall be in the discretion of the convicting Court or Magistrate further to direct that the whole or any portion of such arms, ammunition or military stores, and any vessel, cart or baggage animal used to convey the same, and any box, package or bale in which the same may have been concealed, together with the other contents of such box, package or bale, shall be confiscated.

• VII.—Miscellaneous.

25. Whenever any Magistrate has reason to believe that any person residing within the local limits of his jurisdiction has in his possession any arms, ammunition or military stores for any unlawful purpose, or that such person cannot be left in the possession of any such arms, ammunition or military stores without danger to the public peace, such Magistrate, having first recorded the grounds of his belief, may cause a search to be made of the house or premises occupied by such person, or in which such Magistrate has reason to believe such arms, ammunition or military stores are or is to be found, and may seize and detain the same, although covered by a license, in safe custody for such time as he thinks necessary.

The search in such case shall be conducted by, or in the presence of, a Magistrate, or by or in the presence of some officer, specially empowered in this behalf by name or in virtue of his office by the Local Government.

26. The Local Government may at any time order or cause to be seized any arms, ammunition or military stores in the possession of any person, notwithstanding that such person is licensed to possess the same, and may detain the same for such time as it thinks necessary for the public safety.

27. The Governor General in Council may from time to time by notification published in the Gazette of India—

(a) exempt any person by name or in virtue of his office or any class of persons or exclude any description of arms or ammunition or withdraw any part of British India, from the operation of any prohibition or direction contained in this Act; and

(b) cancel any such notification and again subject the persons or things or the part of British India comprised therein to the operation of such prohibition or direction.

28. Every person aware of the commission of any offence punishable under this Act, shall in the absence of reasonable excuse, the burden of proving which shall lie upon such person, give information of the same to the nearest Police-officer or Magistrate, and every person employed upon any railway or by any public carrier shall, in the absence of reasonable excuse, the burden of proving which shall lie upon such person, give information to the nearest Police-officer regarding any box, package or bale in transit which he may have reason to suspect contains arms, ammunition or military stores in respect of which an offence against this Act has been or is being committed.

29. Where an offence punishable under section nineteen, clause (f), has been committed within three months from the date on which this Act comes into force in any province, district or place to which section 32, clause 2 of Act XXXI of 1860 applies at such date, or where such an offence has been committed in any part of British India not being such a district, province or place, no proceedings shall be instituted against any person in respect of such offence without the previous sanction of the Magistrate of the district or in a presidency town of the commissioner of police.

30. Where a search is to be made under the Code of Criminal Procedure or the Presidency Magistrates Act 1877 in the course of any proceedings instituted in respect of an offence punishable under section nineteen, clause (f), such search shall, notwithstanding anything contained in the said Code or Act, be made in the presence of some officer specially appointed by name or in virtue of his office by the Local Government in this behalf, and not otherwise.

31. Nothing in this Act shall be deemed to prevent any person from being prosecuted under any other law for any act or omission which constitutes an offence against this Act or the rules made under it, or from being liable under such other law to any higher punishment or penalty than that provided by this Act: Provided that no person shall be punished twice for the same offence.

32. The Local Government may from time to time by notification in the local official Gazette direct a census to be taken of all fire-arms in any local area, and empower any person by name or in virtue of his office to take such census.

On the issue of any such notification, all persons possessing any such arms in such area shall furnish to the person so empowered such information as he may require in reference thereto, and shall produce such arms to him if he so requires.

Any person refusing or neglecting to produce any such arms when so required, shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to one month, or with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees, or with both.

33. No proceeding other than a suit shall be commenced against any person for any thing done in pursuance of this Act, without having given him at least one month's previous notice in writing of the intended proceeding and of the cause thereof, nor after the expiration of three months from the accrual of such cause.

COURT OF WARDS.

The HON'BLE MR. REYNOLDS moved that the Bill to amend the law relating to the Court of Wards within the provinces subject to the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal be read in Council. He said that in making this motion it would be unnecessary for him to detain the Council with any remarks on the provisions of the Bill, because the Bill in its present shape was substantially a reproduction of the measure which was passed by this Council last session. The only differences of importance between this Bill and the former one were the omission of the section which was formerly section 9, which prohibited the execution of decrees of court against the property of wards, and the introduction of sections 69, 70, and 71, defining the duties and responsibilities of the guardians of wards. He thought, however, that it would be desirable that the Bill should be considered by a Select Committee, as there were some provisions in the Bill which might be improved on further consideration.

The motion was agreed to, and the Bill referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Mr. O'Kinealy, the Hon'ble Rajah Pramatha Natha Roy, the Hon'ble Baboo Mohini Mohun Roy, and the mover, with instructions to report in three weeks.

MUNICIPAL LATRINES.

The Hon'ble Mr. MACKENZIE, in moving for leave to introduce a Bill to provide for the cleansing and erection of latrines in first class municipalities, said that no sanitary question had excited more interest of late years, both at home and in India, than that of the innocuous disposal of the refuse of great towns; and nowhere had this subject received more attention than in Calcutta and in the deliberations and proceedings of the Bengal Government. He might appeal to the large sums that had been spent in this town upon sanitation and drainage, to the discussions that had repeatedly taken place in this Council Chamber and in the neighbouring Hall, and to the many able articles appearing from time to time in popular and scientific journals regarding the hygiene of the metropolis, as proving that public opinion, here at any rate, was fully alive to the importance of following sound principles and sound practice in connection with this most vital matter. To stimulate and assist this public opinion, the advice of the Government and the aid of this Council had never been wanting.

They were all of them familiar with the vivid pictures of the loathsome condition of many parts of this town, furnished quarterly by the graphic pen of the Health Officer, and they knew that, in spite of all that had been done, there was still a vast deal more to do even within the limits of Calcutta itself. But all the money, care, and trouble already spent in Calcutta, all the protracted oratory of their municipal meetings, and all the resolutions of the local Government, would be entirely thrown away if the systems of improved conservancy, sanctioned by experience, or recommended by sanitary science, were not extended to the suburbs which hemmed them in upon every side.

The municipalities of Howrah and of Alipore had for some years past felt and recognised their obligations in this respect. In the Suburban Municipality, which had had the services of an energetic Vice-Chairman and the advice of a strong and admirably selected board of European and Native Commissioners, really considerable advances had been made towards the introduction of the rational system of disposing of night-soil. In 1872-73 Mr. Sterndale, the Vice-Chairman, drew attention to the appalling fact that probably not more than one-half of the night-soil of the suburbs was then passing through the depôts for legitimate disposal, the rest being thrown broadcast on waste lands and gardens, or left to seethe and fester in the old-fashioned privies of native houses. In 1873-74 the Commissioners, moved by Mr. Sterndale's representations, introduced a modification of the Halalcore system of Bombay, under which those house-holders who wished it might have their privies regularly cleansed by municipal sweepers, they paying to the municipality fees for this service. The idea of the Commissioners apparently was to provide an efficient conservancy staff which it was optional with the house-holders to employ, and then to prosecute steadily under the law those who, declining to take advantage of the public sweepers, failed to make proper arrangements for disposal.

The popularity of this system had been in one respect unquestionable. Out of 40,000 houses in the suburbs, the owners or occupiers of 15,000 had applied for the services of the municipal staff. Representing as these did the better class of the inhabitants, it might, he thought, be legitimately inferred that the people of the suburbs were fully convinced of the necessity of a duly organised system of public scavengering. But, while ready enough to demand the services of the municipal staff, when it came to paying the municipal bills there was at present a singular backwardness on the part of some of those who benefit. Mr. Sterndale writes—

“Little difficulty was experienced on the whole in inducing the people to accept the services of the municipal establishment; but when, on the other hand, it came to paying for it, the case was reversed; it was found in the first place that if we waited for applications, accompanied by payment in advance, as contemplated by the rules, the whole thing fell to the ground, no one would apply, and in fact it was found necessary to make a regular house to house assessment.

“The bills then had to be collected by the expensive machinery of an establishment paid either by salary or commission, and on payment being refused, there was no direct means of enforcing it. Under such circumstances the executive had to resort to the roundabout course of stopping the services of the nightmen, and then prosecuting the house-holder for keeping night-soil in his privy—a most cumbersome and unsatisfactory procedure.

“The fact that there were 569 prosecutions necessary during the year shows how unsatisfactory this has been.”

He states the principal objections to the voluntary system in the following way:—

- 1st.—No proper assessment being possible, no reliable estimate of probable receipts can be framed; the department has therefore to work to a great extent in the dark. A proof of this is the fact that last year we did not reach the estimated receipts by over Rs. 13,000. The Council will see that the Commissioners must employ and pay for a staff adequate to do the work of all those who consent to employ them. If afterwards the house-holders do not pay, the Commissioners are so much out of pocket.
- 2nd.—No efficient check or supervision can be had over the assessing or collecting agency, nor can the Commissioners be secured against loss, or the rate-payers against extortion.
- 3rd.—The labour of the department is much increased, viz. by the fact of its having to deal with houses scattered over a vast area, instead of taking up all the houses in blocks as they occur, thereby entailing loss of power.
- 4th.—A larger staff of men is employed than would be necessary in proportion to the number of houses, were contiguous houses served by the department.
- 5th.—The rates fall heavier now on the poor than would be the case were a system of rate by valuation possible.”

In view of these facts and arguments, and after appointing a special Committee to go into the question carefully and in detail, the Municipal Commissioners of the suburbs, in meeting assembled, resolved that the Government should be asked to pass an Act making the payment of fees for the removal of night-soil compulsory; that this removal should be effected throughout the suburbs by an organised establishment under municipal control; and that the fees would best be levied by means of rates realisable in the same manner as the municipal house-rate, a capitation fee being substituted in the case of public institutions, barracks, schools, and factories.

At the same time, to meet the case of those persons who were too poor to pay the rate, and to ensure the closing of the thousand of filth-pits which now pollute the air and poison the soil, the Commissioners made proposals for the provision of a complete system of public latrines, to be open to the public free of charge as soon as the night-soil rate came into operation. They held that owners of bustees might fairly be called upon to supply sites for such latrines, just as owners of house-property in England were compelled to provide sufficient accommodation of a similar kind. The Commissioners also took into consideration the question of the disposal of the night-soil. At present they paid to the Calcutta Municipality Rs. 19,200 per annum for the privilege of shooting this into the Calcutta sewers. The insufficiency of flushing power provided by the Calcutta Corporation had made suburban night-soil a serious nuisance to those quarters of the town to which it was brought for disposal in the sewers. The Commissioners proposed now to discontinue their payments to the town, and, in accordance with the best sanitary advice, to introduce the trench system of conservancy, in the hope of eventually re-paying themselves with interest from a municipal farm.

While the Suburban Commissioners were incubating the proposals of which he had given a resumé, the Howrah Municipality was also being deeply stirred by precisely similar discussions. Here, however, there had been no attempt to introduce the Halalco system even with optional payments. The house-holders were constantly coming to the Commissioners and complaining of the annoyance and expense caused them by the night mehters. But these men were not in any way under the Commissioners' control, and the Commissioners could under the law do nothing to remedy the evils complained of. It was stated that these sweepers, having a monopoly of the work, not only charged extortionate fees, but frequently neglected their work entirely, to the inconvenience of their employers and the detriment of the public health. It was an almost every-day occurrence for house-holders to be prosecuted and fined for permitting night-soil to remain on their premises for more than 24 hours, simply because they could not get the men to come and remove it. It was even a common complaint among the people that the sweepers deposited night-soil clandestinely in the privies, and then laid informations, or threatened to do so, in order to extort money. The Commissioners of Howrah, therefore, on their part also came up to Government asking for a law similar to that suggested by the Commissioners of the suburbs.

The present Bill was designed to meet the demands of those municipalities. It was simply an enabling measure which no municipality need adopt unless it chose, but which any first-class municipality might introduce if its provisions suited them. The maximum rate leviable on small holdings had been limited to Rs. 3 per annum, and the highest fee chargeable on any one holding would be Rs. 480 per annum, save in those cases where a larger sum was already being paid to the Commissioners by special agreement. This proviso was to meet the case of the railway premises in Howrah, for cleansing which the Commissioners already received an allowance of Rs. 3,000 per annum. The size of these premises was so exceptional as to warrant an exceptional rate of charge.

The Suburban Commissioners were very urgent that this Bill should become law without a day's unnecessary delay. They had counted on it in the preparation of their budget statements, and had incurred considerable expense in anticipation of its passing. He would, therefore, if the Council granted leave to bring in this Bill, have to ask His Honor to suspend the rules, in order that the necessary preliminary steps might be taken, and the Bill be referred to a Select Committee for consideration of its details.

Leave being granted for the introduction of the Bill, HIS HONOR THE PRESIDENT declared the rules for the conduct of business suspended.

The HON'BLE MR. MACKENZIE next moved that the Bill be read in Council.

The motion was agreed to, and the Bill referred to a Select Committee, consisting of the Hon'ble Kristodas Pal, the Hon'ble Isser Chunder Mitter, and the mover, with instructions to report in three weeks.

SETTLEMENT OF PRIVATE ESTATES.

The HON'BLE BABOO KRISTODAS PAL moved for leave to introduce a Bill to provide for the settlement of lands on the application of landlords or ryots. He said that in January last, when his hon'ble friend opposite introduced the Bill to define and limit the powers of settlement officers in respect to the enhancement of rent, BABOO KRISTODAS PAL ventured to make the following remarks :—

"The object of the Bill was to reduce litigation, and he thought that the provisions of the Bill might fitly be extended to Wards Estates and Attached Estates in the hands of Government, inasmuch as these estates were practically administered by the Collector during the minority of the ward or during attachment. He would also suggest that where the zemindar should be willing to avail himself of the agency of the Revenue authorities in making settlement, he should be allowed the benefit of such agency, provided he paid the cost. In all these cases the right of the ryot to contest the decision of the settlement officer in the civil court should of course be allowed."

His hon'ble friend afterwards wrote to him to say that the Government was willing to accept his suggestion, but that a separate Bill should be introduced to give effect to it; this was the origin of the Bill which he proposed to introduce.

His object was to proceed on the lines of the Settlement of Government Estates' Bill, which had been passed by this hon'ble Council, and which now awaited the assent of His Excellency the Viceroy. The proposed Bill would be simply permissive. It would rest with zemindars and ryots to avail themselves of the machinery to be provided by this Bill, should they like to do so. In one respect the Bill would take a new ground than its predecessor; for, under the latter, the Government as the landlord would be alone competent to move the machinery; whereas under the former, both zemindar and ryot would be at liberty to apply for the enforcement of the law. Then in the case of the Government the settlement officer would be the servant of Government; whereas in the case contemplated by this Bill, the settlement officer would be a third party, wholly unconnected with the landlord or tenant. The principles on which the settlement was to be made must be governed by the provisions of Bengal Act VIII of 1869. These provisions were in his humble opinion vague, uncertain, and in some respects unworkable; but he did not propose to interfere with those provisions, as the Government had not yet made up its mind respecting the principles on which enhancement should be made. Keeping, then, within the four corners of Act VIII of 1869 as to the principles on which enhancement and abatement of rent should be made, this Bill would provide for a sort of amicable settlement of rent disputes with the intervention of the revenue officer. If a zemindar or ryot should feel dissatisfied with his decision, either party would be at liberty to institute a regular suit in a civil court for the reversal of that decision. But his own impression was, and he might state that it was shared by those, both officials and non-officials, who were competent to form an opinion on the subject, that the intervention of the Deputy Collector in an amicable spirit might in many cases throw oil over troubled waters, and thus prevent harassing litigation in the civil court, which was ruinous to both the landlord and tenant.

He did not wish to occupy the time of the Council on the present occasion by describing the details of the Bill, which would be very few, but he would notice them at the next stage of the Bill. At present he simply moved for leave to bring in the Bill.

The Hon'ble Mr. REYNOLDS said that as this measure was not yet before the Council, he did not intend to make any remarks upon it at present. But he wished to say that the Bill appeared to him to be likely to supply a real want and to inaugurate an important reform, and he felt sure that any officer of the Government whom the hon'ble mover might wish to consult would readily give his advice or assistance in settling the details of the measure. It appeared to him also that it was a fortunate thing that the conduct of this measure should have been entrusted to an hon'ble member of the Council who enjoyed the confidence of the zemindars; and was at the same time well known for his strenuous advocacy of the rights of the ryots.

His Honor THE PRESIDENT observed that in putting the motion to the Council he would take the opportunity of saying that the principle of the Bill was one which had his entire concurrence. He thought it did hold out some hopes of affording means for the summary adjustment of differences which so long existed between zemindars and ryots regarding the enhancement and remission of rent, and so far as it was in his power he would have much pleasure in supporting the Bill which had been introduced by the hon'ble member. He had not seen the details of the Bill, but the principle which had been enunciated seemed fair to both parties, and was deserving of every support.

The motion was then agreed to.

The Council was adjourned to Saturday, the 30th instant.

Rainfall, Weather, and Prospects of the Crops.

Statement showing Rainfall, Weather, and Prospects of the Crops in the different Districts of Bengal, as reported to the Government during the week ending the 23rd March 1878.

No.	District, and date of return.	Rainfall at Sudder Station in inches.	Character of the weather, state and prospects of the crops, and state of health at date.
BENGAL.
Western Districts.
BURDWAN DIV.	1 Burdwan, Mar. 23 '78	0.92	The rain has been generally beneficial to the few growing crops, and has also facilitated ploughing. Cholera is prevalent in some parts of the district, and a few cases of small-pox have been reported.
	Raneegunge ..	0.28
	Bond-Bond ..	1.29
	Jehanabad ..	1.73
	Culina ..	1.10
	Cutwa ..	0.40
	2 Bankoora, .. 23 ..	2.86	There were severe thunder-storms on the 16th, 17th, and 18th. It is said that one inch of rain was measured in ten minutes on the 17th. Weather cool since the rain. The rain, though heavy, instead of doing any injury to the crops on the ground, has rather done them good. Ploughing has begun on the softened soil.
	3 Beerbhoom, .. 23 ..	0.82
	4 Midnapore, .. 23 ..	1.4
	5 Hooghly, .. 23 ..	0.54
Howrah, .. 25 ..	0.44	Weather—warm. Slight rain on the nights of the 17th and 18th. The land is being ploughed for the aus sowings. Indigo and assamum are being sown. The price of rice has greatly risen. Coarse rice is selling at 10 seers per rupee. A few cases of cholera and small-pox have been reported from the Hooghly and Chinsurah Municipality and from the village of Tribani.
Central Districts.
PRESIDENT DIV.	6 24-Pergunnahs, Mar. 23 '78	0.58	Several nights were stormy and rainy; latterly the weather was clear and cool. State and prospects of the crops are good, but more rain is desired. Cholera is reported from Busscherhat, Baraset, and all the thanas of Diamond Harbour.
	7 Nudda, .. 23 ..	0.52
	8 Jessore, .. 23 ..	Nil
	Jhenidah ..	0.12
	Magoorah ..	0.02
9 Moorshedabad, .. 23 ..	0.03	Weather—seasonable. The rubbee harvest is nearly over. The yield has not been as good as was expected in thana Sooty, and one or two other places. Ploughing is going on for aman dhan . Cholera is reported from four thanas.
RAJSHAHY AND COCHIN BEHAR DIV.	10 Dinagepore, Mar. 22 '78	0.89	There was rain on the 16th and 17th, accompanied with hail. Weather comparatively cool. The ground is being prepared for the spring crops.
	11 Rajshahye, .. 23 ..	Nil
	12 Rungpore, .. 22 ..	0.40
	Bagdogra ..	0.03
	Gaibanda ..	0.74
Kurigram ..	0.17
13 Hoogra, .. 23 ..	Nil	Heat in the day is still increasing. Nights are cool. Slight rain has been reported from parts of the district, but not enough to do any good. Heavy hail-storms have been reported from Mandah, Baghmara, Bandaikhar and Panchoopore. In Mandah four men have been killed, many trees and houses have been blown down, and the standing crops have been injured. The reaping of the rubbee crops and the sowing of aus dhan , dal , and jute are still going on. Rice is still very dear. Common rice is selling at 16 kutchas seers per rupee. Cholera has almost disappeared. A few cases of small-pox have been reported.
Weather—getting much warmer. There was rain on the night of the 16th. The spring crops are doing well. There are still some cases of cholera.
Weather—dry and seasonable. There was a little drizzling rain on the 16th and 17th. It has caused some damage to the mango blossoms. No crops on the ground at present in the dhur land. What little there is in the poli is reported to be doing fairly well. The price of rice in the district varies from 19 to 22 kutchas seers the rupee. This high price is owing to the large quantity exported, and not to a bad harvest. A few cases of cholera have been reported from Shariakandi and Panchbibi. Some fever has been reported from Badalgachi.

* Report of 24th shows rainfall during the week ending 23rd.

No.	District, and date of return.	Rainfall at Sudder Station in inches.	Character of the weather, state and prospects of the crops, and state of health at date.
BENGAL.—(Continued.)
14	Patna, Mar. 23 '78	0.51	There was some slight drizzling rain during the week in most parts of the district, but it has been of no service in facilitating cultivation. Nothing particular to report on the state and prospects of the crops, but rain is much wanted. The price of rice is rising, and indeed it is already very high.
15	Darjeeling, „ 23 „	Nil	There has been no rain, and the weather has become somewhat warmer, but hazy withal. The sowing of bladoi rice has been commenced on some of the low lands. The minor crops in the hills are doing well.
16	Julpigoree, „ 23 „	Nil	Weather—warmer, though still pleasant. Tobacco is being cut with an average outturn. No change as regards the other crops is to be noticed.
	Cooch Behar, „ 22 „	0.85	The heat is daily increasing. The nights are still cool. There were some showers of rain with hail and high wind in the beginning of the week. Tobacco leaves are being gathered in some places. The rain has done no good to this crop; on the other hand, the hailstones which fell on the night of the 14th instant have injured the leaves. The prospects of cheena and koon continue good. Bitre dhan is being sown. Public health is good.
	Mathabhanga „ „	1.13
	Meckligunge „ „	0.38
Eastern Districts.
17	Dacca, Mar. 23 '78	0.03	Weather—seasonable, but rapidly becoming much warmer. State and prospects of the crops are very favourable. Aus paddy is being sown. The rubber crops give good promise.
18	Farradpore, „ 23 „	Nil	Weather—seasonable and favourable for agricultural work. The price of rice keeps abnormally high. The average rate all over the district is now about 12 annas per rupee. The general state of health is good.
19	Bakerpore, „ 21 „	0.13	Weather—fine, with one shower. The state of such crops as are on the ground is satisfactory. There is sickness from cholera and small-pox in some few parts, viz. Perazepore, Gourmadi, Mendigunge, and Shamsopkail.
20	Mymensingh, „ 22 „	0.98	Rain has been local and entirely in the eastern portion of the district. Ploughing is general. No crops, except millet, on the ground. Prospects are satisfactory.
21	Tipperah, „ 22 „	Nil	Weather—fine, but occasionally cloudy. Boro dhan and aus dhan promise well. Khesari and kalai have been reaped with a fair average outturn.
	Sub-division „ „	0.04
22	Chittagong, „ 21 „	Nil	Weather—hot. The crops are progressing favourably.
23	Noakhally, „ 21 „	Nil	Weather—seasonable. The cold-weather crops are progressing favourably. Public health is good.
24	Chittagong Hill Tracts, „ 19 „	Nil	Weather—excessively hot throughout the week. The hill people have begun to burn their jooms. The land is being ploughed for aus crop. The gathering of tobacco still continues.
	Hill Tipperah, „ 20 „	Nil	Weather—dry and warm. Nothing new to report on the state and prospects of the crops. Cholera prevails at Agartala and in the neighbourhood.
BIHAR.
25	Patna, Mar. 23 '78	Nil	Weather—seasonable. The harvesting of the rubber crops is speedily progressing. Health is good.
26	Gya, „ 23 „	0.41	Weather—stormy and unsettled during the greater part of the week. Maximum thermometer in the shade 97° F. The rain has done some damage to crops stored on the khadyans and high wind has been bad for mangoes. The rain has facilitated ploughing for sugarcane and cheena . Rubber harvest is going on. The outturn in Aurungabad is estimated at from 8 to 10 annas.
	Nowada „ „	0.05
	Aurungabad „ „	0.47
27	Mahabud, „ 23 „	Slight rainfall.	Weather—clear, with hot westerly wind. The reaping of the rubber crops is still going on. It is reported that about three-fourths of the crops have been destroyed by insects and blight. Public health is good in most places, though a few cases of small-pox are reported from the Bhutnouch sub-division.
28	Darbhanga, „ 25 '78	Nil	The prospects of the crops are satisfactory.
29	Mouafferpore, „ 23 „	Nil	Weather—warm, with west wind. The rubber harvest is still going on. Besides poppy and tobacco crops, the rahar has been injured by caterpillars in Hajnepore sub-division, and the mango blossoms have been extensively attacked by blight (aphia .)
	Sectamarhee „ „	0.12
30	Saran, „ 23 „	Nil	Weather—cloudy during the first part of the week and then fine. East and west wind. There have been slight showers in the villages within the jurisdiction of Mushruck and Darowil police stations, and Siawan, Kochaikote, Benmaria, and Gootai outposts, causing some damage to rahar and mango blossoms. The poppy does not promise a good outturn. The weighing of poppy leaves has commenced. Wheat, barley, gram, and peas, &c., are still being cut and thrashed with a fair outturn. Cheena is being sown. The indigo sowing is nearly over. The early sowings have not germinated well for want of water. Some of the fields are being re-sown after watering them. Prices show a downward tendency. Public health is good.
	Gopalgunge „ „	0.15
31	Champanee, „ 23 „	Nil	Weather—seasonable. The prospects of the crops continue good. The appearance of caterpillars in the rahar is reported from the south-west portion of the district, but not to a very large extent.

No.	District, and date of return.	Rainfall at Sudder Station in inches.	Character of the weather, state and prospects of the crops, and state of health at date.
BEHAR.—(Continued.)
BAGLPORE DIVISION.	32 Monghyr, Mar. 23 '78	0.06	West wind is prevailing. The rubber crops are being reaped with a good outturn.
	33 Jammui, " 23 "	0.16
	33 Bhagulpore, " 23 "	Nil	Weather—hot, with moderate westerly wind. The rubber crops are gathered in and the yield is good. Prices still range high. Cholera is appearing in many parts of the district.
	34 Purneah, " 23 "	0.40
	34 Kiseengunge, " 23 "	0.10	A heavy shower of rain fell early in the week over the greater part of the district. Weather since has been fair and warm, and cool at night. In one thana the rubber has suffered a little from a hail-storm; in other parts of the district the crop has been gathered in and shows a fair outturn. The dhadoi and aghani cultivation is progressing.
	35 Maldah, " 23 "	0.8	A storm on the 16th. Weather then fair. State and prospects of the crops are the same as in last week. Prices continue high. Cholera is rather less prevalent.
	36 Sonthal Pergah, " 24 "	0.10	Weather—getting hot. No change in the state and prospects of the crops since last week.
ORISSA.
ORISSA DIV.	37 Cuttack, Mar. 23 '78	0.75	Weather—cloudy and cool. High winds and storms on the 17th and 18th. There was rain in some parts of the district. The dalsa crop is in ear. Cotton is progressing well. Ploughing for saradh has commenced. The crops generally have been much benefitted by the rain. Public health is good.
	38 Pooree, " 21 "	0.04	Weather—warm for the season and occasionally cloudy. Dalsa rice and moong are being reaped. Cotton plants are growing well, but require rain. Common rice is selling at a rupee for 10½ to 15½ seers, and in the salt tracts for 9½ seers. The high price of grain adds to the difficulties of the people of that part of the country. A few cases of cholera have been reported.
	39 Balasore, " 22 "	1.20	Weather—hot and dry, with occasional storms. Ploughing for the rice crop has commenced. Sporadic cholera exists.
CHOTA NAAGPORE.
South-West Frontier Agency.
	40 Hazareebagh, Mar. 22 '78	0.69	Weather—very variable. One day fine and bright, the next day stormy and cloudy. The prospects of the mohwa crop have been considerably damaged by the variable weather of the week; another week of similar weather and the mohwa will be a total failure, causing severe distress.
	41 Lohardugga, " 23 "	1.18	Violent storms of hail, rain, and wind have occurred nearly daily at Ranchi, and reports from Palamow and other places show that the district generally has been affected similarly. The mohwa and rubber crops have been very much injured. There has been little mango blossom this year. Prices have not risen since last report. General health is good.
	42 Singbhoom, " 22 "	1.43	Weather—hardly seasonable, as it is too cool for the time of year. It is now certain that there will be no mangoes and very little mohwa . The late rain has been useful for ploughing and preparation of lands. Some cases of cholera have occurred in Dhalbhoom, but the rest of the district is healthy.
	43 Manbhoom, " 23 "	3.01	Weather—stormy at the beginning of the week; hot and seasonable afterwards. The mohwa crop, wherever heavy rain and hail have fallen, has suffered more or less; in some places one-half of the early crop has been lost. The reports as to distress are conflicting: on the one hand, the most positive reports of distress in the west of the district have been received; on the other hand, the Assistant Commissioner and District Superintendent of Police, who have just returned from the western-most police station, state that after minute enquiry they have reason to believe that there is little, if any, actual distress. The Deputy Commissioner will probably visit the locality, and meanwhile tentative relief works from local funds will be taken in hand. The rates of pay will be low, so as to attract only those who are pressed for food. Emigration is brisk; the emigrants say they are leaving the district owing to food being scarce. Sporadic cases of cholera in the town and throughout the district, and here and there cases of small-pox have been reported.

* Report of 24th shows rainfall during the week ending 23rd.

* The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from observations made at 6h, 10h., 16h., and 22h.; the maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected to those of the standard (Newman's No. 86) formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The direction and movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

Meteorological Reporter to the Government of Ind

Reports of Fluctuation of Traffic on the East Indian Railway for four weeks ending 23rd February 1878.

EAST INDIAN RAILWAY TRAFFIC. AGENT'S OFFICE, CALCUTTA, THE 14TH MARCH 1878.
Report on Traffic of East Indian Railway for four weeks ending 23rd February.
The approximate figures for the four weeks ending 23rd February 1878 are—

	No.	Rs.	No.	Rs.
1877	611,436	8,87,918	61,25,436	22,24,780
1878	611,418	8,77,085	62,04,198	22,73,638
1877	21	88,317	14,17,248	44,716

In the above traffic, it will be seen, there is an increase of 27 per cent. in weight lifted, while the weight of goods (not over 2 per cent.) This is more than covered by a reduction in Government stores.

The principal fluctuations are—

Coal.	Minerals.	Construction account.	Goods.
Opium.	Opium.	Saltpetre.	Timber.
Hides.	Railway materials.	Salt.	Tobacco.
Commissionariat beer and Government stores.	Cotton.	Piece-goods.	Stones.
Hotel-nuts.	Jaggree.	Foreign railway material.	Sugar.
Coal—Upward		Mds. —13,928	Ra. —13,618
Downward		„ +3,98,238	„ +53,947
Net increase		3,92,635	40,334

The small decrease in the upward coal lies with the Burrakur fields, whence the Great Indian Peninsula were ing their supply last year.

Grain	Mds. 8,80,018	Ra. 1,88,000
Made up as under—
Rice	„ 1,10,575	„ 1,58,125
Barley	„ 1,70,868	„ 21,508
Other grains excluding wheat	„ 1,48,784	„ 1,34,390
Pulses	„ 6,77,749	„ 1,11,233
	11,07,734	4,25,194
Less decrease wheat	2,18,716	2,37,004
	8,89,018	1,88,190

As regards the decrease in wheat, 8,000 tons, it will be sufficient to say that the export from Calcutta in these four weeks was under 3,000 tons, while in the corresponding period last year it was 17,000 tons.

Falling prices in Europe have combined with scarcity in the North-Western Provinces to cause this.

Freight could be had in Calcutta at this moment for wheat at fifteen shillings a ton, but even this will not make it pay, low as it is compared with the freights, £3 to £3-2-6, which wheat paid last year.

Rice and other cereals.—The large comparative increase in earnings on this staple is due to the demand for food-grains in the Upper Provinces.

Barley.—This is, as in the previous month, almost entirely in the traffic from Scinde, Punjab and Delhi to Oudh and Rohilkund Railway over a short lead, 6,500 tons of it earning only £3,000 on this line.

This is now nearly over, as the worst time for Rohilkund has, it is hoped, passed away.

Pulses.—A great portion of this traffic has been in the same direction with the barley.

Hides	Mds. 66,924	Ra. 60,555
-------	-------------	------------

It will be noticed that the earning is three times that of 1876.

It has been a particularly brisk season in the hide trade, but I notice that an inferior class of hides is said to be coming forward in Calcutta just now, and not getting sale.

This points probably to an exhaustion of stocks up-country, and we may expect to see a falling off in this staple.

Salt	Mds. 25,025	Ra. 7,908
------	-------------	-----------

This is in the despatch of salt from Howrah, which continues good, and was no doubt checked to some extent last year by the heavy speculation for export that was then going on.

Saltpetre	Mds. 24,022	Ra. 11,848
-----------	-------------	------------

This is about the quantity shipped from Calcutta during the month, and stocks on hand in Calcutta must, I should say, be nearly exhausted.

Feeds	Mds. 1,19,841	Ra. 86,152
-------	---------------	------------

This is, again, a very large increase over the previous year.

Patna contributes nearly two-thirds of the weight, but Cawnpore about half of the amount.

Timber	Mds. 9,501	Ra. 11,689
--------	------------	------------

This was mainly in teak squares sent from Howrah to Allahabad and Lucknow for Government works.

Tobacco	Mds. 12,849	Ra. 6,420
---------	-------------	-----------

Good crops in Behar and demand in North-Western Provinces have contributed to this.

Commissionariat beer	Mds. 9,584	Ra. 15,018
Other commissionariat stores	„ 2,708	„ 4,589
Ordnance stores	„ 24,553	„ 87,234

As to the two former there is nothing to remark. The falling off in ordnance stores is due to special circumstances in 1877, viz. the striking camp at Delhi after the Imperial Assemblage, and the heavy despatch of munitions of war towards the frontier magazines which was going on at the same time.

Hotel-nuts	Mds. 12,208	Ra. 18,480
------------	-------------	------------

This staple is showing a decrease again lately, after standing high for some time past.

I understand the imports into the Calcutta market have been very short. Stocks are small and prices high in consequence, while a good deal of distress prevails in Upper India, and the demand for this (a luxury) is restricted.

Cotton	Mds. 1,20,820	Ra. 2,04,108
--------	---------------	--------------

Sugar	„ 36,865	„ 13,831
-------	----------	----------

I need not, I think, say much about these. There have been very scanty crops in both staples, and there is but little demand in Europe.

Piece-goods	Mds. 48,203	Ra. 28,656
-------------	-------------	------------

There is scarcely any business doing. The alarm about the crops has paralyzed trade in the North-Western Provinces, where our great piece-goods trade lies, and where the people were last year enjoying an almost unparalleled prosperity.
